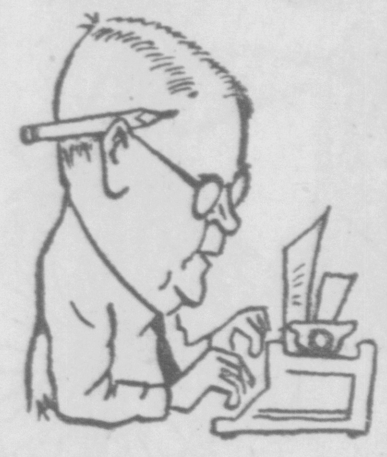
RECOMMEND NEW MUNICIPAL HALL

Editor's Column



STUART R. PADDOCK

Over the weekend we covered a lot of territory in years . . . over 1,000 miles.

It all happened to and from and in Springfield where we attended the 95th annual meeting of the Illinois Press Association.

We do not know what the Indians looked like 500 years before Columbus discovered America, but we do know what their bones look like today, as they are shown in an opened mound near Lewiston.

Anthropologists say that arthritis and a lot of modern day aches, pains and diseases were prevalent 1,000 years ago.

The Indians got their aches and pains early. Their average life was only between 35 and 40 years.

In return for longevity, should we be more patient with our bodily ills?

Dr. Harold Black of the Bell Telephone laboratories, a prominent scientist, pulled back the veil of the future for the editors in a talk on the future of Echo I.

"The primary objective of our present day satellite communications research is to carry television channels and thousands of telephonic messages to all parts of the world by way of artificial earth satellites. They will handle all kinds of messages —oral, visual, pictorial, telegraphic, high speed digital, and so on—with requisite speed, requisite security and of course, complete dependability."

In July the Bell System has a plan to launch a fleet of 50 active radio-relay spheres spinning like tops. These gyroscopic satellites should, in effect, serve as microwave radio-relay towers 3,000 miles high. Specimen of the "skin" of the 100-ft. balloon was distributed to the editors.

We can only guess what Russia will say about all this. Will future wars be fought between the satellites thousands of miles above the earth?

We wish that all of the police forces in the area covered by Paddock Publications and all our reporters could have heard the panel on "Press-Police Relations." Members were police heads and covered the rights or non-rights of reporters and the importance of confidence between police and reporter.

A full hour was spent in a discussion of the proper handling of "delicate news." The panel members and audience editors did not agree on how crime, juvenile delinquency, suicides, divorces, arrests, sex crimes, etc. should be handled.

It has been our experience that our readers do not agree either.

It was a worth while convention. We received a few awards. Family-wise, the crowning event was the induction of our son, Stuart R. Paddock Jr., as president of the Illinois Press Association.

School Board Rebels Against Federal Aid

Arlington Heights' grade school board Tuesday night rebelled against federal aid to education and refused to send a letter of intent to participate in the National Defense Education Act program.

Board members attacked the NDEA, which allocates funds for the improvement of the teaching of foreign languages, science, mathematics, and, at the high school level, guidance.

Roger Burke, 438 S. Vail, led the assault, emphasizing that he was against federal aid to education in any form, and especially when curriculum was involved.

THERE WAS one dissenter in the voting. Joe Faner, 615 Mayfair, argued that as long as the law was there, and the school would benefit, he felt the district should "dip into the till."

District 25 did participate last year, and the administration had planned to file a supplementary application for additional materials and equipment for the science program. Under the program, the federal government, through the individual states, pays up to 50 per cent of approved expenditures.

Burke opined that this sort of program could lead to federal control of public schools, and that educators could be innocently trapped into giving up their power in favor of the centralized government.

"Besides," Burke continued, "this board has never failed to provide what we considered necessary to operate high quality schools. We can take care of ourselves."

SUPERINTENDENT Ralph Clabaugh debated this point. "It's the people's money," he argued. "They've paid it in taxes. Under the self-support theory, we might as well turn down state aid. Actually our program would be better as a result of NDEA."

Faner pointed out that the schools participate in the federal school lunch program.

"That's not curriculum," retorted Burke.

The question of whether teachers would be allowed to attend NDEA-sponsored workshops was left to the administration, although Burke indicated that he felt there was a possibility that such a program might well be slanted to federal subsidy of schools.

FANER ARGUED that it was inconsistent to turn down the aid and accept the workshops, but Clabaugh's support of the workshops prevailed.

A motion to meet again on the subject of NDEA died on lack of a second.

Hospital Filled; 'No More Beds!'

Please don't get sick!

This is the plea that comes this week from Northwest Community hospital - so full that beds are now being rented.

"This is the situation we can expect from now on," administrator Alan B. Campbell said. "We haven't put people in the halls yet - only because we don't have the beds to put them there."

MOST OF THE elective surgical cases scheduled for Tuesday morning were cancelled in face of the bed shortage in the surgical and medical departments. There was still one vacancy in obstetrics, and several small beds empty in the children's department.

Campbell has asked doctors to discharge all patients that can possibly be released. In addition, the three solariums are being used for patients.

The answer to overcrowded conditions?

"There is no immediate answer," Campbell said. "We are not in position financially to expand. We'll just have to cope as best we can."

Promptness

Unfaithfulness in the keeping of an appointment is an act of clear dishonesty. You may as well borrow a person's money as his time.—Horace Mann.

Two Specials

Inside this week are two special supplements of special interest to Paddock Publications readers. They are the feature-filled Fall Home Festival edition and the exciting new Furniture Fashions section.

Announce Report of Citizens

Arlington Heights needs a new village hall. Its cost should not exceed $450,000, and no more than $350,000 of this amount should come from a 20 year bond issue to be voted upon by taxpayers.

These are the major recommendations that will be made to village trustees next week by the Citizens Committee appointed last May to study the community's municipal building needs.

Following months of field trips, meetings, consultations with the village manager and architect, and collecting of data, 25 members of the committee met this week to approve a final report which will go to the village board.

THE REPORT noted that the sale of the existing village hall site plus vacated streets and adjoining property should net at least $100,000. This sum would be added to the bond issue to round out the $450,000 price tag ceiling for a new building.

The committee recommended that should a greater profit be realized from sale of the present hall site, the amount of the bond issue should be reduced accordingly.

Should the site sell for less than anticipated, there would be less than $450,000 to spend for a new hall, for the report notes that in no event should the bond issue exceed $350,000, and no portion of a new hall should be financed except through a bond issue plus proceeds from sale of the present site.

THE COMMITTEE recommends that the new building be built as nearly as possible in accordance with the plans prepared by Architect Joe L. Bennett.

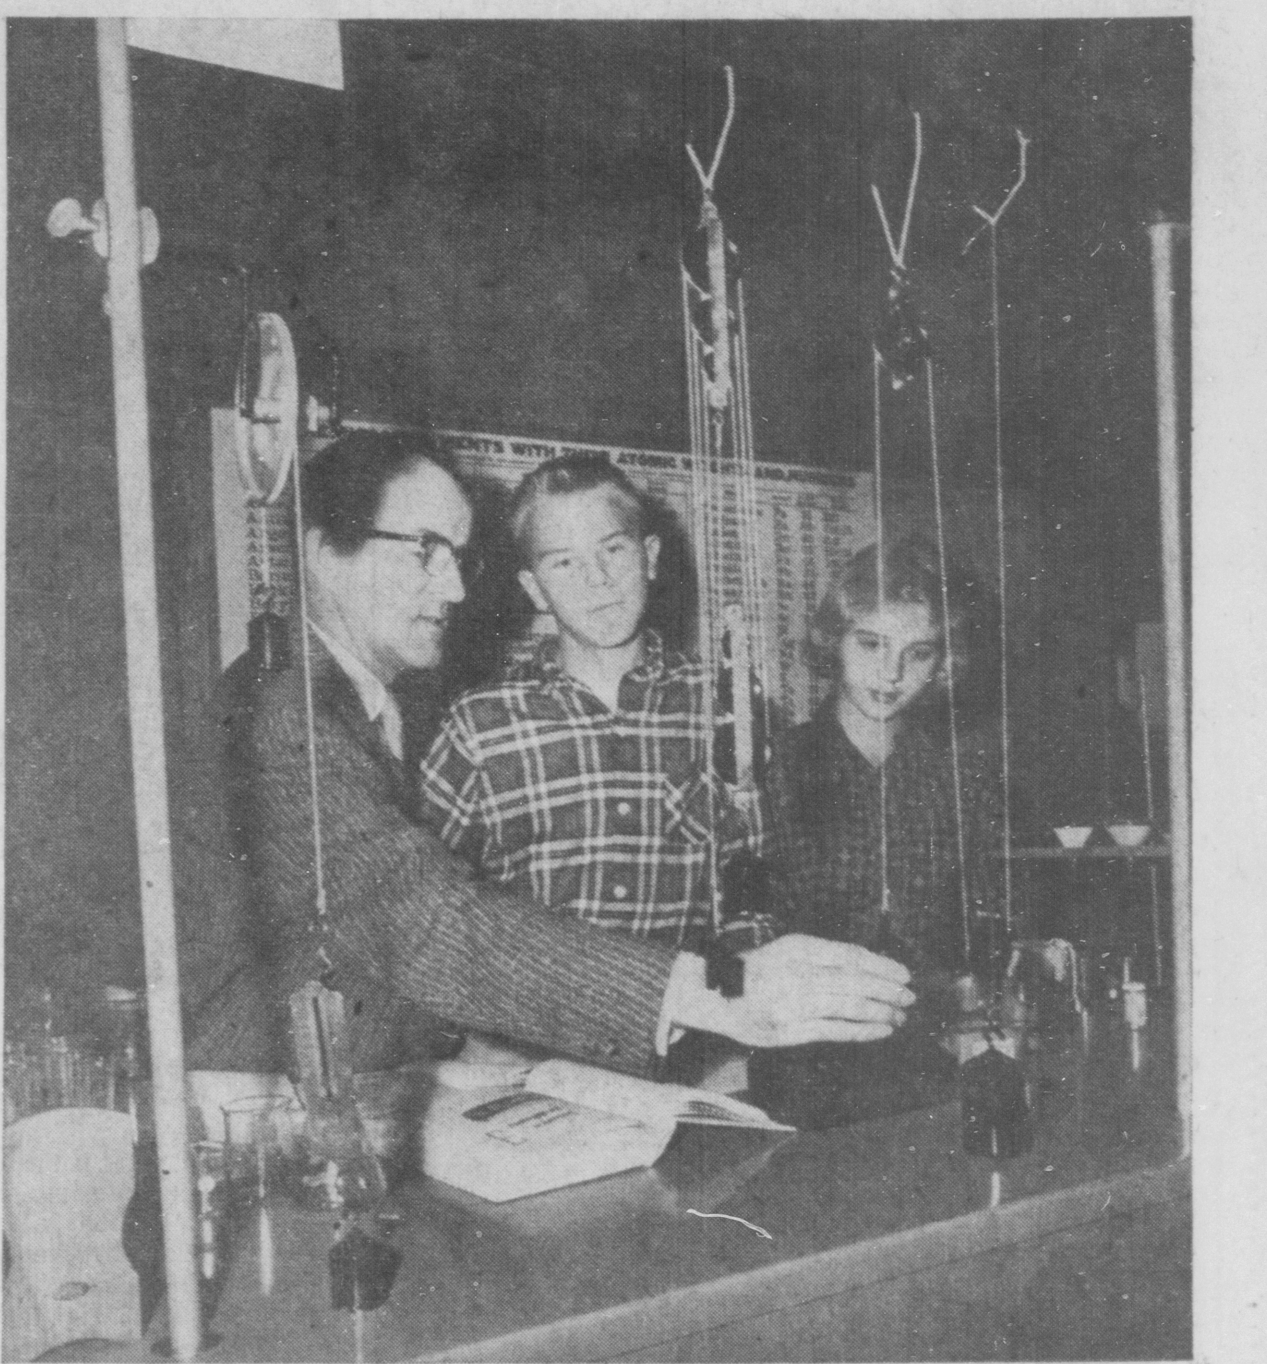
Bennett prepared plans and the village accepted bids on a new village hall last spring. The lowest and best bids amounted to $464,000. This is $14,000 more than the ceiling set by the committee's report.

A majority of the trustees had earlier proceeded to have plans drawn on the assumption that the new hall would be financed out of surplus water and sewer funds plus revenue from the old site.

Following protests by citizens and a minority of board members, it was decided to submit the need for a hall and the desired method of financing to a Citizens' Committee. The committee is composed of representatives of various civic, business, and home owner groups plus interested individuals.

Major Recommendations

Junior High Schools Meet Conant Program



EIGHTH GRADERS, Lynn Maas and Steve Christiansen, are guided in science experiment by Teacher Albert Wangles at South school. Conant report on education in junior high schools recommends science instruction should begin in seventh grade. Arlington Heights schools begin such instruction in first grade with a science teacher taking over in sixth grade.

How do Arlington Heights' junior high schools stack up against the major recommendations made in the just released Conant report?

The village's two junior high schools meet, and in many instances surpass, Conant's suggestions in every instance except on the question of homework.

"Education in the Junior High School Year," a study compiled under the direction of Dr. James B. Conant, former president of Harvard university, recommends that homework assignments should begin with about one hour a day in grade seven and progress to two hours daily by grade nine.

"Some of our students may spend this amount of time on homework, but the district doesn't attempt to insure that each student spends a specific amount of time on homework," notes Robert Campbell, principal of Miner junior high.

"We don't assign homework for homework's sake. It's an extension of classroom work. Some pupils may finish their work in class while others may find it necessary to continue their work at home," notes Campbell.

HE POINTS out, however, that there are special projects for the gifted student that require work at home.

The average junior high school student in Arlington Heights, says Campbell, probably spends two or three nights a week on homework.

District 25's junior high schools include the sixth, seventh, and eighth grades. Other communities vary these grades with their elementary and high schools. Conant notes the organization is of less importance than the program provided.

Conant's suggested program and Arlington Heights' compare as follows:

—Science, says Conant, should be a full-time subject beginning in the seventh grade. District 25's science program starts in the first grade with a science teacher taking over in the sixth grade.

—In reading and arithmetic especially, the study recommends teachers should bear down on instruction in basic skills throughout grades seven and eight. District 25 students score a year ahead of the national average on standardized tests in reading and arithmetic.

—CONANT suggests that all students in grades seven and eight be required to take English, social studies, and mathematics, with algebra offered in the eighth grade. Such is the case in district 25.

—A modern foreign language should be taught on a conversational basis in the seventh grade, says Conant. District 25 has offered foreign languages in the junior high schools for the past five years on an elective basis. Starting this year, eighth graders are required to take French. The program is being considered for extension into the lower grades.

—The study notes that economical operation requires a minimum of 125 pupils in junior high school grades, with 250 the ideal number. Presently, the lowest number in an Arlington Heights junior high school grade is 180 students. District plans, with a proposed addition to Miner school, call for 250 to 300 in each grade.

—Conant suggests that the "minimum" requirement for an adequate staff is 50 professionals for 1,000 pupils. Arlington Heights fulfills this ratio.

In compiling its study, the Conant staff visited 237 schools in 23 states.

Widow of Lodger

Village Sued For $30,000

A suit for $30,000 has been filed against the village of Arlington Heights and five of its police officers by the widow of a man who died while lodged in a village cell.

Filed in Superior court Friday by Mrs. Katherine Daniel, 4821 W. Cortez st., Chicago, the suit charges that her late husband Frank, 46 at the time of his death last July, became entangled in his cot chain and suffered a broken neck.

The suit contends the village was under a duty to provide a safe place so an intoxicated person (Daniel was charged with public intoxication at the time of his death) would not injure himself by his involuntary motions under the influence of alcohol.

THE OFFICERS involved in the suit are Lieutenants Oscar E. Johnson, Thomas Vidrick, Raymond Jahnke, and Patrolmen Norman Busse and Radio Operator Harold Best. The men were on duty during the time Daniel was lodged in a cell.

A former taxi driver, Daniel had a record of eight arrests by Arlington Heights police, ranging from traffic offenses to assault. He was reportedly despondent the night of his arrest.

A coroner's jury determined that Daniel suffered a broken neck from undetermined causes.

Beginning This Week

The Poor of Illinois

An exclusive report-in-depth of Illinois' shocking problems in poverty begins this week in Paddock Publications.

For the first time in any newspaper or magazine, Paddock Publications will penetrate the plight of the poor in Illinois in this series of six special picture page reports.

More than four months in preparation, "The Poor" provides on-the-spot analytical, factual, and human reporting of Illinois' least understood problem.

For first-hand information on conditions of poverty, Paddock Publications sent managing editor William Dulaney into the heart of Cook county's slums for days of interviewing and investigating, and executive editor Charles Hayes on a 1200-mile junket through southern Illinois' problem counties. Both editors were accompanied by Larry Cameron, staff photographer, whose dramatic on-the-spot photos illustrate this series.

"The Poor" series is another example of how Paddock Publications, with inquisitiveness and zeal, reports the foreground, explores the background of significant news and events, providing a unique depth and range to suburban reporting.

Assessment Books Open Three Days

The 1960 real estate assessment books for Wheeling township will be available on the counter of the Cook county assessor's office October 13, 14, and 15.

Following the three day public display, the books will be delivered to the board of appeals for filing and hearing of residents' complaints for a 10-day period, according to Robert A. Moran, chief of the administrative service division.

Poignant Coronation Stirs Teenage Queen

Tears, roses and hoop skirts will always be associated in the mind of pretty Melody Griesman.

It was the happiest moment of her life and she savored every delicious moment of it, the 17-year-old "Queen" recalls.

Just as vivid and poignant a memory of the Arlington Heights "Homecoming coronation" stirs in the mind of her mother, Dorothea, who is vicariously living the high school triumphs of her charming daughter, Melody. The Griesmans live at 2605 W. George, Rolling Meadows.

"I feel everything she does," her bubbling mother confided. "I'm a Cardette for three years and a cheerleader for one."

BUT THE DAY of the coronation was a breathless one for both mom and daughter. "Every time the organ gave out with a fanfare," mom relates, "I jumped three feet into the air. And while we were waiting for the scroll to be read, I thought I would die. When they announced Melody as the Queen and the whole student body let out a yell, I felt it all the way down to my toes. It was just tremendous, just thrilling."

That was last Friday. Which is perhaps ancient history for some. But not for Melody, for to heighten the poignancy of the moment, something happened that made her want to crawl under the throne.

THE "KING," Gary Erwin, "he's real cute and just back a week from Germany after being Illinois state trampoline champ," had escorted her back to the throne. The royal pair had made the rounds of the hall in a formal circuit. Then, bedlam broke loose as practically every student, 2300 of them, came up to congratulate Melody. As she tells it:

"I was crying so hard (with happiness) that I popped a snap on my hoop (the flaring underskirt of her formal). It weighed so much and I was carrying my rose and my robe and trying to hold the hoop up, when I got on the floor, I was so embarrassed that Miss Craig asked me:

"What's the matter?"

When she told the student council adult representative what was happening Miss Craig advised her to be calm and to let it go. "Drop it?" she asked, and Miss Craig nodded. So she did.

"The hoop plopped down at my feet," "and I stepped out of it." Melody continued, "A little page calmly picked it up and carried all the fluffy stuff somewhere, and I followed her and put it on again without anyone thinking anything of it."

She'll never forget that moment or the entire thrilling experience of being queen "It's the most wonderful thing that can happen to a high school girl and I never thought it could happen to me."

It's true. When she came to the high school, swarming with thousands of students, she was overwhelmed. "As a freshmen," she explains, "I felt like a nobody, I was overpowered by all the people, by their abilities and their activities. Everyone was so much more active than I."

SHE watched three homecoming queens as they were acclaimed by the student body. And now, that it is her turn, "there is something in me that must deserve the recognition that so many gave me, and I would like to do something to live up to their hopes," she declares.

Melody intends, "if all my plans work out," to go to the University of Florida, in Gainesville, where she has relatives. She has not selected a career as yet, but can boast a "B" average, an interest in modern jazz dancing, an interpretative art, water skiing, a secret desire to be in the Ice Follies, a love for clothes and a background of modeling for Fields.

But tears will always vie with hoop skirts and roses as long as she lives.

Plan Pancake, Sausage Dinner

Tickets, which are 85 cents each, may be purchased from any member of the troop or at the door. The troop depends upon the proceeds of this affair to defray almost all of its expenses for the year.

Unique Parking Arrangement OKd

have approved what is termed an "oddity in parking arrangements" by the village attorney to allow construction of a combination apartment-office building on Northwest hwy. between Yale and Princeton avenues.

With Trustee William Sauer casting a dissenting vote, the board granted the petition of John Hoover that he and his associates be allowed to fulfill off-street parking requirements for their proposed building by leasing a portion of the VFW parking lot.

THE PROPOSED two-story building requires 15 off-street parking spaces. The developers can only provide nine on their property.

They have, however, entered into a written agreemnt with the VFW to lease for 20 years 17 parking spaces adjacent to the building site.

The building will house 10 office units on the first floor and five apartments on the second floor. It will be known as Princeton House.

Trustee Sauer questioned what would happen after 20 years. 'We'll have to renegotiate for another easement," replied Hoover.

"WHAT IF the VFW doesn't want to renegotiate?" queried Sauer. "We'd be in trouble," conceded Hoover, but he added there was no reason to anticipate such a problem.

Still unsatisfied, Sauer asked what would happen if the developers failed to pay their $720 annual rental fee. "The off-street parking ordinance was set up to protect the village. I fail to see how this board can just leave a question mark at the end of 20 years," said Sauer in voting against the proposal.

Suburban Economist Hits Stratton Record

Northwest suburban voters — be they Republicans or Democrats — cannot risk another four years of Gov. Stratton, the Democratic Volunteers of Wheeling Township were told Monday.

"Stratton has unprecedented presumption in campaigning for an unprecedented third term to do so under a slogan of peace, prosperity and progress," said H. Robert Powell of Prospect Heights, an economist.

"A more fitting banner, recognizing eight years of disservice to the residents of Illinois," he said, "would be emblazoned with the words 'defraud, decline and deceive'."

"It is no wonder," Powell added, "that thinking Republicans by the tens of thousands are deserting Mr. Stratton this year to vote for Otto Kerner, a man without blemish in a lifetime of public service."

EVEN NEWSPAPERS that for decades have supported none but Republicans, he said, in 1960 "are turning vigorously against Stratton."

Powell quoted this example from the Rockford Morning Star: "The Republican stake on the national front is too great for it to go into the fall battle encumbered by the animosities, doubts and feuds that are part and parcel of Stratton's candidacy."

The Illinois State Register of Springfield similarly endorsed Kerner, he said, as did the Star's sister paper, the Register-Republic, which said: "He (Stratton) has concentrated on building a personal political machine . . . Around his neck hangs the albatross of strange and unexplained alliances and actions."

The Democratic Volunteers are a spontaneously formed group of local residents unaffiliated with the regular Democratic organization but co-operating with it in the Nov. 8 election.

POWELL commended the members for their civic interest, saying: "This year's Democratic ticket is so exceptional that all of us should feel personally challenged to work for it and get others to the polls to support it."

Detailing his charge of fraud in the Stratton administration Powell ticked off:

—The Evan Howell scandal, "in which a chairman of the state Tollway Commission lived it up on public money."

—The case of William W. Downey, "who was Stratton's closest aide until he recently pleaded guilty of evading taxes on income we still don't know the source of."

—The $2½ million swindle of state taxpayers by Orville Hodge, "the leading batsman of Stratton's original team."

UNDER THE heading of "decline" in the state's affairs, Powell said that Stratton inherited a mental hospital administration that stood among the top five of all states "and in only eight years reduced it to the level of some of the nation's worst."

During the Stratton years, he reported, "employment throughout the United States rose nearly 7 per cent, but in the same period in Illinois it declined 1.1 per cent—a tragic 8.9 per cent in manufacturing—even though the state population rose nearly 15 per cent."

Stratton, he said, has done "little or nothing" to counteract the trend by attracting new industries to the state.

In the area of "deceit," Powell said Stratton had promised to reduce the number of state payrollers and consolidate departments, but 14,000 more persons are now on the state payroll than there were in 1952 and the total number of departments in the state administration has increased.

HE ALSO NOTED that Stratton "habitually has operated the state on a fictional 18-month budget, each biennium finding it necessary to call special sessions of the legislature to vote deficiency appropriations."

Powell said that Stratton has brought Illinois to a "precarious" financial state and quoted Warren Wood, the governor's legislative spokesman, as having said in June:

"Unless a crash program is launched here now . . . . the State of Illinois will be 'Michiganized' (broke) in the first six months of 1961."

Powell credited to Stratton an "unbelievable number of vetoes and blocking maneuvers against legislative reform efforts, such as the bill to take the Parole and Pardon Board out of politics and proposals to help assure honesty in installment selling practices. (B8

A DEMOCRATIC Volunteer of Wheeling township, Leo Redell, 1007 S. Dunton, urges Mrs. Ralph Andejeski, 701 W. Maude to register for next month's election. Democratic volunteers made the round Saturday morning in a door bell campaign to get out the vote. (ACM

Kennedy Citizens Plan Box Social

The Northwest Suburban Citizens for Kennedy will sponsor an old fashioned box lunch social Sunday, Oct. 16, from 2 p.m. until dark in Grove No. 5 of Busse Woods.

All ladies who attend are asked to pack a box lunch for two and decorate it to honor either Senator Kennedy, Senator Douglas, Judge Kerner, the gubernatorial candidate, or Dr. Thompson, the Democratic candidate for Congress from the 13th district.

They should place their names inside the box lunches because prizes will be awarded to the most attractively decorated boxes.

The four winning box lunches will be auctioned off; the remaining lunches will be sold for $1 each, the proceeds to be given to the campaign funds of the candidates being honored.

RETURNING on the sixth anniversary of her appearance in Mt. Prospect during Senator Douglas' last campaign is the featured speaker, Emily Taft Douglas. A mystery guest will represent Senator Kennedy, and Mrs. Kerner and Mrs. Thompson will select the winning box lunches from among those decorated in honor of their husbands.

A piece of shirt belonging to each of the featured candidates will also be auctioned off for future quilting bees. Country-style entertainment will be offered, and inexpensive refreshments will also be available. Many other Democratic candidates are expected to attend.

Participating suburbs and representatives are Palatine, Miss Bride Healy; Arlington Heights, Mrs. Robert Holman; Elk Grove Village, Mrs. Ronald Gersdorf; Mt. Prospect, Mrs. Fred Thulin; Roselle, Mrs. John Ewen; Rolling Meadows, Wheeling, and Bartlett. Visitors from Niles, Morton Grove, Skokie, Des Plaines, Glenview, Wilmette and Evanston are expected to attend. (B8

Election Interest High in Suburbs

Man on Street Is Questioned

(Paddock Publications recently assigned reporter Bruce Ladd to question northwest suburban residents concerning the Presidential race between Democratic Sen. John F. Kennedy and Republican Vice President Richard M. Nixon. After two full days of polling typical voters, Ladd submitted the following report.)

by BRUCE LADD

Northwest suburban residents are very much interested in the Presidential campaign.

Only three of the 100 voters I talked with last Thursday and Friday expressed little or no concern over the rapidly approaching general election.

A middle-aged man in Mt. Prospect said it was "nobody's business" how he intended to vote, admitting he didn't think he would anyway. A Palatine housewife disclosed she never votes because she doesn't have time.

I asked an 81-year-old lady from Elk Grove Village if she was eligible to vote. She replied, "Sonny, when you're as old as I am, you're eligible for anything." But she didn't plan to vote November 8.

REACTIONS OF the 97 others, however, indicate there is a genuine awareness among suburban voters as to the candidates' platforms, their records, and their beliefs.

The election battle seems to be having a great impact on suburbanites. They know the issues. When they say they're voting for either Kennedy or Nixon, they qualify the choice by citing specifics.

In Hoffman Estates a mother of three explained, "Kennedy says he might pick Adlai Stevenson for his secretary of state. I think Stevenson would coddle the Russians. Nixon gets my vote."

A 50-year-old Mt. Prospect housewife charged "Eisenhower has been wishy-washy in dealing with the Russians," and even though she's voted Republican in the last three elections, this time she's siding with Kennedy.

A printer from Rolling Meadows said he supported Stevenson in 1952 and 1956, but now feels "the Democrats are going Socialist" and will vote for Nixon this time.

A KENNEDY partisan in Wheeling said, "His whole approach appeals to me. He's straight-forward in discussion of the economy. I backed Ike before, but now I'm for Kennedy."

Nixon's number one ground-gainer seems to be the fact that, as Mrs. Willard Marshall, of 302 S. I-Oka, Mt. Prospect, remarked, "The Russians hate Nixon and he'd do better in coping with them."

E. R. Larson, of 306 N. Beverly lane, Arlington Heights, voiced another strong Nixon vote-puller in saying, "Conditions are good now. Why gamble with inexperience?"

Those leaning toward Kennedy sounded impressed by his intelligence and magnetic personality. A Prospect Heights salesman thought Kennedy had answered all domestic and foreign affairs questions very well. A 30-year-old Wheeling housewife said, 'Kennedy is a very smart man."

OF THOSE interviewed, 62 favored Nixon and 15 like Kennedy. The remaining 20 voters claimed to be undecided. Most of those who have not yet made up their minds said they backed Eisenhower in '52 and '56.

Mrs. Allen Brown, of 3720 Oriole, Rolling Meadows, represents the undecided element. She believes foreign relations is the biggest problem facing the President. Mrs. Nicholas Sari, of 273 Wildwood rd., Elk Grove Village, reported both she and her husband are still undecided, but that they are studying the issues.

Kennedy's wealth may have some affect on the vote of Mrs. Harry Kidd, of 416 N. Pine, Mt. Prospect, as yet an undecided voter. Spending and taxes at home will probably influence the final decision of a 26-year-old Army corporal stationed in Arlington Heights.

Two Buffalo Grove housewives, one 21 and the other 27, share moments of indecision. Both know little about the candidates. Neither has voted before. Their husbands are undecided.

A surprising result of the opinion poll was that 98 per cent of those who viewed the first television debate between Nixon and Kennedy said they were in no way influenced by it.

THOSE WHO SAW the debate had, for the most part, already made up their minds. A 30-year-old resident of Inverness reflected that the debate only confirmed her belief that Nixon was the best man. The debate convinced a retired machinist that Kennedy was best.

The religious issue seldom came up in the interviews. It was unavoidably discussed, though, when Vicar Douglas Lorig, a 24-year-old Lutheran minister, said he had "no misgivings about Kennedy's Roman Catholic faith," but planned to vote for Nixon anyway.

Mrs. Donald Lark, of 593 Merle, Wheeling, a Roman Catholic, said she was voting the Nixon-Lodge ticket because "Lodge is such an asset to the party. He'll save us in the crisis with Russia."

In general, husbands and wives tended to vote the same. Very few wives confided, "My husband decides the voting. I follow his example." One lady in Prospect Heights, however, said her husband insists she vote the same way he does.

In Hoffman Estates a 34-year-old mechanic said he was voting for Kennedy and his wife for Nixon. "What's the use?" he asked "We nullify each other's votes, don't we?"

THE MEN SEEMED influenced in their voting by the talk among fellow workers. Women were influenced more by discussions among neighbors or in social groups.

Exactly 90 per cent of those interviewed voted for Eisenhower in both '56 and'52. The overwhelming majority are sticking with Nixon, but Kennedy is attracting his share of Ike advocates too. And many Ike voters are still undecided, providing a rich potential for both parties.

An analysis of the survey indicates 38 per cent of those interviewed have been influnced chiefly by the candidates' personality and political image. For example, a Palatine businessman believes Nixon is the man to "do the job that has to be done." An Elk Grove Village housewife thinks Kennedy's approach is "refreshing."

Worries over the status of foreign relations prompted 34 per cent to pick their respective candidates. "Kennedy will straighten out the foreign mess we're in," a Hoffman Estates man said. A Palatine school custodian favors Nixon and the Republicans because "they keep us out of war."

CONCERN OVER the domestic problems in the United States influenced the decisions of 28 per cent of those interviewed. Peter J. Bellendir, of 11 N. Main, Mt. Prospect, praised Kennedy's 14 years in Congress and his "proven ability to find holes in the economic picture."

On the other hand, Carl Teusch, of 63 N. Ironwood dr., Arlington Heights, feels the GOP platform is the most suitable. The suburban architect believes the Democrats are "wild spenders." Other Nixon fans claimed Kennedy has "little apreciation" for money and has "never been worried about stetching a dollar."

In total, the poll showed (1) northwest suburban citizens are giving great attention to the campaign (2) the number of undecided or independent voters is higher proportionately than on the national level, and (3) the TV debates and religion have had little affect on the voter.

This poll is not meant to how trends nationally. It oes, however, illustrate the inclinations and reasoning of a cross-section of suburban voters. (B8

AUTO SALESMAN Jerry Centoni, of 531 N. Ridge, Arlington Heights, represents the sizable element of undecided suburban voters. Centoni was interviewed by Reporter Bruce Ladd at his place of work, George C. Poole, Inc., auto sales.

"I LIKE IKE" was the comment of Mrs. T. Merle Paul, of 815 W. Oakton st., Arlington Heights, who will mark her ballot for Richard M. Nixon, Republican candidate for President. The suburban housewife backed President Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956. (B8

Des Plaines Is Sales Leader

Des Plaines with $1,459,500 led the northwest suburban area in sales tax receipts during the fiscal year July 1, 1959 to June 30, 1960 in the Illinois Department of Revenue report issued last week. Arlington Heights was a close runner-up with $1,212,496.

Other northwest communities with their tax receipts include: Park Ridge, $971,409; Norridge, $866,384; Niles, $652,033; Mt. Prospect, $458,710; Palatine, $385,758; Harwood Hts, $278,413; Barrington, $255,321; and Prospect Heights, $51,544. (B8

Suburban Official Tells Report of Municipal Meeting

Each year about this time, hundreds of Northwest suburban village and city officials converge on Springfield.

Last week, as nearly 1,000 officials met in the state capital for the 47th annual conference of the Illinois municipal league to discuss and analyze mutual problems, one Northwest suburban board member made his maiden pilgrimage, and returned to report:

—Local traffic courts in Illinois are "smelly" and should be brightened to "dignify their effectiveness."

— Downtown business areas must be saved from stagnation and decay.

—Planning and zoning ultimately are the responsibility of elected local officials and should not be the exclusive concern of appointed citizens and technicians.

— Industrial development is often stymied by poor publicity and not poor industrial factors.

—Illinois communities collected $50 million or more in sales tax revenue during the past year, revenue which may have saved some from bankruptcy.

ALMOST THE first reaction of the newcomer to contact with the league session was "shock" upon being asked by an official of another community:

"What are you here to lobby for?"

The Northwest suburbanite told him quite simply that he was there to observe and learn and not to advance any cause.

Village and city managers, the local official pointed out, have made their profession one of indispensable value to the community, and discussions of the league on municipal problems highlighted the need for a full-time administrator in villages and cities quite effectively.

However, one alderman from a large Illinois city poured scorn on the manager plan, and told the Northwest representative of his city's thrice-repudiated vote for such a plan, and couldn't understand why the Northwest suburb continued to support a manager type of government.

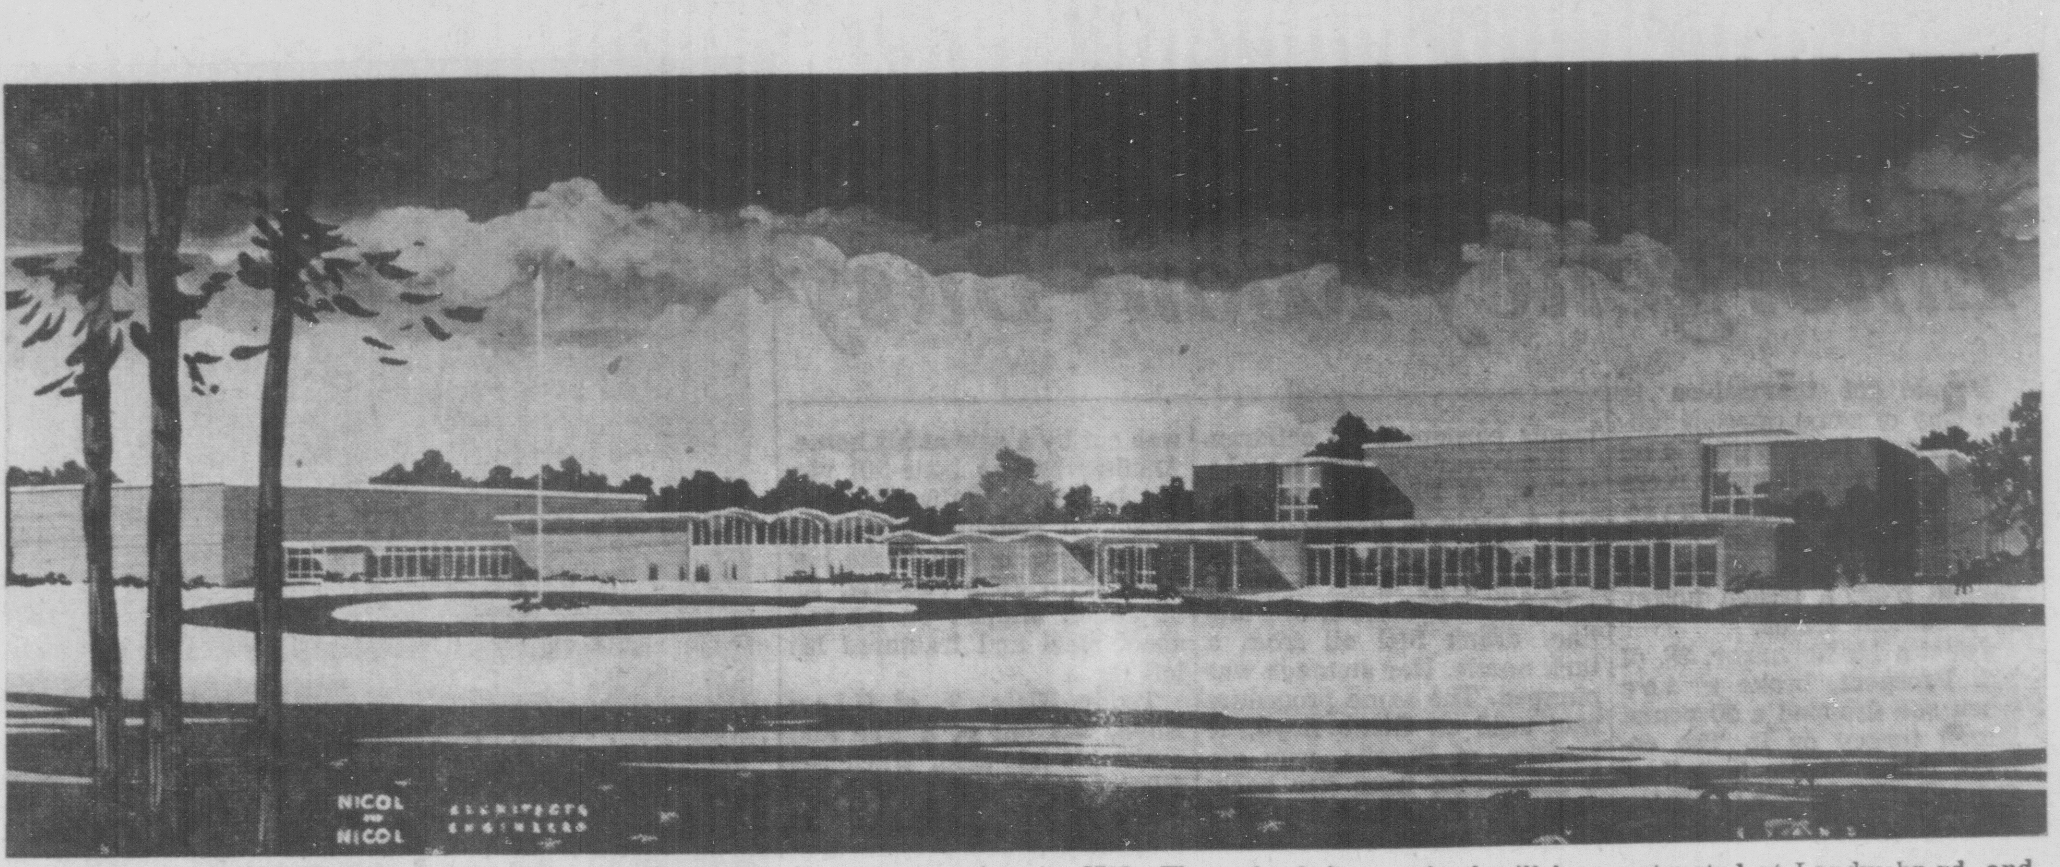
SHORTLY afterward, at dinnertime, the manager proponent wished his disputant had sat down with him for dinner to meet a village manager who had served one community for 25 years and a Norwegian city manager who was visiting the United States to learn new ideas and practicies in administration.

Problems of all communities were basically alike, and as one municipal official expressed it: "The prime problem of every community is getting water; the next problem is disposing of it."

Other common problems pertained to annexation and off-street parking, despite such unique characteristics as one college town wondering what it could do to prevent students from parking anywhere but on the ample campus facilities.

THE AREA representative expressed the belief that a village trustee's life is often a lonely one, wrestling with the problems of an entire village, with the responsibilities forcing one almost into isolation.

The Springfield experience, however, was both revealing and consoling after witnessing many hundreds of their earnest attempts to seek solutions for the betterment of their towns. (B8



PROPOSED GLENBROOK South high school which voters in Northfield township school district 225 will be asked to build with a $3,850,000 bond issue has been designed by architects Nicol and Nicol to accommodate 1200 students, with future expansion to 2500. The school is tentatively set to open in fall, 1962. Present Glenbrook North high school will then have 2500 children with a capacity of only 2200. The new school will be constructed at Landwehr rd. and Lake ave. on an 80-acre site purchased with a $360,000 bond issue last year. The construction bond issue referendum will be held October 22.

Mental Health Stressed By Peskin in Campaign

A separate department of mental health was called for this week by Bernard M. Peskin. Democratic candidate for re-election as state representative for the 6th district at a series of parlor meetings in Skokie, Morton Grove, Arlington Heights, and Palatine.

Peskin declared: "One way to keep the public spotlight on the state hospital and mental institutions would be to separate their functions from the rest of the department of Welfare. The code department should be headed by a qualified, accredited psychiatrist who could install and oversee a program of cure rather than care in our mental institutions."

"IN THE past seven years, Illinois has lost almost all of its top hospital personnel to other states," Peskin said. "Today, we have only 13 psychiatrists caring for over 48 thousands patients in our state hospitals, and the shortage of other trained personnel is just as acute," alleged the candidate. "We have only one attendant for each 200 patients in our mental hospitals."

Peskin was chief sponsor, in the 1959 meeting of the General Assembly, of HB 520, a bill which would have created an interim commission to study the best means of setting up a separate department of mental health. The bill was lost by one vote.

THE DEMOCRATIC candidate resides with his wife and two children at 326 Southgate drive, Northbrook. A lawyer he is also vice president and a director of the Northbrook Savings and Loan Association. He is a member of the Wheeling Veterans of Foreign Wars, Chicago and Illinois State Bar Associations, Director of Northbrook B'nai B'rith and Northbrook Ridge Homeowner's association, and vice president of Northfield Township Democratic club.

A candidate for re-election, Peskin was first elected to the Legislature in 1958, where his principal interests centered in the fields of mental health. Constitutional reform and revenue. Newspaper correspondents named him one of the "outstanding freshman legislators" in the 71st General Assembly.

Thompson Rally Slated Monday

Northwest suburban voters will have a chnace to meet Tyler Thompson, Democratic candidate for Congress in the 13th district, at 7:45 p.m. Monday, October 17, at Pioneer park fieldhouse, Arlington Heights.

Thompson will give a brief talk, to be followed by an informal "Meet the Press" session, when questions from the audience regarding his platform will be welcomed.

Thompson, a Methodist minister, is professor of philosophy at Garrett Biblical institute, Evanston, and holds degrees in physics, theology and philosophy.

His platform includes "promotion of world peace, through educational, technical and economic assistance to under-developed countries." Thompson has lived six years in the Orient, three and one-half years of which were spent as a prisoner of the Japanese in Singapore during World War II. He recently returned from a six months' tour of Europe.

He seeks the seat now held by Cong. Marguerite Stitt Church (R), who has, he says, "a record of voting 33 times against President Eisenhower's recommendations" on foreign aid.

The rally is sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Thompson for Congress Committee. Mr. and Mrs. H. Robert Powell, Prospect Heights, are co-chairmen. (B8

Falling Objects Keep Emergency Room Busy

People got themselves in the way of some unusual falling objects last week, and ended in the emergency room of Northwest Community hospital for treatment.

The detrimental objects ranged from a frozen turkey to a cement mixer.

Julietta Moldenhauer, 38, of Mt. Prospect, broke a toe when she dropped a 20 pound frozen turkey on it. The cement mixer victim is Jeffrey Grismer, 11, of Arlington Heights, who suffered a four-inch cut when the machine fell on his left leg.

JEFFREY CLAYS, 3, of Palatine, dropped a cement block on his right hand and suffered a crushed finger. A piece of concrete fell on the right hand of Edward Santerelli, 37, of Lockport, Ill. He suffered a cut and fracture.

Other culprits in the weekly accident toll were an eraser, and various alien elements consumed by children.

Eight-year-old Kimberly Nelson, of Prospect Heights, put a piece of eraser in her nose. Emergency staff members removed it.

Kathleen Florey, 3, of Palatine, drank fuel oil from a tank nozzle. Her stomach was pumped. The same procedure was used on Diane Boyd, 16 months, of Roselle, who ate a mushroom from her backyard; R. E. Rakstang, 1, of Rolling Meadows, who drank merthiolate; Benedict Sigfusson, 3, of Mt. Prospect, who ate medicine; and Edward Suzak, 4, of Arlington Heights, who ate aspirin.

CUTS AND injuries from falls were again high in the majority of emergency cases. Rocco Panella, 33, of Elk Grove, cut his hand on a canned ham container. The 1½-inch cut was stitched.

Michael Thompson, 7, of Arlington Heights, fell out of a tree and fractured his right arm. Patrick Kane, 55, of Arlington Heights stepped on a nail. The wound was dressed, and the man was given a tetanus toxoid shot.

William Spears, Palatine, was cut by a saw at his home. Another broken bone-fall victim is Bonnie Walworth, 8, of Arlington Heights, who fell out of a swing and broke her right arm. John Kapella, 25, of Joliet, slipped on some sheet steel and fractured his left leg.

Teddy Klein, 7, of Glen Ellyn, fell out of a tree and broke his left arm. When she fell out of a moving car Rosemary Ratliff, 9, of Rolling Meadows, suffered bruises on her left knee, ankle, and right arm.

JAMES SCHULTZ, 8, of Palatine, fell off steps, and suffered a one-inch cut over his right eye. Stitches were taken. Edward Augustin, 27, of Mt. Prospect, suffered a possible rib fracture when he fell from a ladder onto a picket fence. He was admitted to the hospital.

First and second degree burns were treated on the arms of Lorene Cricks, 45, of Arlington Heights. She suffered these when an oven blew up. Mary Schmidt, 54, of Elk Grove, suffered a broken finger when she caught her right hand in a garage door. (B8

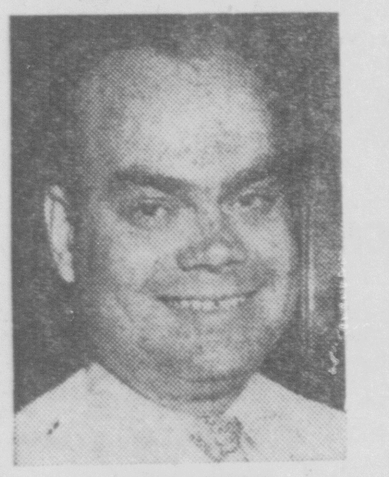
the HARRIS huddle



GEORGE HARRIS

Last week I made the statement that we lived in a country where we could vote for the man of our choice. It has also occurred to me that many of us have the choice of keeping the health we possess. Possibly that seems like a trite statement, but, nevertheless, it is true.

Most of us are blessed with good health, and with that as a base we go on and do lots of wonderful things in this world; but without health, most other things are useless. Health, which is God-given, should be treated as one of our most prized possessions because it is. Seeing your family doctor is one of the best ways I know to protect your health and to prevent many illnesses that may occur. We, at Harris Pharmacy, stand ready to serve you with one of the finest prescription centers to be found, and we would much rather fill a prescription for a preventative than for a cure.

If we have not had the pleasure of serving your prescription needs, won't you give us a try in the very near future? Thank you.

LUTHERANS BELIEVE...

In infant baptism.

And Lutherans believe it should be practiced because it reveals and emphasizes the grace of God.

When a child is baptized in infancy, it comes at a time when the child isn't even aware of the act, at a time when the child can't appreciate the act, at a time when the child can't even say thank you.

So, God comes to the child, at that point, and makes that child His child, giving to that child the promise of eternal life through Jesus Christ.

Later in life the child becomes aware of faith in Jesus Christ. As he looks back, he realizes that something or someone led him to this act of faith.

Finally, he comes to the conclusion that it all began back there in baptism when God came to him, asking for nothing.

Thus, God comes before it's convenient for the receiver to do anything in return—and that's indicative of the person of God, who is always doing that sort of thing.

Lutherans believe that God approaches man before man can ever approach God. Infant baptism is but one significant expression of this wooing of God.

The twenty-six Northwest Suburban Lutheran congregations invite you to worship with them next Sunday

Moskal Family Dedicates 22 Years to Legion Work

Little did the Frank Moskals of Rand rd., Arlington Heights, realize how active their family would be in the American Legion and its auxiliary when they joined the Portage Park units 22 years ago.

Included in this devoted Legion family are a father, mother, son, two daughters, a daughter-in-law, a son-in-law and five granddaughters.

When the post and auxiliary held its joint installation of officers recently, Mrs. Marilyn Moskal Barody was installed as president of the auxiliary; Mary Lou Moskal Ruckoldt was installed as second vice president; Mrs. Moskal, junior advisor, officiated as registrar for the evening; and Mr. Moskal was installed as service officer of the post.

AN UNUSUAL presentation was made to Mrs. Barody: A gavel, handmade by her father and used by her mother when she was president, was in turn, handed down to her daughter. Mrs. Barody was also presented with 128 paid up 1961 members, which is 97 per cent. Her first function as president was the ninth district auxiliary rehabilitation forum held at post headquarters.

As second vice president, Mrs. Ruckoldt also serves as ways and means chairman and she and her committee report that they have outlined an interesting and unique year, in keeping with the tradition of Portage Park unit as being one of the finest in the state. (B9

Universalists Take Over 113-Year-Old Landmark

A 13-year-old landmark in Palatine has taken a new lease on life, as Countryside Universalist Fellowship occupied the abandoned Highland Grove school this fall for Sunday morning services and other meetings. The fellowship is renting the property from Daniel Bergman, a long-time resident of the area, who can remember going to school there himself.

The Countryside meeting house, as it has been informally named, is idyllically situated among trees and rolling hills on Ela rd. just south of Algonquin rd. "It seems remote from the bustle of the suburbs; yet it is such a pleasant little drive out there that it doesn't seem too far away, although many members and visitors come from as far as Roselle, Barrington, Franklin Park, and Elgin," commented one of the members.

"VACANT since 1957 when the district gave in to the march of progress and consolidated with the Palatine school district, it is in such a beautiful setting in the countryside that it is not hard to understand why many residents were a little sorry when it was abandoned," he continued.

Countryside Universalist Fellowship had been meeting for three years in the gymnasium and corridors of Parkside school in Roselle, and was "delighted" with the opportunity of putting the building to good use again.

A decorating committee is at work planning a new color scheme for the interior of Countryside meeting house, which is reported in good condition for such an old building. A painting bee will soon be scheduled, new curtains will be made and the basement will be partitioned into Sunday school rooms which will be ready for use in November.

SPEAKER for this Sunday morning will be Ray Houtz of Palatine, vice chairman of the group. His topic will be "What Liberalism Means to Me." (A13

County Dedicates Pauper Cemetery

A new cemetery, where the county's pauper dead will be accorded more dignified burial, was dediated Tuesday on the county - owned grounds near Oak Forest hospital.

It will be known as the Cook County cemetery and will occupy a 25-acre space next to county's nearly-filled potters field. First burials in the new cemetery will be made about Nov. 1.

PRINCIPAL SPEAKER at the dedication was Daniel Ryan, county board president, who said:

"Cook county's burial place for paupers and unknown persons is located on the Oak Forest property, not because Oak Forest hospital contributes any great number of dead, for it does not, but because the space is available on the 37 acres of county-owned land surrounding the hospital.

"These burials, averaging 265 a year, are mostly for unclaimed bodies that police originally had taken to the county morgue. Oak Forest hospital buries not more than one or two in the field each year, nearly all deceased patients being claimed by relatives for burial in family plots.

"In the new cemetery the deceased will be buried in concrete vaults in separate graves marked with concrete headstones. Heretofore, the wooden boxes containing the bodies were laid end to end in trenches eight feet dep, each marked with a wooden slab bearing a number."

THE NEW cemetery will provide for 12,000 graves and should be adequate for the next 40 to 50 years, Ryan said. It is on the eastern side of the Oak Forest grounds and is reached most readily from the east entrance at 159th st. and Crawford ave.

Following the ceremony, those attending toured the newly remodeled two-story Northwest Ward building of the Oak Forest hospital. The remodeling, according to Supt Schmidt, has consisted of dividing the building into 16 wards for 528 patients and into 16 utility rooms to be used as examining and medicine rooms, and as nursing stations.

Oak Forest still has a waiting list of 300, admittance for whom cannot be completed until February. Population at the institution now is 2,324 patients, including 63 tuberculars. A new building that will care for an additional 240 patients now is under construction but will not be completed for a year.

Park District's Classes Planned

Registration can be made at the park district office, CL 5-5381. Mrs. Phyliss deTillot will teach the Goren system.

New Book Explodes 'Myth' of Suburbia

A remarkable book, "Working-Class Suburb," by Bennett M Berger, has done much to explode myths, particularly the "myth of suburbia."

In the second chapter of his book, Berger, a young sociologist, raises again "The Question of Mobility," a question often answered by leading sociologists by equating "suburbia" and "social mobility."

MOBILITY IS that movement upward generally attributed to a family, whose "rise in income" enables them to "move out of its social milieu into one more in keeping with its aspirations and its new economic status." explains Berger.

However, in the suburb, Militas, Berger has selected for his study, a suburb near San Jose, Calif., he discovers that the auto workers living there completely distort the pretty picture "experts" have painted for us.

Seventy three pr cent of Seventy three per cent of their new tract homes as "permanent," he reports.

Speaking of age levels, he points out that 55 per cent of the 20 to 29 age group did not expect to become foremen; of those in the 40-49 age group, 70 per cent had no dreams of becoming foremen and those over 50 had no hopes of this nature.

THE SAME was true for 52 per cent of the rural born and 30 per cent of the urban born.

Also, 67 per cent of the skilled workers thought of their homes as permanent as did 84 per cent of the semi-skilled assembly line workers.

Questions raised about the children of these suburanites found most suburb dwellers vague or "utopian" in their attitudes.

Although many of the suburban dwellers feel their lives have been enriched or greatly improved since they left the city for the suburb and have achieved a "certain level of domestic comfort," most of them still carry a a lunch pail, don't belong to any organizations, don't entertain or visit friends much; there has been no increase in their church attendance and no Republican trend is noticeable in their voting.

They came from the city as a workingclass population; they still retain their Workingclass characteristics.

There is no sign of the middleclass change—no hint of an upward mobility or of new status, of a higher class aspiration, or of a desire to change their present milieu for one on a "higher level."

Berger's book forces one to reclassify one's concepts, particularily those which all too aptly categorize neat, pat layers of society.

THE CLASIFIER of social stratification may be miffed by Berger's sharper and deeper analysis of some of the nation's suburbs.

Increased opportunity gives the "traditionally downtrodden strata," he explains, a "minimum standard of living" which is neither "depressed" nor "deprived."

High wages, low interest rates and credit buying with "no down payment" allows the working class to "clothe itself in the symbols traditionally worn by the middle class."

He applauds this progress, but points out that this does not add to our understanding of social stratification by showing evidence of mass material well being and reporting that the country can be defined now as a middle class nation.

Class lines, he asserts, and status lines, are being revised upward. In short, the basic class and status lines are still there, still somewhat sharply defined.

THE PROBLEM lies in rebuilding our concepts of where the class and status lines end and begin on a different level.

But mobility becomes a useless question in a suburb such as he has studied, and a typical response is "You don't never get ahead."

For these, the suburb represents, he believes "the fulfillment of the promise of America or at least "what they have a right to expect from America."

And this may be true in other suburbs, perhaps in some of the Northwest suburbs where transition is unthought of, and "mobility" refers only to transportation.

Scouts' Jamboree Begins Tomorrow

Over 500 Boy Scouts, Explorer Scouts, and their leaders will hold a fall camporee at Lakota Scout Reservation on Oct. 14, 15, & 16. Lakota Reservation is located just northwest of Woodstock, Ill.

Participants will come from Arlington Heights, Prospect Heights, Mt. Prospect, and Elk Grove. George A. Peterson, district camping and activities chairman, will be in charge of the camporee and will be assisted by committee members Charles Oman of Arlington Heights, Ralph Smith and Peter Rodgers, both of Prospect Heights.

Eighteen commissioners, under the direction of Arthur Leu, district commissioner, and W. H. Granzin, assistant district commissioner, will assist the camping and activities committee.

THE GENERAL theme of the camporee will follow the space age with all problems based on a supposed landing on Mars. The boys will work on these problems while following a trail that has been laid out in such a manner that it will take all day Saturday for them to complete it.

Arrangements have been made for a Protestant service and a Roman Catholic field mass at the camporee site on Sunday morning. The camporee will officially end at 11:00 a.m. on Sunday.

The Blackhawk district camporee is one of five being held this fall in the Northwest Suburban Council, Boy Scouts of America. The northwest suburban council is an active, participating member of the Mt. Prospect combined appeal, Prospect Heights annual appeal; Des Plaines, Schiller Park and suburban community chests; combined chest and council of Niles Township; the united fund of Park Ridge, Inc., and the Barrington united drive.

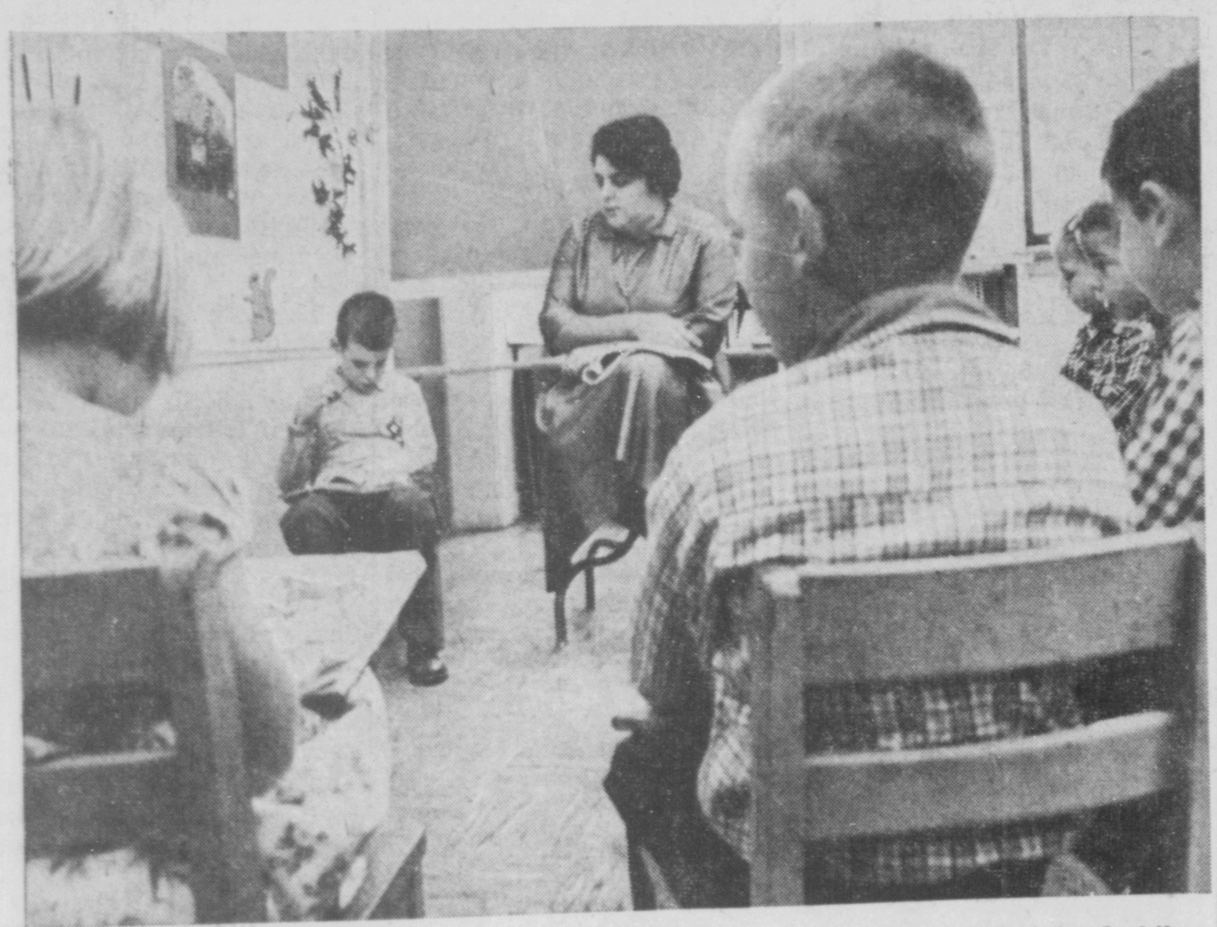
Schools Help Blind Pupils to Normal Life



SITTING IN A READING circle of first graders young Gary Sobel, Glenview, reads for his class teacher Mrs. Berl Greenfield. The only difference in Gary's class participation is that his books are written in Braille which he is learning to read at the same grade level sighted children learn to read the printed text. The young boy's blindness is almost forgotten by his classmates at Wheeling's Walt Whitman school through the school integrated blind education program. (B8

Special Classes Are 'Catalyst'

(This is the first of two articles on the education of blind children in the northwest suburban area. This week the elementary school program is discussed, to be followed next week by the high school facilities and curriculum for blind students.

by HELENE BRISTOL

"The children are the catalyst" stresses Mrs. Mildred Tins, developer of the successful "integrated system" of education used for blind students in Wheeling classrooms.

Blind students are not segregated into a separate class, but are individually put into their regular grade-level rooms. By learning to compete, cooperate, react and learn with all sighted classmates the Wheeling school district feels a blind child is more adequately prepared for life in a sighted world.

The friendship, understanding and acceptance by normal students is the "secret ingredient" or the catalyst which has become the cornerstone of the Wheeling blind-student special education program.

THERE ARE 15 children now attending classes from first through eighth grade in Wheeling's Walt Whitman and Mark Twain schools. The children come from all over the northwest suburban area under a practical special education agreement among schools, both elementary and secondary, in the Arlington Township, Maine Township and Palatine Township high school districts. Through this agreement member districts each establish and maintain at least one state-approved special education class such as classes for hard-of-hearing children, educable mentally handicaped children or children with other handicaps.

Each district sends handicapped children to the appropriate class maintained by another member district, paying the tuition for the child. In this way the burden of a complete range of special education facilities does not fall on any individual district but children from the area are provided with as many special education classes as practical.

Although the blind students are primarily responsible to their classroom teacher, two special "resource teachers" are employed by the Wheeling district to give special instruction and maintain Braille facilities. Mrs. Alice Prescott works with eight students from grades 1 through 8 at Walt Whitman school while Mrs. Kay Kacena works with seven children in grades 1 to 4 at Mark Twain.

BRAILLE textbooks, far more bulky than ordinary books, are provided to students covering the identical printed text used by sighted students. The problem of oversize books, or even several books, for each subject is solved by seating the blind students next to a bookcase where their books are stored within easy each.

About half the needed textbooks are procured from publishers through federal funds or tuition receipts. The balance of books are provided by Johanna Lodge 9 of the United Order of True Sisters, a Jewish volunteer group working through the Chicago Public library, or by local volunteer transcribers. The local volunteers are taught in special classes provided by the district. One such typical volunteer is Harvy D. Strelluf of Mt. Prospect, described by Mrs. Prescott as one of the best Braille transcribers in the country.

Through these sources not only textbooks but library books, resource materials and class workbooks are written in Braille. The resource teachers transcribe daily class material such as tests, compositions and homework for the classroom teacher and the students.

STUDENTS SPEND about a half hour daily with the resource teacher for special instruction in Braille writing, reading or use of a typewriter. Students in the lowest grades spend longer periods while they are learning to read and write. With the concessions to special Braille instruction, the balance of the schooling is maintained at the same level as sighted students. The children participate in physical education and classroom projects.

Social and emotional adjustment is an important phase of the "total child" program stressted by the Wheeling schools. For some entering students serious emotional and development problems have arisen during pre-school years, partly due to parental over-protectiveness or anxieties. In some cases emotional disturbance has been so great parents have been advised prior to admission to Wheeling's program to institutionalize their children. In almost all such cases both Mrs. Tins, now principal of Mark Twain school, and Mrs. Prescott agree daily class association with sighted children has succeeded in putting the blind child on the road to a normal life.

With the exception of two students, all children in the Wheeling program are victims of retrolental fibroplacia—blindness caused by excessive oxygen in incubators during infancy. With discovery of the cause of "RLF" six years ago the enrollment of new first-graders in the Wheeling program has this year started downward. School officials expect this trend to continue.

ESTABLISHMENT and support of the Wheeling blind program has been achieved and implemented through donations by many civic groups, notably local Lions and Women's clubs. The Braille writers, typewriters, special instruction materials and cash donations have made the program possible school authorities stress.

With blind students achieving the same grades and attainments as normal children, several years ago the need for furthr education at the high school level became apparent. A program was established at Arlington-Prospect high school district 214 making it possible for Wheeling blind graduates to continue without interruption their education. Young Maureen Ryan of Mt. Prospct, a Wheeling eighth grader today, is expected to be the next student to start the high school program.

CHECKING HER Braille watch, sixth-grader Debbie Splitt of Arlington Heights learns it's almost time for lunch. Debbie, a student in the Wheeling blind education program since first grade, has proved to be a gifted student who maintains high grades in her classes in spite of her sight handicap. All blind students in the Wheeling program are integrated with normal sighted children to prepare them for life in a normal sighted world. (B8

SPECIAL HELP ON A difficult arithmetic assignment is given blind fourth-grader Billy Williams of Palatine by resource teacher Mrs. Alice Prescott. Mrs. Prescott provides Braille materials, special help and guidance to students in the Wheeling integrated blind education program. Only a half hour daily is spent by students such as Billy with the resource teacher, with the vast majority of school work conducted in the regular classroom under the direction of the regular teacher. (B8

Couple Are Injured in Accident

A 72-year-old Arlington Heights man was admitted for surgery and his wife for observation at Northwest Community hospital last week following an auto accident at Barrington and Palatine rds.

Ernest Miller and his wife, Amanda, 67, of 132 S. Walnut, collided with an auto driven by Mary A. Oliver, 34, of 1640 Long ave., Chicago.

Police cited Miller for failure to yield right-of way. According to police reports, Miller stopped for a stop sign while headed east on Palatine rd., then pulled out and was struck by the Oliver car going south on Barrington rd.

PRETTY MAUREEN RYAN, Mount Prospect, reads her eighth-grade English assignment in a departmentalized junior-high program at Wheeling's Walt Whitman school. Maureen, blind since birth, sits next to her bookcase where the bulky Braille texts and work books are stored for her. A part of the integrated program for blind children of the northwest suburban area Maureen finds her way around the school without aid and is expected to graduate with her class next spring. (B8

Propose Face-Lifting For Northside Stores

A $200,000 modernization program at the northwest corner of Dunton and Miner is part of the new "face-lifting" the Arlington Heights north side business district can boast this Fall.

There are seven buildings in this development, which will form a bright "new look" to this area, with Ronald Stahl as architect and John Lindstrom, builder.

Buildings include the year-old de Forest TV store, 204 N. Dunton; the Lattorff Import china store, 8 W. Miner, a national exclusive store for these items and the biggest jobber of china in Europe, and the Arlington Florist shop, to open Nov. 10.

ALSO, the Dryden Cleaners, 12 W. Miner, a pickup store, with a plant near the Arlington Market, and a vacant store to be completely built November 10.

In addition, the old Dave's Shoe Repair store at 206 N. Dunton, will be torn down to make way for a new store in its stead, a one-story building, 41 by 15 feet in area.

In the same unit, also being rebuilt in the same two-story unit being torn down this fall is a vacant store, 204 N. Dunton, which will be available for a probable bakery and delicatessen. This was formerly occupied by Mors bakery.

ALL OF THE seven units will have a common Roman brick front, with aluminum and glass; all will have modern lighting, tile floors and will be enclosed by a steel canopy.

There are other recent and still developing programs of modernization, which includes the completely new rehabilitation of the Farm Bureau, 201 N. Dunton, across the street.

Here, not only was new heating and new, modern lighting installed, but an entire additional floor replaced what was formerly the balcony. This is now pracically completed.

The Landwehr Radio and TV store and appliances, 218 N. Dunton is this week completing its new aluminum and glass front.

A completely new modernization program with new front, ceiling and lighting brightens the Willson and Florence Real Estate office, at the corner of Northwest hwy. and Evergreen.

THE NEW Allstate Insurance and Joe's Barber shop sprang up at the same corner a year ago in a new building.

A new two-story office building was just completed at State rd. and Northwest hwy.

The Marathon gas station at State and Eastman came into being this last spring.

And the complete modernization of the old First Federal Savings and Loan association building took place recently.

There was a neighborhood coffee for Barbara Monday evening to catch those of her friends who wanted another visit with her before she left.

THE JOHN J. Lightners, 921 N. Harvard, took advantage of the beautiful weather to drive to Milwaukee to see Peggy at St. Joseph convent school. They took a few of the older children with them and were quite happy to find Peggy very much at home there and well adjusted to the school.

Jim Miller was glad to be back in high school Monday after a long absence due to a ruptured appendix. His recovery was delayed a few days due to an infection that came up after he returned home, which necessitated his returning to the hospital the second time. Jim, a sophomore this year, won't be able to be as active on the football team as he has been much to his regret. He is the son of the John F. Millers, 836 N. Ridge.

Last Sunday morning Dorothy and Harold Jacobs, 931 N. Patton, joined Our Saviour Lutheran church and in the afternoon 41 relatives and friends surprised them with a housewarming party. And there was no need for Dorothy to prepare food for all those people either -- they came with all the fixings for a buffet supper. Rather than give them individual gifts for the house, everyone brought gifts of money so that Dorothy and Harold can use them to buy the extras that are needed in a new home.

The R. C. Rathsams, 905 N. Patton, are enjoying a 2-week visit from her mother, Mrs. Homer Eads of Auburn, Neb.

HOMECOMING AT the University of Illinois always means fun for Barbara and Glen Rubenking, 948 N. Fernandez, and the only fly in the ointment this year was the fact that Illinois lost. Barbara drove down Friday evening with the children and left them with her folks, while she and Glen took in the game the next day. She also attended a banquet at the 4-H house.

Mrs. Elmer Schmidt, 736 N. Ridge, kept the cookie jar full and the hot chocolate ready over the weekend when Susan and several of her friends from the high school built a float for the homecoming parade that won first prize. The float, simulating a large swimming pool with two dummies inside (one for Glenbard and one for Arlington Heights) took shape right at the Schmidts' with the able help of Mike Ruhnow and Alice Lagod. Alice drove her 1929 Model A Ford that pulled the float and Mike sat beside her, while Susie sat in the rumble seat.

Friday was Susan's 17th birthday and she celebrated by going to the game. She continued the celebration the following night by inviting three friends over for a table of bridge.

BETTY SCHUETTE likes surprise parties. She especially liked the one given her Saturday night to celebrate her 16th birthday. Several of her friends came to decorate the Schuette basement beforehand, so that when she came down the stairs and everyone yelled "surprise" she was really surprised. A buffet supper was waiting for them, complete with birthday cake. They spent the evening dancing, playing records and charades. Some of Betty's relatives were there too, and those who couldn't come were there the following day to wish her a happy birthday. One of the gifts she treasures most is the lead crystal perfume bottle the fiance of her sister, Jean, sent her from Germany. The two girls are the daughters of the Clarence Schuettes, 101[illegible] N. Fernandez.

The Arlington high homecoming and Ronnie Becker's homecoming came at the same time, Ronnie arriving last Thursday just in time for all the fun. He made the football game Friday and had a welcome home party afterward. Saturday was another big day with the homecoming dance in the evening at which Ronnie and his sister, Marlene, double dated. Ronnie expects to be home for the rest of the month of October and will report back to his ship around the first of November. Ronnie is the son of the Werner Beckers, 1004 N. Ridge.

150° hot water is always on tap in a flameless electric kitchen

Twin heating units in a new Fast Electric Water Heater heat water as fast as it's used. There's no "saving up" for it to do the laundry or dishes. It's always there—150° hot—when and where you need it.

No pilot to light. Once installed, a new Fast Electric Water Heater is on its own. There's no pilot to light or go out, nothing to smell. Compact tank-type models fit in a closet. Modern counter-top models fit in your kitchen or laundry (offer extra work space, too). No flues are needed. No vents or long pipe runs. 2 Rezonings Set Wheeling Gas Stations

Two rezonings permitting gas stations in Wheeling township were approved by the county board Oct. 4 on recommendation of the county board of zoning appeals.

One involved the northeast corner of Elmhurst rd. and Hintz rd., owned by John P. Zawoda, which was changed from R-4 (Single Family Residence—10,000 square feet) to B-2 (Restricted Service) district.

The zoning board pointed out that Zawoda lives on 4¼ acres adjacent to the corner, and there are gas stations on the southeast and southwest corners of the same intersection, already zoned B-2. An individual sewage treatment plant and well will be drilled.

THE OTHER will be on ¾ acre on the northwest corner of Des Plaines River rd. and Euclid ave., owned by Ozell A. Atkins, 9650 Milwaukee ave., Des Plaines, and was also changed from R-4 to R-2.

The zoning board report pointed out that on Jan. 22, 1960, the Illinois Supreme court sustained a Circuit court ruling that the 1940 zoning ordinance was invalid in regard to the corner.

On March 8, the comprehensive county rezoning changed the corner to R-4 Single Family Residence (10,000 sq. ft.). The southwest corner of the same intersection is zoned B-2 and a gas station is planned on it.

THE COUNTY board also concurred in the recommended denial of a petition presented by Commissioner William N. Erickson for rezoning of property on both sides of Waukegan rd., between the villages of Northfield and Glenview, from B-4 (General Service) to B-1 (Restricted Business). Seventy per cent of adjoining uses are non-conforming the report stated. (B8

VIRGINIA TERRACE

It was a busy day Tuesday for Jimmy, son of Laverne and Bud Reichert, 1208 N. Chicago, as he celebrated his 12th birthday. An after school party was held in the home of his godmother, Mrs. Chester Blaz, Mundelein, and present to wish him a happy birthday over dessert and coffee were his brothers, Terry, Dennis and Michael, as well as the five Blaz children and several other guests. That evening, a family dinner party was held in the Reichert home, and sharing in the festivities were Jimmy's brothers and maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Witt, Chicago.

It was a dual celebration, too, for Jean, daughter of Vaneta and Ray Kellogg, 1341 N. Wilke, 8th October 8. After a scavenger hunt, for which prizes were awarded, Ruth Nordland, Jennie and Jackie Rollefson, Deborah Maybee, Marilyn Hacker, Sue Anne Herbert, Karen Kalinsky and Valerie Krieman enjoyed birthday cake and ice cream and each girl was bestowed a favor. Jean's brother, Whitney, was also present. A dinner party was held that night, and Jean shared her birthday festivities with her good friend, Orelle, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Doris, River Forest, and brother, Peter were on hand, too.

Although his ninth birthday was October 6, a family gathering was held the previous Sunday to honor Billy, son of Anne and Bill Cardinell, 1711 Olive. His sister, Candice, wished him many happy returns, as did his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cardinell, who gifted Billy with a wheel bicycle.

JANE COLEMAN, 1411 Clarendon, her sister, Miss Catherine Hilaire, who is presently living with the Colemans, and Jane's daughters, Colleen, Patricia and Maureen, recently returned from a 10-day trip to Bethlehem, Pa., where they visited their mother, Mrs. Emilie Hilaire, and other sisters and brothers, as well, The Coleman's son, Michael, remained behind in the capable hands of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Coleman, Chicago.

A dinner party was held last Friday evening for Johnny, son of Pauline and John Noerenberg, 1235 N. Race. Wishing him a happy ninth Tommy, sister, Susan, Jimmy Gumz, George Herbert, Billy Ross and Marianne Crouch. Special guests were neighbors, Mrs. Ray Crouch and her son, David.

Inasmuch as the Noerenbergs were in Milwaukee on Sunday for another affair, Johnny's birthday was honored there in the home of his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Lazarus Andrew.

Birthday cake and ice cream were served the guests of Wendy, daughter of Betty and Carl Bloom, 1345 N. Illinois, the afternoon of October 8, as she celebrated her fifth birthday with the help of her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Sven Dahlberg, aunts, Mrs. H. Dahlberg and Miss R. Dahlberg, sister, Cheryl, brothers, Eric and Lars, and cousins, Debbie, Donna and Scott Dahlberg, Rolling Meadows, and Pam and Jody Jedd, Chicago.

IT TOOK two weekend parties to celebrate the ninth birthday of Claire, daughter of Hazel and Taft Lowell, 1246 N. Yale, whose natal day is October 6. The previous Sunday a buffet supper party was held and three birthday cakes were needed, as she shared the festivities with her father, brother, Reid, paternal grandmother, Mrs. F. T. Lowell, and aunt, Mrs. E. Perschke. Present beside her grandfather, F. T. Lowell, and sister, Kay, were all other members of the paternal side of the family.

An afternoon party, in Claire's honor, was held last Saturday. Thrilled with the doll cake, doll and make-up kit favors and other party fare were her sister and brother, for whom there was a special favor, Mary Lynn Reese, Debbie Zare, Barbara and Jeanette Warner, Karen and Diane Oldenberg, Arlington Heights, Jean Millhouser, Linda Fluhrer and Janis Nighingale, a former neighborhood playmate.

Although several of the girls were unable to attend the bridge get-together October 5 in the home of Mary Ann Geer, 1515 Clarendon, Jane Coleman, Eileen Brown Dorothy Henneman, and Mary Funk enjoyed the night out.

A family dinner party was held October 4 in the Bob Twilling home, 1227 N. Illinois, in honor of their daughter, Paula, 6, and wishing her many happy returns were her brothers, Robbie and David, and sister, Andrea.

Lori, daughter of Joan and Kenny Herrmann, 1443 N. Race, was guest of honor October 7 at a party attended by her brothers, Kenny, Robert and Tommy, and Andy and Laura Staubitz and Frankie and Lisa Recilio. Present at a family dinner party Saturday to wish Lori a happy second birthday were her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Johnson, Palatine, and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Herrmann, Chicago, aunt, Mrs. Marcella Prestiano, and cousins, Carol and Marlene, and aunt and uncle, Marilyn and Bill Owen, Virginia terrace.

GAMES, prizes, birthday cake and ice cream all helped to make the seventh birthday party of Roxanne, daughter of Marva and Bernhard Kuhl, 1518 Clarendon, a memorable one. Present Saturday afternoon to share in the festivities were her sister, Carol, Linda Cech, Kathy and Vicki Schmidt, Barbara Warner, Shirley Rozdalovsky, Mary Kay and Patty Henneman, Karen Garland and Cheryl Clarkson. Dawn Dolejs was unable to attend. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Kuhl, Chicago, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Stockfish, Arlington Heights, and aunts, uncles and cousins were present last Friday at a family gathering.

Gloria Kalous, 1236 N. Chicago, and her children, Melody and Booner, recently returned from a 5-week stay with Gloria's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Schmidt, Woodland Hills, Cal. Initial reason for the visit was the ill health of Mrs. Schmidt, but inasmuch as her health improved greatly after Gloria's arrival, she and the children were able to enjoy a visit with her sister and family, who live nearby. They also did a good deal of sightseeing.

A luncheon party was given by Betty and Earl McAllister, 1111 N. Wilke, October 5, in honor of their daughter, Lauretta, who was 4. Present were her brother, David, Marie Sottung, Christy Sadowski, Linnea Berry, Arlington Heights, and Allen and Laurie Lieser, Rolling Meadows. Present at a dinner party that evening were Lauretta's brother, sister, Gail, paternal grandmother, Mrs. Clara McAllister, and aunt, Miss Mae McAllister, both of Rolling Meadows.

MARY ANNE, daughter of Ellen and Rob Wiley, 1329 N. Race, was the celebrant at an afternoon party October 8, as her sister, Susan, Patty Yore, Jeannine Kearney, Carol Cockrell, Donna O'Brien, Linda Koepple and Debbie Husted wished her a happy 11th birthday. Each was presented with a pearl necklace favor. A family party Sunday included her sisters and brother, Susan, Patricia, Deborah and Michael, and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Ann Wiley, Elmhurst.

Although Michael Herbert and Mark and Michael Moustakis were unable to attend the luncheon party held for Jamie, son of Margaret and John Noon, 1221 N. Chicago, October 8, his brothers, John Patrick and Jonathan, Nancy Wayne, Greg Schafer and Michael McGuire voiced a happy fourth birthday that day amid Bozo the Clown decorations. A family celebration had been held on his natal day, October 5, at which his sister, Margaret, was present, also.

Katherine Anne, infant daughter of Audrey and James Ostler, 1216 N. Yale, was baptized last Sunday in St. James Catholic church. Godparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Garry, Hatboro, Pa., were stood for by proxy by neighbors, Lorraine and Bob Twilling. The Twilling family and other Terrace friends, the Joe Herrity family as well as Katherine's sister, Nancy, and brothers, Jimmy, Ray, Tommy and Bobby, were all guests at a buffet dinner party later in the day in honor of the occasion.

A LUNCHEON party, was held October 8 in honor of Bobby, son of Eleanore and John Blomquist, 1248 N. Illinois. Wishing him a happy fifth birthday were his sister, Eaine, brother, John, Freddie Miller, Danny and Michael Yore, David Zare, Tommy Larson and Jeff and Mark Drews. Playmates Mark and Michael Moustakis were unable to attend.

Mrs. Marie Bender, 1119 N. Wilke, spent a long weekend in the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wermuth, Chicago. Highlight of her visit was the party held Sunday in honor of her granddaughter, Camille, who was confirmed earlier in the day, and Mrs. Bender's great-grandson, Bradford, who had recently been christened.

David Yates, 1522 W. Oakton, and the children, Leslie, Lisa and David, bid their wife and mother, Sandy, a happy farewell last Tuesday as she left on a 5-day vacation trip to visit former Terrace neighbors, Nancy and Dick Quinn and their five children in Springfield. Sandy reports that she had a wonderful time, just relaxing, having a good visit with the Quinns, dining out and managing an interesting visit to New Salem state park. (A

Metropolitan Phone Service Is Expanded

Telephone calls to all Des Plaines phones will no longer be billed as message unit calls for metropolitan service customers in Arlington Heights, Mt. Prospect, Prospect Heights and Rolling Meadows when the new, expanded Metropolitan Service plan becomes effective, said G. W. Kaucher, Illinois Bell manager.

At present, Metropolitan Service customers calling Des Plaines from these communities pay charges of two message units (8½ to 9½ cents) for station-to-station calls of five minutes or less (with overtime charges when they talk longer). These unit charges would be entirely eliminated under the new plan.

In turn, calls from Des Plaines customers who have similar service would be toll-free to telephones here.

WITH THE addition of Des Plaines to the calling area, metropolitan service customers with CLearbrook 3-5-and 9 numbers can call more than 48,000 phones on a toll-free basis.

"Mtropolitan service is an optional telephone service," Kaucher explained. "It provides a larger toll-free calling area than does local area service. Within this expanded calling area, residence and business Metropolitan Service customers may make as many calls as they wish, and talk as long as they like, without any unit charges.

In addition, residence customers in Arlington Heights, Mt. Prospect, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows having metropolitan service, will have a unit allowance included in their basic monthly charge, according to Kaucher.

These untis will apply on calls to Chicago, and to other exchanges within the metrolitan calling area which are beyond the expanded, unlimited toll-free calling boundaris.

SIXTY UNITS a month (equivalent to $2.80 in unit charges) will be included for one-party metropolitan service residents customers; 40 units (equivalent to $1.90 in unit charges) for two party metropolitan service residence customers.

With this new message unit feature and the expanded toll-free calling area, Kaucher said, the separate charge for additional message units will be substantially reduced for residence metropolitan service customers.

Rates for the expanded metropolitan service for most CLearbrook 3-5 and 9 business customers would be increased about 12 cents a day. Rates for the expanded metdence customers would be increased 6 cents a day for 2-party service (including the 40 message unit monthly allowance, worth $1.90) or 9 cents a day for 1-party service (including the 60 unit monthly allowance, worth $2.80).

THE NEW plan will go into effect for metropolitan service customers coincident with the date shown on their November telephone bill.

Kaucher said that, based on past experience the company expects a substantial increase in calling to phones added to the present metropolitan service calling area. The large amount of new equipment which has been installed is needed to handle the greater volume of calls.

There will be no change in the present calling area or charges for non-metropolitan service customers. (ACM

Members of the league will present a skit on mite boxes and refreshments will be served. Everyone is invited.

Congo Agriculture Teacher To Speak to Methodists

A young Methodist layman, who has been developing a demonstration farm in the Congo interior for four years, will be guest speaker at the First Methodist church of Arlington Heights Sunday evening, Oct. 16.

Donlad E. Collinson, whose American home is Clinton, Iowa, has returned to the U.S. for a year's furlough from missionary service. After his arrival at the Wembo Nyama Methodist station in 1956, Mr. Collinson was appointed to a triple job teaching agriculture in a teacher-training school, supervising the boarding department for 100 boys and developing a model farm.

ON THE demonstration farm, each African boy has his own garden and takes his turn on teams which care for the chickens, sheep and rabbits. Under Mr. Collinson's direction, the boys learn shepherding, vaccination, feeding of livestock, and sanitation. Students also work in oil-palm and coffee plantations.

Studying at the University of Missouri at Columbia and the Iowa State University at Ames, Mr. Collinson was graduated from the latter school in 1951 with a bachelor of science degree in agriculture. For three years before becoming a missionary, he was a vocational agriculture instructor in Belmond, Iowa.

Women in the Air Force Needed for Vital Jobs

Much has been said and written about the crucial need in this age of space for trained airmen specialists, but the maintenance of adequate defense during this critical period also requires the voluntary services of WAF personnel- Women in the Air Force. It is the young American women who can best supplement our manpower, just as over 300,000 did during World War II. Servicewomen have already established their rightful place in this new era and have a great and expanding future before them. A wide variety of jobs in the many career fields of the Air Force are currently open to WAF, between ages of 19 and 27, who can otherwise qualify for service. Necessary requirements are at least a high school education and the ability to pass normal entrance examinations.

Once accepted they may perform vital jobs on AF installations both in the United States and in overseas areas. Duties range from administration, supply, personnel and medical services to such specialized positions as weather forecasting, photo interpreting, photomapping, air traffic control and flight traffic specialist.

The local Air Force Recruiter in this area is Sgt. Dyment, whose office is at 100 Meacham ave., Park Ridge, TA 3-0180.

Marines at Glenview Probe Voting Rules For Coming Election

As a result of a lecture by Seymour Fox, assistant corporation counsel for Chicago, on Illinois voting regulations and the importance of voting to Headquarters squadron, Marine Air Reserve Training command, Glenview, Sept. 27, some military personnel who meet the minimum requirements will now be able to vote in the November national elections from local precints.

Marines who did not live off the Federally-owned Glenview Naval Air station were not sure if they met the Illinois legal residence requirements. Some of their home states are not carrying them on their voting rolls and the men thought they would not be able to vote.

However, after the lecture, Fox checked with the Cook County Clerk for a more detailed explanation of local voting regulations. It was decided the Marines would be able to vote and arrangements are now being made for them to cast their ballot in Cook County.

Airman Rosenblatt graduated from Arlington high.

Upon completion of special technical training at the Air Force Technical Training center, airmen are assigned to operational units of the USAF Aero-space Force.

Local Boys Enter USAF

The month of October will bring new quotas and additional opportunity for young men to join the USAF Aerospace Force. Information may be had by calling TAlcott 3-0180, which is the U.S. Air Force Recruiting office in this area.

Q. A close girl friend of mine recently lost her mother, and now this friend's birthday is approaching. Is it all right, under these circumstances, for me to send her a card?

A. Yes, but it would be better to avoid anything gay or humorous, or any card wishing "Happy Birthday." An appropriate message would be "Thinking of you on your birthday."

A. The young woman's.

Q. When a girl is introducing the man to whom she is engaged, should she refer to him as her fiance?

Merit Scholarship Tests

Commendation To 52 Teen Scholars

School officials of Palatine, Arlington and Prospect high schools this week announced a total of 52 students who received formal letters of commendation on the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying test given last spring.

Of the 52 students, 20 are students at Palatine high school; 17 students are at Prospect high school and 15 students are from Arlington high school.

Letters of commendation are being awarded to some 28,000 students throughout the United States in recognition of their excellent performance on the National Merit Scholarship qualifying test.

THE NATIONAL Merit Scholarship corporation gives recognition to two groups of students who achieve high scores on the merit qualifying test. The semifinalist group is composed of the highest scoring students in each state and United States territories. Some 10,000 semifinalists will take a second examination in December to establish further their eligibility to receive merit scholarships.

The second group of students who have received Letters of Commendation are from 15,000 schools who took part in the merit qualifying tests last spring. The test is a three-hour examination covering five separate areas of educational, development.

Stalnaker pointed out this week that the "letters of commendation provide tangible recognition of the commended students' high ability." He expressed hope that the recipients will continue their education to benefit themselves and their nation.

Local School Leaders Take Part in Parley

Two Arlington area school officials took a prominent part in the fall conference of the Tri-County division of the Illinois Association of School Boards Monday at the Hilton hotel, Chicago.

Presiding at the one of eight panel discussions was L. W. Bredehoft, president of the board of education of Arlington Heights elementary district 25 and vice-chairman of the executive committee of the Tri-County division of the I.A.S.B. Topic for the discussion was "Local control—How is it affected by state and federal aid?"

Harold L. Slichenmyer, superintendent of Arlington-Prospect high school district 214, spoke on curriculum correlation between elementary and secondary schools at another of the panel discussions.

REPRESENTATIVES of school boards and school officials from districts in the Lake, DuPage and Cook county areas were present at the fall meeting which was highlighted by dinner in the Grand Ballroom. Main dinner speaker was Fred Harvey Harrington, vice president in charge of academic affairs at the University of Wisconsin. Dr. Harrington spoke on whether high school graduates are ready for college.

Praising the work done by elementary and secondary schools in meeting the vast influx of pupils, in building new schools, raising teachers' salaries and improving curriculum, Dr. Harrington pointed out three fields where much work remained. He first urged schools to make sure students do not waste talents but are directed to the proper schools and studies for higher education. He pointed out the nation could no longer afford to waste the talents of youth.

A further point made by Dr. Harrington was the need to recognize gifted children, not only giving them further academic work and studies but to help them to develop their creativity and encourage originality.

Dr. Harrington also urged educators to teach children to be critical, speaking out against, as well as for, subjects.

SLICHENMYER described for the panel meeting on curriculum correlation the work of the Arlington Area Educators council, started 11 years ago for all elementary and high school teachers in high school district 214.

He stressed how the work of the group had aided in improving and coordinating curriculum not only with the high school but with nine public elementary school districts, three Lutheran schools and six Catholic schools who send pupils to Arlington high schools.

AT THE PANEL discussion on federal and state aid, it was stressed that although state and federal funds have brought some controls, only 2.47 per cent of the total Illinois educational budget represented federal funds and 15.69 per cent was received from state funds.

The balance of more than 80 per cent represented local taxes.

Elmhurst Savings Officially Opens New Quarters

The Elmhurst Federal Savings and Loan association cut "red tape" instead of a ribbon recently at a ceremony which officially launched its new quarters at First st. and Addison ave.

Toni Lee Scott, nationally known songstress currently appearing at Mr. Kelly's in Chicago, was the honored guest who assisted officials in the ceremony.

Instead of the usual ribbon, Theodore M. Wilson, president, and Fred A. Messerschmidt, secretary, employed red tape with a huge adding machine tape bow in the center to symbolize the streamlined services now available in the association's modern offices.

THE APPEARANCE of Miss Scott, who has appeared on the "This Is Your Life" television show, not only tied in with the association's open house but also its observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week which ends October 8.

Following loss of a leg in an accident, Miss Scott's determination to continue in her chosen field inspired her to found the Marjorie foundation which assists underprivileged people in obtaining artificial limbs.

Elmhurst Federal Savings is holding an open house to give the community an opportunity to visit the new quarters. Free gifts and prizes, plus interesting exhibits of currency and early Elmhurst relics are included in the open house features. The event ends October 22.

Realtors To Hear John Waner

John L. Waner, director of the Federal Housing Administration in Chicago, will speak at the regular monthly dinner meeting of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 13. The meeting will be held at the Elks Club, 495 Lee st., Des Plaines.

In his speech entitled "Why F.H.A.?", Waner will discuss the roles of the FHA as it relates to realtors and their business activity.

When the FHA came into being in 1934 about 35% of the American people were home-owners. Today, more than 60% of the American people own homes. FHA has been the dominant factor in this unparalleled growth.

Lawyer Files 3 Petitions For Rezoning

Attorney Robert E. Haskins, representing two bank trustees in rezoning petitions for two locations in Wheeling and Elk Grove townships, withdrew them and filed three new petitions covering the same two plus a second Wheeling location which the county board this week referred to the county board of zoning appeals. The original two Wheeling petitions included two adjacent parcels now zoned B-2 (Restricted Service) held by the Exchange National Bank, Trust 6930: seven acres on the northeast corner of Foundry rd. and Elmhurst st. which he wanted changed to R-6 (General Residence, 1,500 sq. ft. per duplex unit); and 12 acres north thereof which he wanted changed to B-3 (General Business).

One amended petition asked that 16 acres on the corner be changed to B-3, with the R-6 request dropped.

FOR THE same trust, Haskins filed a new petition to rezone ¾ acre on the west side of Rand rd., 817 feet northwest of the corner of Elmhurst rd., from B-2 to B-3.

The original Elk Grove petition, for Pioneer Trust and Savings bank, Trust 8997, asked that 1½ acres on the southwest corner of Elmhurst and Golf rds. be changed from R-4 (Single Family Resid. 10,000 sq. ft.) to B-4 (General Service).

The new Elk Grove petition merely changed this to two acres. (B8

Social Agenda Shrinks; Storm Windows, Leaves Take Over

Nearly all social columns begin to shrink at this time of the year, every year. It's the season for transplanting tulip bulbs, taking down screens and raking leaves, activties rarely reported in the who-did-what columns. Then comes an October week when everything stops, even the semi-social acts of shoo-ing the neighbors' kids out of bonfires. It's World Series time! Correspondents are glued to TV sets instead of telephones, but it doesn't matter because their news sources are glued to TV sets too. "Seriesly," it's a heck of a week but everybody's happy.

Bonnie Clausing was 10 years old Tuesday and celebrated with family parties before the big day and at her Campfire meeting on the day. Last Thursday her grandmother, Mrs. Martha Duensing, Chicago, came for a 4-day visit with the family at 913 S. Vail and a small party honored Bonnie that night.

Sunday night a dinner party for nine relatives added to Bonnie's pre-ten fun. Tuesday's meeting with scouting friends featured treats by the birthday girl and more congratulations.

LAURIE AND David Johnson recently celebrated their late September birthdays with school and neighborhood friends at separate parties in the Johnson home, 1008 W. Miner. After two parties in the same week with lots of hubbub at both celebrations the first rumor was that David was 30 on the12th and celebrated with 10 pumpkins.

The fact is that David and 10 friends celebrated his ninth birthday September 30 by carving pumpkins and being glad that Mrs. Johnson didn't have a conbination party this year, "cuz who wants to play with a bunch of giggly ole girls anyways?"

Five days earlier when Laurie and a dozen girl friends celebrated her 10th birthday the sentiments were exactly the same but from the feminine viewpoint. "Five years from now," Mrs. Johnson supposes, "they'll be back to a combination party for both birthdays."

LAST SATURDAY night Mr. and Mrs. Johnson enjoyed a reunion with 3 couples they met last year at a Colorado dude ranch. The first vacation together was a coincidence but such a mutually enjoyable one that the four couples arranged coinciding vacations again this past summer. Saturday night's reunion was the unusual result of the usual farewell-at-vacation time remark, "We ought to get together during the year sometime."

It brought Mr. and Mrs. Donald Wedlick from Muncie, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Curcuru from Birmingham, Mich. and the Russell Youngs from DeWitt, Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson met the out-of-towners in downtown Chicago and the double foursome dined, danced and laughed from the Ivanhoe to the Top of the Rock. The previous weekend the Youngs' daughter, Sonja, was a guest of the Johnsons.

MRS. GILBERT Taube, formerly of Mt. Prospect and now of Los Angeles, visited here last week with her brother and family, the Elmer Schmidts, 1209 N. Dunton. She is in the Chicago area for a 2-week reunion with friends and relatives and will return to the west coast early next week.

Saturday night the Schmidts' son, Wayne, returned from a week in Canada with three Chicago and Rolling Madows friends. They semi-roughed it near Dwyer, Ontario and came home with a deer, some tall tales about life in the wilds and four chinsful of whiskers. Electric shavers and a non-operative power generator do not combine to encourage daily shaving, Wayne reports.

Mr and Mrs. Harold Brobeck and children of Ohioville, Pa., left here Monday after a long weekend visit with the Earl Snodgrass family, 15 E. Fairview.

The Carl Larsens, recently of 102 S. Fernandez, were well farewelled at several neighborhood gatherings, pre-planned as well as impromptu, before their move late last month to Tacoma, Wash. They won't be lonesome while they're getting acquainted in their new home town as their daughter and family, the Thomas Flints, are also Tacoma residents.

MR. AND MRS. Lewis Brown are home again at 509 S. Chestnut after a 2½-week business and pleasure trip to the west coast, and they returned with their "celebrity record" intact. Without planning to, and going only when and where business calls, Mr. and Mrs. Brown have figuratively "rubbed elbows" with world-famous persons on two previous occasions.

They were in the same place in Canada last Summer at the same time Queen Elizabeth and Phillip visited there and earlier in the year had been in San Francisco when Premier Khrushchev arrived. This time they not only figuratively rubbed elbows but literally shook hands with King Frederik and Queen Ingrid of Denmark as the royal couple arrived at their hotel in Los Angeles.

A crowd was gathering outside he hotel as the king and queen arrived by limousine and the Browns, unaware of the reason for the crowd, approached on foot. The Danish rulers responded to the warmth of the crowd's welcome by hand shakes all around, and there were the Browns, shaking hands with royalty.

THEY had previously spent four days in Portland, Ore. where Mr. Brown attended the Pacific Newspaper Mechanical convention. Next Mrs. Brown enjoyed a reunion in San Francisco with a former Arlington Heights neighbor, Mrs. Carl Becker, who sent back greetings to local friends.

Mrs. Edmund O'Brien, Maureen and Peggy, 629 W. Campbell, attended the Parents day activities held over the weekend at Loras college in Dubuque where Kevin is a student and a member of the glee club which added to the program of entertainment.

MR. AND MRS. John Angus, 101 S. Fernandez, returned a week ago Saturday from a 2-week visit with relatives and friends in West Hartford, Conn., Boston and Vermont.

Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Bobenmyer of Peoria left here Monday after a 5-day visit with their daughter and family, the Sam Clarks, 608 S. Walnut.

Stuart Paddock Named President Of State Press

STUART PADDOCK JR.

Stuart R. Paddock Jr., vice president of Paddock Publications, inc., is the new president of the Illinois Press association.

Announcement of his election was made Saturday during the final business session of the association's 95th annual fall meeting in Springfield.

For the past year, he has served as first vice president of the press group. He is also a past president of the Cook County Suburban Publishers association.

BORN IN Palatine, the new president has resided all his life within the area served by the chain of 14 suburban newspapers.

A graduate of the class of 1937 at Knox college, Paddock started in the family enterprise as a printer's devil. Since then he has tried his hand at almost every job in the shop and office--from compositor to assistant editor.

He served four years in the army during World War II as company commander of a tank destroyer battalion.

His wife, Mary, is also a graduate of the firm's editorial staff and presently writes a weekly column, "Quite Contrary." They are parents of five daughters--Lee, Jerre, Deborah, Greta, and Rebecca and a son, Stuart III.

A son-in-law, Richard Dunkel, also a Paddock staff alumnus, is now editor of the family section of the Los Angeles Times. B

Learn Quickest Hospital Route

Do you know the quickest route from your home to the nearest hospital? You should because accidents in the home account for most of the patients treated in the emergency department of that hospital.

Your hospital's emergency department is one of the community's most important assets. It is well equipped, and is staffed 24 hours every day of the year to treat those who need immediate emergency treatment. Its purpose is not to replace the physician's office where routine care is given, but rather to provide immediate medical care for emergency cases.

WHEN A PATIENT arrives in the emergency department of the hospital, he is given immediate attention to stop critical bleeding and to ease pain. Breathing difficulties and any condition endangering the patient's life are tended to immediately.

There is always a doctor on hand to examine the patient. He may be a resident physician or a member of the hospital's staff.

In all emergency cases, the family doctor is contacted by telephone in order that he may be put in charge of the patient's treatment. If he cannot be reached, the patient has a choice of a member of the hospital's staff who is called in a like manner.

The physician in charge of the case is given a description of the condition of the patient, and he then prescribes what is to be done for the patient. Depending upon the nature of the emergency, he may or may not come to the hospital to personally render care.

HE MAY prescribe further therapy, a certain type of medication, an X-ray, discharge of the patient, hospitalization of the patient or any one of the great many services available in the hospital. The patient may be hospitalized in the hospital where the emergency treatment was given or he may be taken to another hospital, depending upon the wishes of the patient and the staff membership of the doctor in charge of the case.

The patient receives a bill from the hospital for services rendered by hospital employees. This bill includes charges for X-rays, special bandages, sutures, drugs or casts that may have been needed as well as a charge for the maintenance of the emergency department staffed by regular nurses and other hospital personnel every hour of the day and night.

The physician who takes charge of the case will also render a bill for his services as he is responsible for the treatment of the patient. (B8

Municipal League Supports Issue

The Illinois Municipal League, a statewide organization of city mayors and village officials, has joined the Emergency Committee for 50,000 campaign for passage of the mental health-public welfare bond issue.

Endorsement of the bond issue by the Municipal League brings the total number of statewide and local groups working with the Emergency Committee to more than 125.

The Emergency Committee for 50,000 (50,000 mental patients) was formed recently to coordinate and spearhead the activities of all civic, service, fraternal, business, farm, religious and other groups in Illinois that are working for passage of the mental health bond issue. Paddock Publications' newspapers are members of the committe.

AT THE conclusion of the 47th annual meeting of the Municipal League held in Springfield last week the 1500 registered delegates issued an official endorsement of the bond issue, and pledged to return to their home towns and cities and launch citizen campaigns.

A. L. Sargent, executive director of the league, said, "The Municipal League wholeheartedly endorses the mental health-public welfare bond issue and our members have pledged to personally campaign for this vital referendum. The city mayors, village presidents and other civic officials of our organization hope to set an example to be followed by all Illinois voters on November 8. The lives of 50,000 mental patients are at stake . . . the least we can do is vote for them."

The Bond Issue, if passed, will provide $150,000,000 for permanent improvements in Illinois' 26 mental hospitals and other public welfare institutions. The referendum requires a majority of all votes cast for state legislators. (A13

Arlington Tests R-B Saturday

Arlington's varsity Cardinals, improving with each game but still seeking that first triumph of 1960 take to the road Saturday afternoon to kick off the second half of the football campaign.

Coach "Bus" Ormsbee's Cards will give Riverside-Brookfield its Homecoming opposition in a West Suburban encounter on the Bulldogs' gridiron.

In the preliminary clash at 12 noon Bill Daletski will send his unbeaten frosh - sophs against a Riverside unit that also stands 3-0 in WSC action.

Arlington's varsity journey through the first half of the '60 schedule resulted in four losses, three in league play. Riverside didn't fare much better but did manage a victory over Maine township East.

THE CARDS won't be at their usual weight disadvantage Saturday with both squads boasting line averages of 172 pounds per man. Heaviest R-B starter in the forward wall is senior center Bob MacLain, a 180-pounder.

The hosts will have the advantage in the backfield with another 172 average with both quarterback Morse and fullback Bill Svrluga going 180.

Coach Jim Perkins will start four lettermen against Arlington, center MacLaine and three boys on the left side of the line. The other returning monogram winner is quarterback Ken Young, a 165-pound senior who has been alternating with Morse and Fred Nedji at the signal-calling slot.

RIVERSIDE hasn't been thoroughly out-classed in any game, even in the 26-0 loss to Downers Grove, and last week the Bulldogs held a LaGrange eleven that rocked Arlington to a one-point decision.

Over in Arlington's camp, Ormsbee indicated Tuesday that he was pleased with the improvement the Cards have been making even in defeat.

"There's been a definite improvement on defense," the veteran coach noted. "Maybe the four games of experience are beginning to show.

"Wallhoff (Grant) played a fine game on defense against Glenbard, but all the boys turned in improved performances, particularly in the second half. The game movies gave us some encouragement."

ORMSBEE WAS quick to thank the student body and fans for their support through the first half of the season, and he hopes the varsity Cards will be able to reward this backing with that first victory.

Arlington lost the services of linebacker Bob Bohac in the Glenbard game when he was sidelined with a broken leg. Bohac was just beginning to come into his own on defense, and the Cards will miss the fiery junior.

Ormsbee doesn't plan any marked lineup changes for Saturday's test but did indicate that junior Rog Freise would probably get the call at the right end slot.

FREISE PLAYED his first game last Friday and turned in a creditable performance although bothered by a charley-horse.

Senior Frank Hermes, a 156-pounder who has worked at end and quarterback, has been tested at halfback and could open at left half. Hermes has good speed but lacks varsity game experience.

The other questionable position is at fullback where either senior Mike Koenig or junior Roy Woodruff will start.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

THAT MT. PROSPECT golfer who surprised with an impressive victory in the Illinois amateur championships during the summer is in the news again.

Northern Illinois university's Ed Moehling, an Arlington high grad who lives at 711 S. Elmhurst in Mt. Prospect, is representing NIU this week in the University of New Mexico's sixth annual William H. Tucker invitational tourney in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

ED MOEHLING

Moehling, a 20-year-old junior, won the Chicago Jaycee tourney in 1956, placed third in the Chicago Sun-Times and Mt. Prospect meets in 1957, helped Northern win its first Interstate conference links crown last spring, then marched to the state amateur title in June.

The Tucker invitational brings together the southwest's top collegiate golfers plus a number of standouts from other sections of the country. The field assembled yesterday (Wednesday) for an 18-hole mixed twosome event which served as a tourney tuneup.

Actual tourney competition begins today (Thursday) with one round of 18 holes. Two rounds are slated for tomorrow with a single round Saturday winding up the 72-hole affair.

Defending men's individual champion is Dick Crawford of Houston University with Houston (who else) the defending team titlist.

Ed is Northern's first representative in the Tucker invitational and he is accompanied in Albuquerque by NIU golf coach Nye LaBaw.

Moehling survived a field of 180 golfers to win the state amateur crown last summer, gaining the coveted title with 2 and 1 victory over Joel Hirsch of Highland Park.

GEORGE SELGRAT, of 300 S. Kenilworth ave., Mt. Pro ct, a former member of the International Soccer league -American team, has been elected public relations directo the Midwestern Old-Timers Soccer assn. The group mposed of players, referees, and officials who were acti least 25 years ago.

In the decade before the start of World War II, Selgrat was one of the sport's leading goal keepers, and he spurned several offers to turn professional. He was an All-City goalie on the 1933 Lane Tech team which won the Chicago high school championship.

Later, Selgrat played with the Lincoln Park Rangers and the Spencer Coals, serving as captain for five years and participating in a number of All-Star matches. While still a player, he was active in various administrative capacities for the Chicago junior league, the International league, and the Illinois Soccer commission.

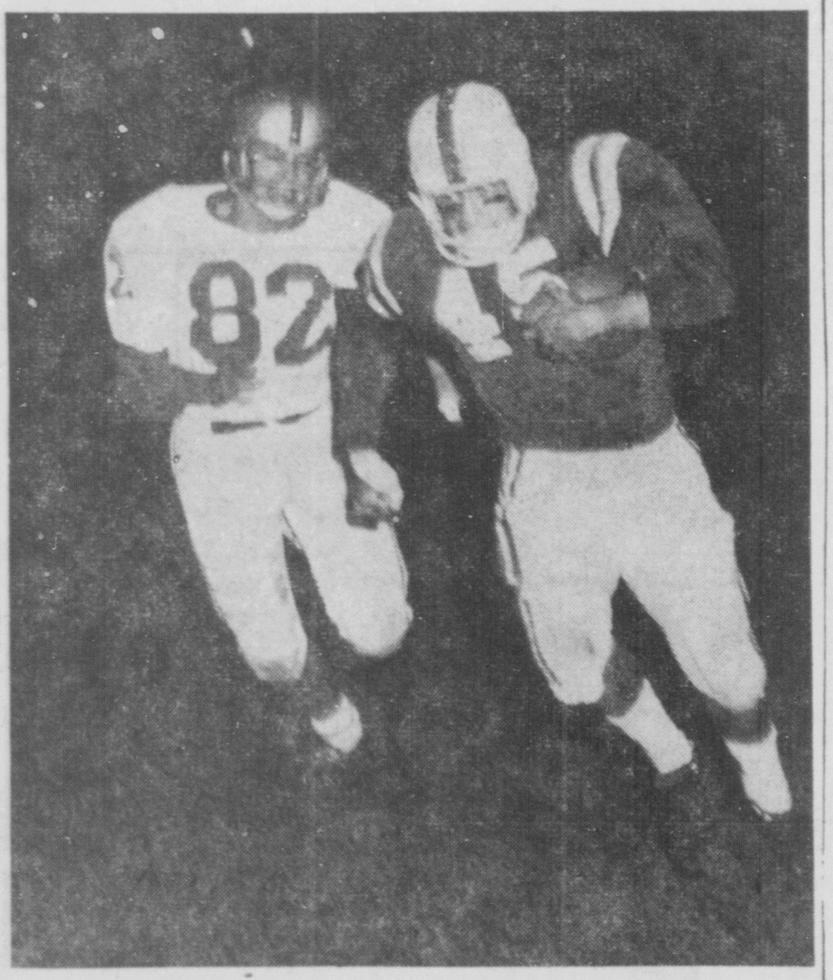
THIS 'N THAT:

Jeff Whiteman, a grad of Arlington high who is a freshman at Colgate University in Hamilton, N.Y., is a member fo the Red Raider frosh cross country team . . . Whiteman copped a third in a recent meet against the Ithaca College yearlings . . . Ron Hosek, of 219 S. Mitchell, Arlington Heights, is a candidate for the freshman soccer team at Yale University . . . Soccer is one of the fifteen intercollegiate sports at Yale . . . Hosek, who is majoring in science, picked up a varsity letter in football last fall at Arlington . . . Maine West has quite an athlete in sophomore Danny Humay, brother of the former prep pitching standout Jim Humay . . . We've always been impressed with Dan's baseball ability, watching him play in legion ranks, but we got our first look at him in football last Saturday against Prospect . . . He's a good passer, can run, and showed a lot of poise for a soph. . . . Looks like this boy will make quite a name for himself in area athletic circles.

For your future book at Michigan State: a freshman named Herman Johnson who's from Plainfield, N.J. He's labeled as the future Rafer Johnson, Olympic decathlon champion. Herman stands 6-4, weighs 215, and runs the 100 in :09.9, the 120 yard high hurdles in :13.3, high jumps 6-4, and broad jumps 23 feet.

Fenton's varsity victory over Crete-Monee last Saturday gave the current group of seniors at the Bensenville school its first football triumph in four years of trying on a high school level . . . Our hats are off to Bob Appleby for the job he's doing at Fenton . . . This corner's nomination for the unluckiest coach of the year is Mickey Lile of Lake Park . . . Lile is in his first year with the varsity Lancers, has the material, but has been hit hard by injuries . . . Right now seven starters are sidelined with injuries at the Medinah school . . . Hinsdale should wrap up the West Suburban football title Saturday at Glenbard . . . Bill Kastrinos has a fine team at Glenbard West, but it doesn't appear that any club in the WSC has the manpower to knock over Harvey Dickinson's Red Devils . . . A former writer for Paddock Publications, Pete Swanson, is covering Champaign high school sports for the Champaign - Urbana Courier . . . Pete is a senior in journalism at Illinois . . . Most impressive win of the prep grid weekend? . . . How about East St. Louis' 32-0 lacing of a Centralia eleven that had rolled up 129 points in its first three games!

The college scouts should keep a close tab on Andy Merutka, Palatine's brilliant fullback. That young man, only a junior and already recognized as one of the top backs in the area, carries 195 pounds and has shattered opponents' lines for 439 yards in 58 carries. One of the top students in his class, Andy is All-State material.



THERE GOES THAT MAN AGAIN! Glenbard West's Bob DesRochers, who carried 19 times for 104 yards in the Bards' 28-12 victory over Arlington, is off on another sizable gain. DesRochers, the conference's leading scorer, turns on the speed to get past the Cardinals' Grant Wallhoff (82).

AN IMPRESSIVE defensive effort by Prospect's Bob Glaser (9) averted a possible Maine West score here in last Saturday's important Interim assn., battle at the Arlington high field. Glaser batted down the pass intended for Ray Leonardson (right) with the Knights' George Pomey (40) also moving in on the play. Prospect won its fourth straight game 13-0.

Knights Check Rally Decision Maine West

by TOM McSHANE

The Prospect Knights staved off a second half comeback by Maine West's Warriors Saturday night to chalk up a 13-0 victory before a capacity Booster's night crowd at the Arlington high field.

The Knights were pressed hard for the first time this season by Coach Ken Olson's determined band from Des Plaines. Led by Sophomore Tailback Dan Humay, who ran or passed the ball on 40 of their 50 plays from scrimmage, the Warriors came back after a poor first half showing to play Coach Bill Beckman's squad better than even in the final two quarters.

Had it not been for two key pass interceptions, the story of this one might have been diffrent. Twice in the final periods Knight defenders picked off Humay tosses inside the Prospect 30-yard-line to break up scoring threats.

AS IT WAS, Prospect put its third Interim association shutout and fourth victory of the season into the record books with some solid first half ground work.

And, for the fourth time this year, the Knights scored the first time they got the ball. This one was a 17-play, 81-yard march that consumed most of the first quarter.

Led by Halfback Tom Petrosino, who loped for 54 of the 81 yards in seven carries, the Foundry rd. boys took the lead for keeps when Halfback Keith Voigt dove into the end zone from one foot away with 49 seconds left in the period. End Dennis Leonard's kick was wide.

The game looked as if would follow the pattern of the previous Knight victories midway in the second quarter when Prospect stormed 4 yards in five plays for its second score. This time Petrosino blasted over from the five after Voigt set up the counter with a sparkling 31-yard dash over the right side of the Warrior line. Leonard's kick was good, giving the Knights a 13-0 edge at halftime.

AN EXCELLENT peformance by the Prospect high school band filled the halftime intermission along with what must have been a sizzling pep talk in the Main West locker room.

The third period opened with a series of Prospect penalties that gave Maine the ball on the Knight 4 Humay ran and passed his team to the Prospect 23 before defensive Back George Pomey picked off one of his aerials on the five and returned it to the Prospect 39 to end the threat.

The Knights were forced to punt and Warriors started another march that carried from their own 22 to the Prospect 1 before the Knight defenses stiffened in the opening minutes of the fourth period.

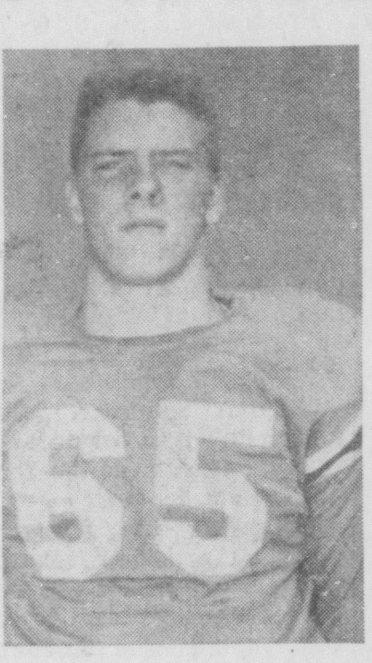
ANOTHER Prospect punt found Maine knocking again at the Knight 26. This time it was Guard George McRae who intercepted a Humay toss at the line of scrimmage.

The Knights got a drive of their own underway at this point and moved the ball to the Warrior 33 before Humay intercepted one of Quarterback Fred Lussow's heaves to break up the march.



GEORGE McRAE

Maine moved the ball to midfield and lost it on downs as the game ended.

Statistically, Prospect had a wide edge in total yardage, but the Warriors took advantage of a spotty Knight pass defense to outstrip Prospect in the first downs column, 10 to 9. Both teams were keyed high for the game.

Arlington Frosh Top Glenbard West

Scoring one touchdown in each of the first three periods, Arlington's frosh "A" football squad blanked a host Glenbard West eleven Monday afternoon, 19-0.

Coach Chuck Harrington's young Cardinals registered their third victory of the 1960 campaign as Joe Mueller accounted for two scores and Jim Ewart another in the rout.

Mueller took a 15-yard pass from Ewart for one touchdown and returned an interception 50 yards for his second score. Ewart covered five yards on a sweep following his 20-yard pass to Paul Splittorff.

Arlington was in command throughout the contest with the defensive play standing out for the local yearlings. In addition, Jeff Beckman and Mike Fitzpatrick turned in several long gains on offense.

Harrington's Cards, standing 3-1 for the season, host Riverside-Brookfield Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

N. Chicago Here For Friday Game

by BOB FRISK

The pre-season favorites for the Interim assn. and Tri-County football championships will collide Friday evening when Prospect's unbeaten Knights host North Chicago's Warhawks in a non-league headliner on the Arlington high field.

At the outset of the 1960 season Prospect and North Chicago were regarded as the teams to beat in their respective title chases.

Nothing has changed in the last four weeks to alter those choices.

Prospect is unbeaten after four games and has blanked three of its opponents. North Chicago boasts a mediocre 2-1-1 mark but is still favored to annex a Tri-County championship that only involves four schools.

FOOTBALL FANS accustomed to two games on prep football evenings will get only one for their money Friday. There will be no preliminary test with a 7:30 p.m. starting time for the varsity encounter.

North Chicago provides Prospect with its third straight home test and there's one more to come.

The Knights of Bill Beckman played host to Willowbrook and Maine West on the last two outings and will entertain East Leyden Saturday, Oct. 22, in the first game on Prospect's own gridiron.

COACH TOM Parker's Warhawks have yet to be tested in league competition with four non-loop battles already on the record. North Chicago tied Crystal Lake of the North Suburban, edged East Rockford of the Big Eight, routed Marmion of the Suburban Catholic, and lost to Proviso West of the Interim.

Parker has four lettermen back this fall from a squad that compiled a 5-2-1 mark in 1959. Heading the returnees are tackle Bob Boak, a 225-pound senior, and halfback Bernie Nesteroff.

Boak is a three-year varsity veteran and an All-Tri-County selection last fall. He slimmed down from 250 to 225 over the summer.

At AHS Field

Prospect (4-0)		No. Chicago (2-1-1)
180 Leonard	LE	Armstead	165
185 Aukamp	LT	Odom	214
190 Beasley	LG	Macknick	180
187 Hogarty	C	Frey	180
195 Rogers	RG	Jablonski	150
215 Kunz	RT	Boak	225
165 Empkie	RE	Michna	170
170 Lussow	QB	Wrona	175
175 Petrosino	LH	Jakaitis	160
160 Voigt	RH	Nesteroff	165
180 Andrise	FB	Bankston	175

TIME:
Varsity game only, 7:30 p.m.

PLACE:
Arlington high school field

COACHES:
Prospect, Bill Beckman; North Chicago, Tom Parker

NESTEROFF, who scored four touchdowns in the rout of Marmion, was the team's top ground gainer as a junior with 67 yards in 94 carries.

Parker has had some trouble finding a capable quarterback to replace the talented Ron Reidel, opening the campaign with senior Tom Jakaitis. However, Jakaitis has been shifted to halfback and halfback Stan Wrona has been inserted in the signal-calling slot.

North Chicago's line will average 183 pounds per man with Boak at 225 and junior Herb Odom at 214 the heaviest starters.

PROSPECT WILL feature a new look in its starting offensive alignment Friday with four new faces in the forward wall.

Moving into starting slots are 185-pound Mel Aukamp at left tackle, 190-pound Jim Beasley at left guard, 187-pound Mike Hogarty at center, and 215-pound Dick Kunz at right tackle.

Aukamp, an all-Interim performer as a junior, was credited with playing a "terrific" game against Maine West and his performance prompted the promotion.

THE SWITCH of Beasley from tackle to guard is one of three position experiments taking place in the Prospect camp this week.

Joe Turcek, a 230-pound senior, has been shifted from tackle to fullback, and quarterback Tommy Thomas has been operating at halfback.

Beckman gave a lot of credit to the Warriors of Ken Olson for their performance in a 13-0 defeat.

"They may have lost to Proviso West, but I know we played a fine team Saturday night."

Maine played without the services of its regular tailback Keith Connolly who was sidelined with a sprained ankle but got some capable workout of soph Danny Humay. The Warriors opened with three juniors and a sophomore in their starting backfield.

ALTHOUGH threatened at times, Prospect did register another shutout and has now played over 187 minutes of football without yielding a score. St. Procopius' Joe Schiller raced 70 yards for a touchdown in the first period of the first game but that's the extent of the scoring against the Knights.

The Foundry rd. powerhouse has blanked its opponents for over 15 straight quarters on the way to four straight victories!

Attendance Mark

Michigan State's attendance record for a single football game is 76,490, set in 1960 against Michigan.

MAC SAYS

by G. A. McELROY

BARRINGTON TOOK a long step toward the North Suburban gridiron championship by beating Libertyville last Saturday 14-13. It was a fighting, come-from-behind spirit which gave Barrington the game after Libertyville appeared to have the decision in the bag by 13-7 with only a few minutes to go. The only real tough game remaining for the Bronchos is at home with Crystal Lake on October 29.

Upset of the week was Zion-Benton beating Woodstock for the defending champ's third straight setback and Zion's first win in two seasons. Crystal Lake dropped McHenry to a 2-1 record along with themselves, Palatine, and Libertyville. Palatine looked like champs as they bowled over Dundee 39-0 in an impressive display of power. This week we pick Woodstock to beat Dundee by 19-0, Barrington to eliminate McHenry 14-6, Crystal Lake to take Zion-Benton 27-7, and Libertyville to outpoint Palatine 20-13.

In the nearby Northwest Conference Warren, Round Lake, and Lake Forest have each won three games with no defeats. Last weekend each won by an impressive score and each had a player score three touchdowns. Dave Sorenson got three for Lake Forest, Tom O'Brien scored three for Round Lake, and Len Lahey plunged over the goal line 3 times for Warren. It is our prediction that Warren takes the title.

Hinsdale eliminated unbeaten Downers Grove 39-12 and has only Glenbard remaining to challenge with an unbeaten record. Hinsdale has established itself as the West Suburban favorite. Proviso East trailed at the half 13-0 but came back to hand Niles its first loss 21-13 and remain the only challenger to a repeat Suburban championship for powerful Evanston who throttled Morton 26-7.

WE ONCE HEARD a professional basketball player say, "It is not so much whether you win or not, but whether you look good doing it." Of course in pro sports to look good while losing does help the fan following and mean more money at the box office. In high school it certainly reflects good coaching, good attitude on the part of the players, and good spirit and morale. Fans like to watch and have respect for an athletic unit which does not give up against strong opposition and always keeps its head if penalties are assessed strictly or loosely, whether opponents play rough or clean, and whether the breaks of the game go with them or against them.

Earlier in the season Palatine looked very good and then very bad. The past two weeks the Pirates have looked exceptionally good. We hope they have what it takes in spirit, poise, and performance to look very good at Libertyville this coming Saturday. Barrington has, over the past 10 years, gained a reputation for always looking good. Team spirit and discipline have become an expected thing in Broncho teams. Poise and confidence are developed through excellent coaching. Like the New York Yankees, a boy who dons a Barrington varsity uniform feels that he is good and can win and usually does win. And, on occasions when the Bronchos finish on the short end it is not from failure to do their best.

PALATINE HIGH will have a tennis team next spring. Dick Gavigan will direct the start of the sport and the Inverness Community Association has offered the school the use of two concrete courts for practice purposes. Palatine will play all matches away from home the first year. By the 1962 season Palatine High will have courts at the new school for competitive tennis.

NEXT YEAR LIBERTYVILLE and Crystal Lake High School districts will open second 4 year high schools in the communities of Mundelein and Cary-Fox River Grove. Both schools will be hurt athletically by the split and it is expected in the case of Libertyville that the new Mundelein school will have the edge on material. Scheduling games for these schools will be a problem. It will be the policy at Palatine, as we are sure it will be at other North Suburban schools, to drop some non-conference competition in favor of scheduling the new schools.

20 YEARS AGO (October 11, 1940)

Libertyville defeated Arlington 16-0 to justify their selection by "Mac Says" as the next Northeast Conference champ. Outstanding punting by Morici of the Cardinals kept the score from being even more onesided. . . . Palatine outran Wheaton in cross country to take a 19-36 decision with Anton Cipri, Jim Langhoff, and Silas Trepus taking the first three places for the Pirates. . . . Northbrook scored 2 touchdowns in the last 45 seconds of the first half to beat North Shore Country Day 14-0. Howie Strauss caught a pass from Santucci for one score and Karl Klein intercepted a pass to run 60 yards for the other.

10 YEARS AGO (October 13, 1950)

Barrington made it 20 straight grid wins in a row as they took Northbrook 28-0 on Friday and topped Arlington 13-7 on Tuesday. Roake and Heckmiller got the Barrington touchdowns. . . . Palatine scored a 25-12 upset to spoil Bensenville's homecoming. Frosh-Sophs added to the gloom by beating the Bisons 19-0. Ross scored twice and Day and Dejka tallied varsity touchdowns for the Pirates. . . . Palatine cross country team headed by 125 pound junior Gerry Herrmann and 85 pound soph Dick Ury beat Arlington for the second time this season in a double dual in which both Arlington and Palatine lost to Leyden.

Prospect placed six men in the ten top positions but couldn't bring home the big prize in a varsity cross country meet at Willowbrook last Saturday.

The host Warriors, coached by former Illinois great Stacey Siders, recorded a tight, 27-29 decision over the Knights of Ken Arneson in an Interim assn. meet. It was the second straight league loss for Prospect.

The Knights will travel to East Leyden today (Thursday) for a meet at 4:15 p.m. and will face Glenbrook next Tuesday, Oct. 18 in a final tuneup before the conference meet.

Prospect's Frosh-Sophs Win, 19-0

Dan Johnson countered the first six-pointer on a 25-yard off tackle slant, and Tommy Cross covered 35 yards on a sweep for the second touchdown. Ron Holbrook concluded the Prospect scoring with a 60-yard dash.

Wissen's frosh - sophs will travel to East Leyden Saturday for an Interim test at 9:30 a.m. The Knights won't be back home until the Oct. 29 battle with Maine West.

Central Rally Stops Lincoln Squad, 15-7

Last Sunday the Central Seniors of the Mount Prospect midget football association came from behind and decisively outplayed Lincoln in the second half of their game to take a 15-7 victory.

Mike Zadel scored on a 40 yard run and Bill Henry ran through the Lincoln team for a 20 yard touchdown tally. Steve Giuntini tackled a Lincoln ball carrier behind the Lincoln goal line to give Central a safety and the final two points.

Keith Bergen used his height to good advantage in catching eight passes from Jack Bley, one for a point after touchdown. Bill Schell also played a fine game in the backfield for the winners, running 50 yards for a touchdown only to have it nullified on an offside penalty.

RICKY HENDERSON scored the only Lincoln touchdown on a 16 yard run and was helped in the backfield by Arnold and Guerin. The losers' line was highlighted by the hard-charging play of Payne, Smith, Wesley, Peterson, Brown and Vankampen.

Sunset trounced the Lions 26-0 with Mike Shanley scoring three touchdowns on runs of 15, 8 and 3 yards, and a pass from Tim Walinski to Ken Vomacka scored the final tally. Denny Wilkinson and Bill Edgley also played well in the backfield while Dave Webb, Jack and Dick Helmes, Don Wilkinson, Doug Lytle and Paul Demmert played outstanding games in the line.

Owens kept their record unblemished by beating Emerson 35-6. Touchdowns were scored by Leutz, McMahon, Haase and Lytle (2) and outstanding defensive play by Cooper held Emerson to a single touchdown, a 5 yard plunge by Peter Jay.

FAIRVIEW also kept an undefeated record by overpowering Prospect 32-19 on touchdown runs by Clow and McNamara (2), and touchdown passes, Joernberg to Whitely and Phillips to Ryan. Snyder also made some good gains and Robinson, Martin, Harris, Frederickson and Stiefbold were outstanding in the line.

In the Junior Division, Lincoln overpowered Central to take a hard-fought game 7-0 on a 20 yard touchdown run by Bob Arnold. Outstanding players in the backfield for Lincoln were Peterson, Smith, Arnold, Sophie, Anderson and Brown and in the line Ward, Stephens, Viger, Gorlack and Gedman.

Although Central was outweighed 5 to 10 pounds per man, some fine defensive play by Lehrke, Klingberg, Broadhead, Christenson and Nehmzow kept Lincoln from any sustained marches and, in the backfield, Wille, Logan, Ayers, Palubicki, and Packard turned in good performances with the latter's running and tackling serving as an inspiration to his team.

THE LIONS walloped Sunset 19-6 on two touchdowns by Paul Accurso and one by Bob Robinson. Crawford and Kohlrust were also outstanding in the backfield and Beck, Dorsak, Hughson and Hansen played well in the line for the winners. Sunset scored on a 50 yard pass play Jensen to Eaton and Crossan and Cunningham made some long runs while Eaton and Lang showed some fine line play for the losers.

Fairview took the measure of Prospect 26-7 on touchdowns by J. Phillips, Mutert and Martin (2) and some fine offensive play by Daley and Costello. Erdman, Jean and Irman played a good defensive game in the line for Fairview.

In the final Junior game, Owens beat Emerson 12-0 on a 35 yard touchdown pass, Simoni to Doherty, and a pass interception by Doherty in the final five seconds of the game for the second score. Skip Deyo also played a fine game in the backfield.

Grafton and Dean Deyo made several key blocks and Adams, Livingston, McMahon and Travisone played an outstanding game on defense for the winners.

Three Teams Unbeaten in LL Football

The 49ers, Cardinals, and Eagles maintained their unbeaten records in the latest action in Arlington Heights' Little League football program.

In the seventh and eighth grade division the 49ers edged the Lions 6-0. The Cards toppled the Colts 7-0 and the Eagles bumped the Packers 19-6 in the younger league.

The defensive play stood out in the 49ers' win with the victors counting their only touchdown on a 50-yard pass from Jerry Fink to J. Welton. Steve Tremberth turned in an outstanding game on defense.

MIKE FRASE scored for the Browns and John Shirley counted for the Rams in a 7-7 tie. Frase raced 28 yards around left end and Shirley covered 47 yards on his effort.

In the second quarter of the Giants-Bears game, O'Connell passed to Fink for 45 yards and a score. In the third segment the Bears returned the kick 80 yards for the six points.

The Eagles had no trouble disposing of the Packers, displaying an outstanding team effort.

Jim Reicher raced 65 yards for a touchdown on a double reverse as the Cards edged the Colts 7-0.

Glenbard West's Harriers Whip Arlington Squads

Two strong Glenbard West cross country teams registered a pair of victories over Arlington high last Friday afternoon in a West Suburban meeting on the Cards' home course at Prospect high.

The varsity Hilltoppers, second in the 1959 state meet, routed Arlington 17-49 and the frosh-soph visitors picked up a 22-37 victory.

Glenbard's Dave Stineback, sixth place finisher in the individual rankings in the '59 state meet, covered the Prospect course in 9:11 for a new record. Stineback was followed across the line by teammates Rick Cunningham and Jim Isaacson.

THE TOP finisher for Russ Attis' varsity was Jim Hendricks with a fourth. Other Cards figuring in the team score were Joel Martin (9th), Tim Smith (10th), Gary Brodnan (12th), and Tom Benson (14th).

Glenbard picked up the top two frosh-soph positions with Royce Husted the individual winner in its 22-37 decision.

Dan Bedford and Bill Moore came home third and fourth with Robin Auld seventh, Bob Dodge eleventh, and Terry Witt twelfth.

ARLINGTON'S two cross country teams will travel to Riverside - Brookfield Saturday. The frosh-soph meet will be held at 11:45 a.m. with the varsity test between halves of the frosh-soph football game.

There had to be a change in the times of the meets because R-B has its Homecoming Saturday. The various activities would have interfered with the original cross country setup.

Card Sophs Record 20-13 Grid Victory

Arlington's frosh-soph football Cardinals got the job done again last Friday evening but not before giving their fans some anxious moments.

The young Cardinals had to rely on another rally before putting away a determined Glenbard West aggreation, 20-13.

It was the third straight week that Bill Daltski's unbeaten Cardinals had been forced into a strong finish. Both Downers Grove and LaGrange threw first half scares at Arlington before finally succumbing.

GLENBARD West tied the count at 13-all with 1:15 remaining in the third period. Gary Summerfield did the honors on a three-yard crack.

Arlington waited until midway in the fourth quarter to punch across the deciding touchdown. A fancy run by halfback Ken Layden on a punt return brought the ball to the Glenbard 12 yard line and in three plays Ken was over with his third touchdown of the contest.

Joe Wertheimer swept right end for the extra point and Arlington held its 20-13 lead, the final margin of victory.

NEITHER TEAM could push across a score in the first period although Arlington moved to the Bards' 21-yard line before funbling.

The local frosh-sophs waited until there were 32 seconds remaining in the first half before registering that first six-pointer. A 26-yard pass from Close to Layden put the ball on the Glenbard 24, and Rog Lindstrom and Wertheimer alternated in working to the 17.

On a fourth and five situation Close dropped back to pass, was rushed, moved to his right avoiding tacklers and tossed a perfect jump pass to Layden who made a leaping catch and fell into the end zone for the score.

THE ATTEMPTED extra point was no good and Arlington held its 6-0 halftime lead.

Downers Grove came right back when Paul Richter took the opening kickoff of the final half and returned 75 yards before falling on the Arlington six yard line. In three plays the young Trojans were over and Richter ran for the extra point.

Layden then matched Richter with a beautiful return of his own to the Bards' 32 and in five plays Ken carried over left end for the tally. Wertheimer ran for the extra point, and Arlington was on top 13-7 with 6:05 remaining in the period.

THE STAGE was set now for the final heroics on each side with both clubs adding another touchdown before the final gun.

Layden, who boosted his season output of touchdowns to 10, led the local ground at-10, led the local ground attack with 64 yards in 12 carries. Wertheimer picked up 43 in nine efforts and Lindstrom had 13 for 26. Close's aerials covered 61 yards on three completions.

Glenbard's JVs Edge Arlington

A determined fourth period rally wasn't enough Monday afternoon as Arlington's junior-varsity football team went down to a 19-13 defeat against Glenbard West.

After trailing the entire game, the Cardinals of Sid Brown came to life with a fourth period rally.

A 70-yard pass play from Frank Hermes to Jack Mutti accounted for Arlington's first score and after recovering a fumble, the Cards tallied again on a 15-yard Hermes to Mutti aerial.

Hermes and Bill Cook teamed up on the only extra point.

Trophies Presented At Banquet

Team and individual trophies were awarded at the annual banquet of the Addison Golf League held last Saturday.

Trophy winners included Edgewood Lounge, first place, Park Plumbing, second and Werner Taping, third. Individual winners were Larry Thon for low gross, Art Malewski for low net, and Jim Perkins for the most improved golfer.

Arlington Homecoming

Glenbard West Rocks Cards' Eleven, 28-12

by BOB FRISK

Glenbard West's explosive ground attack, sparked by the fancy-stepping of Bob DesRochers and Pete Birch with some effective assistance from Johnny Reichard, had another busy evening last Friday.

The Hilltoppers of Bill Kastrinos rolled up 353 yards rushing and 17 first downs in sweeping past a host Arlington aggregation, 28-12.

Birch collected 129 yards in 16 efforts and DesRochers added 104 and two touchdowns in pacing the Hilltoppers to their fourth straight victory of the 1960 campaign and third straight West Suburban triumph.

Arlington was tagged with its fourth loss of '60 and third in loop competition on the Homecoming night set aside for the grade.

A NEAR -capacity crowd looked on as Glenbard West held Arlington's running game in check to the tune of a minus 12 yards but failed to come up with an effective defense against the aerial efforts of Tim O'Gorman.

O'Gorman, who scored one touchdown and passed for the other in his second varsity game at quarterback, connected on six of 10 tosses for 105 yards. His 45-yarder to Gary Gullett with 7:42 remaining in the fourth period was executed on a fourth and 14 situation.

The Hilltoppers drove 60 yards for a score the first time they handled the ball with Des Rochers, Birch, and Reichard all having a hand in the attack. Glenbard stayed on the ground for the 14 plays with Reichard getting the six points on a one-yard plunge. Ted DeLapp converted.

A 15-YARD penalty nullified another Glenbard score seconds later after the Bards recovered an Arlington fumble on the AHS 26. Walt Larsen shot through the middle for 18 yards and an apparent tally but the penalty cancelled things and Glenbard couldn't put over another until the outset of the second period.

DesRochers picked off an O'Gorman pass and returned to the Arlington 22 and in three plays the West Suburban's leading scorer was over from the eight. DeLapp added another conversion.

The Cardinals lost the ball on downs midway in the second quarter on the Glenbard 35 but picked up their initial touchdown one play later when O'Gorman gathered in a Hilltopper fumble and raced 37 yards for the score.

A GLENBARD drive following the ensuing kickoff was checked on the Arlington 20 when Mike Koenig recovered Birch's fumble.

Kastrinos' unbeaten Glen Ellyn outfit roared 52 yards for its third touchdown with DesRochers registering the clincher from two yards out. DeLapp followed with another perfect kick and with 8:05 remaining in the third stanza Glenbard held a 21-6 margin.

GARY GULLETT

With 5:42 remaining the Bards were home again with Birch sailing 28 yards on one of the game's prettiest runs. DeLapp's foot sent the visitors out to a commanding 28-6 lead.

MIDWAY IN the final period Arlington registered its longest scoring play of the season when O'Gorman hit Gullett on the 45-yard aerial. The counter came with 7:43 remaining and marked the first time the Cards had been able to push over more than one touchdown in a game.

Glenbard was pounding on the door again as the gun sounded with eight plays moving the ball from the Bards' 10 to the Arlington 21.

Prospect's JVs Stop Maine West In Interim Tilt

Prospect's junior varsity football team got the breaks last Saturday and went on to humble Maine West 27-13.

Things took a turn for the better for the junior Knights in the opening minutes of the second period after their Des Plaines rivals controlled the pigskin for the opening quarter, and gave everyone the impression they had an upset in the making.

The play that turned the tide was a beautifully-executed 53-yard pass from Quarterback Ken Groh to End Jim Hogarty. The play moved the ball from Prospect's 43 to Maine's five, and set up a sweep around left end by Fullback Mike Francek for the score.

TWO MINUTES later Francek added another brace of points to the Prospect total when he nailed Warrior Fullback Pinzke in the end zone for a safety.

The Knights poured in another seven two plays later after returning the Maine kick to the Warrior 30. Halfback Roger Owen scored the touchdown on a nifty inside reverse that caught the defenders flatfooted. Francek added the point.

Maine caught fire with a minute left in the half as Halfback Hughes teamed with Lunetto for a 55-yard pass play that made it 15-6 Prospect. Pinzke added the point.

The second half was a repeat of the first as Groh teamed with Hogarty on another long aerial for the third Prospect touchdown. This time the play carried 37 yards, and made the score 21-7 with 6:13 left in the third quarter.

George Grossi made it 27-7 for the Knights with 50 seconds left on the clock in the third period when he plowed over from the one.

Maine West scored its final touchdown with five seconds left in the game when End Ed Cook scored on an end-around play from the Prospect 23.

Morton Pontiac Cops Top Spot in Classic

Morton Pontiac broke a deadlock for first place in the Paddock Woman's Classic Traveling League by taking two of three games from Vernon Hills Restaurant Saturday night at Jeffery Lanes in Wheeling.

The two losses dropped Vernon Hills, bowling out of Country Lanes in Lake Zurich, into second place, tied with River-Rand Bowl, which took two games from Sims Bowl.

With Morton Pontiac taking first place behind a 523 series by Cy Cyhock and 504 by Pat Proebstle of Arlington Heights, Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights now has two first place teams. Besides Morton Pontiac, Timroth Plumbing leads the Paddock's Men's Classic Traveling League.

DESPITE losing two games, Vernon Hills managed to out-total Morton Pontiac, 2389-2381. A 199 game by Cy Cyhock provided the difference in the first game as Morton won by 11 pins. Morton took the second game by four pins as Connie Labo of Rolling Meadows, after shooting 125 in the opener, rebounded with a 183 to pace Morton in the second game, offsetting a 189 game by Bonnie Kuhn of Mundelein for Vernon Hills. With every member shooting 152 or more, Vernon Hills rallied to take the third game.

Bonnie Kuhn recorded the high series in the match, 524, one more than Cy Cyhock. Pat Proebstle had a 504 series.

However, it remained for Alice Ulrich of Chicago, to roll the Woman's Classic high individual series of the season, a 595 on games of 190, 201 and 204. Coupled with a 554 series on games of 167, 181 and 206 by Peggy Sparks of Rolling Meadows, the River-Rand Bowl five is now making a determined bid to capture first place.

A 201 GAME by Edith Wayne of Des Plaines and 197 by Ruth Beyer of Palatine gave Sims the first game Saturday by a wide margin. Then River-Rand began rolling, capturing the final two games to remain within one game of the league lead.

Alice Alten of Mt. Prospect and Dona Reynolds of Northbrook continue to pace Steve's Restaurant as they took two of three from Northfield Bowl. Alice fired a 560 series, highlighted by a 221 game, and Dona had a 546 series. Two Northfield bowlers rolled well, Ceil Borre of Wilmette had a 534 series and Gloria Lucchosi of Winnetka had two pins less.

Morton Pontiac will attempt to maintain its league lead at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at River-Rand in Des Plaines against the league's No. 1 scoring team, fourth place Steve's Restaurant. Vernon Hills Restaurant and River-Rand Bowl will battle for second place, while the two teams on the losing side of the ledger, Sims Bowl and Northfield Bowl, will round out the schedule.

Cardinals Fifth, Knights Seventh In Invitational

Lane Tech's powerful Indians ran away with the frosh-soph invitational cross country meet at East Leyden Tuesday afternoon.

The complete list of team finishers is as follows:

1. Lane Tech (66); 2. Glenbard West (98); 3. Downers Grove (130); 4. La Grange (144); 5. Arlington (147); 6. Proviso West (171); 7. tie between Prospect and East Leyden (174); 9. Glenbrook (206); 10. Maine township East (246); 11. Hinsdale (271) 12. West Leyden (275); 13. Riverside (278).

Frosh-Soph Harriers Win Two

Prospect's frosh-soph cross country team picked up a pair of victories in two recent tests with Willowbrook and Morton West.

Coach Dick Kinneman's Knights registered an 18-43 win over Willowbrook and a 15-48 rout of Morton West.

The three squads competed in a triangular test with the individual finishes figured in the actual team competition. On a triangular basis Prospect won easily with 18 points with Willowbrook second with 49 and Morton West third with 86.

Lou Limauro paced the young Knights with a first, and he was followed by teammate Ned Bloom. Willowbrook's Bartlett was third, but the Prospect unit gained the next three slots thanks to Gary Marks, John Orr, and Kent Nelson.

JUST DOGS

by DAVE TERRILL

It is of interest to note that in the past few years more and more dog food suppliers have been moving their research kennels to the middlewest. Latest of these has been the Quaker Oats company, whose Ken-L-Products division had a formal grand opening ceremony at their new research kennels for both dog and cat nutrition this past Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Located on rte. 22, west of Barrington, it is the largest and most complete facility ever erected exclusively for pet feeding and nutritional studies. All dogs at the Barrington kennels are purebreds, and are selected only from reputable kennels. At the present time, six breeds (each a representative of a different type of dog), are housed there. Later it is planned to have about 20 different breeds, which will be rotated. The six breeds now on hand are dachshunds, boxers, English springer spaniels, Dalmatians, Chihuahuas and minature poodles. About 160 dogs are now housed, but many more can be handled with ease in this most modern and up-to-date kennel.

Even cats are included, in as much as the Quaker Oats people supply a cat food. For feeding and testing purposes there are on hand about 200, which include the Domestic Shorthair (fancy name for an "alley cat"), Siamese and a strain from the Domestic Shorthair which has been termed, for the moment at least, the "Barringtom Brown."

The culmination of more than 10 years of planning, the new pet center at Barrington stands as the most advanced layout of its kind anywhere in the world. American cats and dogs, already the healthiest in the world as a group, can, because of such effort, look forward to a longer, happier and healthier existance.

Boxer owners—

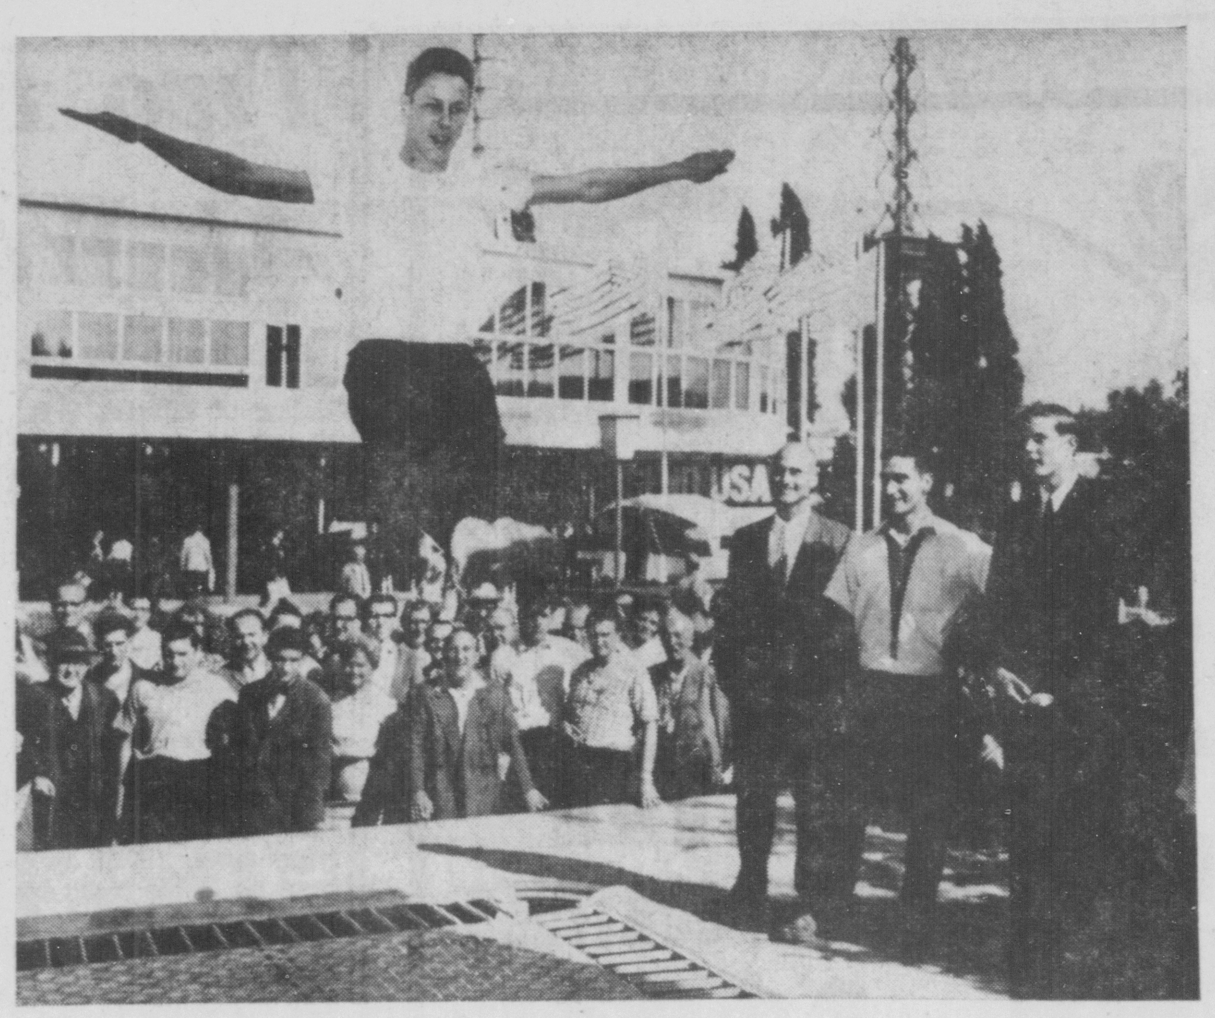
Of general interest to owners of boxers is the fact that the Tree Town Boxer club will hold an AKC sanctioned puppy match for boxers only at the Du Page county fairgrounds, Saturday, Oct. 15.

Judge of the event will be Mrs. Audrey Harridge, who will judge all the confirmation classes ranging from two months to the over one-year class. Entries will be taken from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. the day of the match, with judging scheduled to start at 2:15 p.m.

Further information may be had by contacting the secretary of the club, Mrs. Dorothy Ortman, Flanders 8-4196.

Now that the youngsters are back in school and the family dog has about decided that it can't go with them it is time to check on this point—are the dogs still following the children to school.

The congregation of family dogs in the school yard prior to the ringing of the school bell sometimes sets off a dog fight, which can result in bites to some of the children. Moral—keep the pets at home. Also warn the children to avoid speaking to or touching strange dogs or any other animal



REBOUND TUMBLING in Berlin! Gary Erwin, 17, of 908 W. Campbell, Arlington Heights, demonstrates the sport of rebound tumbling (also referred to as Trampoline) at the recently concluded Berlin Industries Fair sponsored by the United States Information agency. Erwin, Illinois state Trampoline champion in 1960 as a junior at Arlington high school, was selected from thousands of young Americans as outstanding in the sport and as a "good will ambassador" for his country. He was a member of the group of 30 young people chosen to represent this nation's cultural, social, and athletic life. Watching Gary on the stand is George Nissen (left), of Cedar Rapids, Ia., former U.S. gym and diving champion, and developer of gymnastic equipment.

Gunnell's Unit Offers New Challenge in Classic Action

Timroth Plumbing, by virtue of two victories over its closest challenger, Bill Cook Buick, maintained its lead in the Paddock Classic Traveling League Saturday night at Country Lanes in Lake Zurich.

However, Timroth, bowling out of Beverly Lanes in Arlington Heights, has a new challenger, Gunnell's.

Though all four matches were split 2-1, several positions among the contenders changed places. Gunnell's two of three wins dropped Cook County Mobile Homes from fourth to fifth.

WITH TOM KOUROS of Barrington Woods bowling more than 100 pins under his 210 average, Bill Cook slipped down a notch to third place, two games off the pace, by losing twice to pace-setting Timroth Plumbing.

Not only Kouros but the entire Bill Cook team had a rough night as the 204 game by Jim Perna of Rolling Meadows was the only one of 15 games above the 200 mark for the Automen. That 204 game sparked Bill Cook to its lone win as no one on the Timroth team was able to hit the 200 mark.

This was in marked contrast to the first two games when three Timroth bowlers were above the 200 mark in each game. Bill Radunz of Arlington Heights and Monte Arkus of Hoffman Estates both bested this 200 mark twice as Timroth piled up 1,021 pins in the first game and 995 in the second. However, Radunz was the only bowler to top 600 for a series, getting 632. No one for the Bill Cook team, out of Bowlway in Elgin, was able to reach the 600 mark.

GUNNELL'S, not an exceptionally high scoring team, kept winning the close ones to keep within one game of the leaders. A 217 by John Ribando of Mount Prospect and 214 by John Lynch won the first game from Cook County Mobile Homes. Lynch came back with a 213 in the final game, accompanied by a 203 by Al Valentino to win game No. 3 for the Mt. Prospect five.

The night's high individual game, 264 by Dick Nethaway of Des Plaines, plus a 213 by teammate Tony Sasso, also of Des Plaines, gave Cook County a 1045 second game, the night's high team game.

Moyle Construction, doormat of the league for six weeks, began to show its power of last year by taking two of three from Bill Bond's Mens Wear. The most heartening aspect was a 2945 series by Moyle, bowling out of Ten Pin in Barrington. This marked the team's high series this year.

THOUGH not shooting a 1,000 game, 969 was low for the Moyle team. A pair of 602 series by Leroy Papineau of Lake-in-Hills and Don Bacon of Crystal Lake spearheaded the Moyle attack though individual honors went to John Taylor of Bill Bond's and Country Lanes. He had a 619 series.

Saturday's two losses were disheartening for the Jeffery Lanes team of Wheeling. Its 2876 total was 14 pins higher than its opponents, Casablanca. The first game loss was a heart-breaker as Jeffrey rolled 999 and lost to Tommy Thomas' team by seven pins. This was the highest score by a losing team in the Paddock Classic this year.

A 237 by Harvey Randolph of Northbrook, 215 by Charles Johnson of Carpentersville and 213 by Ron Fogarett of Palatine, bowling for Casablanca, was too much for the Jeffery team to overcome despite a 225 by Chuck Gibson of Bensenville and 211 by Buck Perkins of Woodstock.

THOUGH Jeffery dropped to 916 in the second game, it came out victorious. Up to 961 in the final, Jeffery lost again as Casablanca, representing Hi-Way Recreation of Palatine, hit 980 on a 213 by Fogarett, whose 636 series was high for the league Saturday night. Randolph added a 616 for the winners and Hec Healey had a 609 for the Wheeling five.

Kouros' tremendous slide dropped his average from 210 to two pins under 205 and into second place. Fogarett, who went into Saturday's action with 208 average, upped his mark to just one pin under 209 in assuming first place.

The third place individual, Nethaway, became the third 200 man by boosting his average from 199 to 201. Randolph moved up two pins to 199.

TIMROTH Plumbing, which has proven itself the last two times out, will meet its third rough opponent in a row, fourth place Casablanca, bearer of the league's highest team average, when the two tangle at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at Bowlway in Elgin.

Dons Open League Play with 34-0 Win over Proco

by TOM TREBAT

The Dons of Notre Dame started their quest for the Suburban Catholic Conference crown on the right foot by trouncing St. Procopius 34-0 last Saturday.

Taking advantage of a strong running game, the Dons easily chalked up their second win of the campaign against an equal number of defeats.

Four plays after the opening kick-off, St. Procopius was forced to punt and the Dons quickly started to roll. Senior Pat Solon of Arlington Heights climaxed a fifty yard drive with a 2-yard plunge for the touchdown. A pass from Quarterback Jim Nelson to Bill Hanson netted the extra point.

RECEIVING THE kick-off, St. Procopius kept the ball for several plays and then gave it to Notre Dame on a fumble. The quarter ended with Notre Dame deep in St. Procopius territory. Shortly after the start of the second period, Nelson smashed over on a sneak to give the Dons a two-touchdown bulge. A Nelson to Williams pass added the point.

Sparked by the fine running of halfbacks Solon and Williams, the Dons picked up their third touchdown in the opening minutes of the third quarter. For the remainder of the third quarter, neither team was able to get much of an attack going. In fact, not until the middle of the last period did either team even threaten.

At that point, Notre Dame took over on downs on their own 40. Halfback Solon swept right end and broke into the clear for a sensational 60 yard run and the Dons' fourth tally. Fullback Tolli ran the point to make the score 28-0

AFTER A SERIES of scrimmages, St. Procopius was forced to punt and the Dons took over on their own 44. Quarterback Mike McCaskey faded back and hit Junior Bob Buonincontro with a perfect pass. Buonincontro completed the rest of the 56 yard play untouched. Anthony kicked the extra point, but the play was nullified by a a Don penalty. Anthony's second attempt fell short.

Next Friday, the Dons take on Marmion at Notre Dame. This will be the Dons' second league encounter.

The Notre Dame frosh-soph unit coasted to a 33-0 win over St. Procopius. For the fledgling Dons, it was their fourth triumph of the year. They have not been defeated.

Two Records Broken At Waukegan Plant

Even though the night air was cold and damp, Miles Melius of Slinger, Wis., was as hot as ever as he drove to a clean sweep of vents at the Waukegan Speedway Sunday night and set two new track records in capturing the 10 lap heat race and 25 lap main event.

In his four appearances here, Melius has taken all four main events and finished the season in 13th spot in the season point stadings with a total of 1,250 points. After setting the fast qualifying time, (52.38 mph) he went on to his track records, averaging 51.37 mph in winning the heat race to erase his old mark of 51.05 that he had set on August 14, his first time out this year.

The 25 lap record now stands at 50.59 mph as compared to the former record of 50.45 set on June 7, 1959 by Bobby Ratajczyk of Kenosha.

MELIUS took the lead on the 15th lap of the event taking over from Jack Radtke of Grayslake. On the 20th lap Radtke spun out and Greg Krieger, Milwaukee, moved into second place to finish ahead of Etchie Biertzer, Barton, and Bill Schwister of Milwaukee. Radke recovered from his spin and finished fifth.

Several spins and accidents occurred throughout the evening but none were of a serious nature.

The stock jalopies provided plenty of thrills for the 1,850 fans who braved the cold weather. Nine of the 25 starters managed to finish the event which in itself was somewhat like a demolition event as cars were left demolished on all parts of the track. Al Langen, Wauconda emerged the victor. Many of the cars that were still left running entered the gigantic demolition event, the grand finale event of the 1960 season.

SOME 15 cars were totally demolished and Butch Anderson of Waukegan was lucky enough to come out with the least amount of damage and was declared the winner.

Greg Krieger wound up as the track champion of 1960. He had compiled a total of 4,325 points to finish 2,110 points ahead of second place Ted Rozinski of West Allis. The top ten drivers are:

3. Jack Radtke, Grayslake, 2,300; 4. Jack Frost, Zion, 2,245; 5. Jim Ouellette, West Allfs 2,035, 6. Bay Darnell, Deerfield, 1,980; 7. Don Sorce West Allis, 1,955; 8. Gary Sheldon, Beloit, 1,840; 9. Bob Karry, Lake Villa, 1,765 and 10. Milt Curcio, Racine, 1,595.

The speedway also wound up its most succssful season with the drivers sharing in an all time record prize purse amounting to over $25,500 for the 21 race dates held. Of this amount nearly $2,000 has been set aside for a point fund which will be paid to the top 30 drivers later this season on awards night. (Sp

IHSA Announces Rules Changes For Cage Season

Six basketball rules interpreters appointed by the Illinois high school assiciation met in Chicago Monday to receive instructions on the proper interpretations for the 1960-61 cage code.

The interpreters, well-known basketball officials, will interpret the new rules at twenty Basketball Rules interpretation meetings sponsored by the IHSA and held in different parts of the state during the period from October 31 through November 17.

Cliff Fagan, National Federation Executive Secretary and Secretary of the National Basketball committee, had charge of the discussion at yesterday's all-day session. Present also were representatives of high school athletic associations from several other mid-western states.

THE MAJOR part of the discussions was centered around the more important rules changes for the 1960-61 season. The changes this year should have little bearing on team strategy. Several of them are important from the standpoint of officiating and game administration.

Following are a few of the more significant changes for the coming cage season: (1) The ball must be either of an approved shade of orange or natural tan. The yellow ball is illegal. (2) It is recommended that the scorer wear identifying apparel. (3) The traveling rule has been completely rewritten. Foot movements of a player in control are slightly more restrictive. (4) If the ball becomes dead when a team is in control and no infraction, score or end of period is involved, play is resumed by throw-in from out of bounds spot nearest where the ball became dead. (Instead of at mid-court).

(5) It is a violation if defensive players do not occupy the lane spaces adjacent to the end line during a free throw for a personal foul, (6) A player who knowingly attempts a free throw to which he is not entitled commits an unsportsmanlike act. (7) Several small revisions occur in the rule relating to legitimate correction of certain errors. (8) In actionless game situations, if the defense is responsible, the 5-second count is stopped only if the defense provides aggressive opposition in the mid-court area.

Official IHSA interpreters or 1960 are Ed Bronson, Chicago; Frank J. Falzone, Rockford; Joe E. Frank, Champaign, Ernest Lieberson, Chicago; Ted Search, Chester; M. F. Sprunger, Chicago.

Five Boys Tied in Interim

The individual scoring race in the Interim assn., gets closer every week.

Last week two boys were tied for the top position.

This week there are five performers in that coveted slot.

Prospect's Bob Glaser and Maine West's Keith Connolly, former leaders, are still on top with three touchdowns each. But joining this duo now are Prospect's Tom Petrosino and Keith Voigt and Willowbrook's Gene Whitehorn.

It's interesting to note that both Glaser and Connolly didn't see any action on offense in the Knights' test with Maine West last Saturday evening.

The scoring leaders:

Hilltopper Holds WSC Point Lead

A two-touchdown performance against Arlington last Friday evening enabled Glenbard West's Bob DesRochers to hold on to his individual scoring lead in the West Suburban conference.

DesRocher has seven touchdowns in three conference games for a six-point lead over runnerup Pete Hambrick of Hinsdale. Hambrick also scored a pair of touchdowns in the Red Devils' rout of Downers Grove.

Two other Hinsdale backs, Jim Carmignani and Hal Brandt, are tied for third in the scoring derby with 30 points each. Carmignani, the 1959 leader in the point race, has four touchdowns and six extra points, and Brandt, a southpaw quarterback, has five TDs.

LaGrange's Dick Ruggles and Downers' Bill Gurican both boast four touchdowns for 24 points.

Willowbrook JVs Dumped By Wheaton

Wheaton's junior-varsity Tigers stopped Willowbrook in an Interim assn. game last Friday evening, 12-6.

The teams seemed to be evenly-matched throughout the contest with Wheaton scoring first on a 40 yard pass from Dick Gillette to Bob Miller.

The score stood at 6-0 until the fourth quarter when the Tigers again drove downfield and Gillette ran around right end for 15 yards and the touchdown.

But there was still more action to come when Willowbrook quarterback Dave Jones picked up a Wheaton fumble and raced 13 yards for the TD.

Expect Record Field for Match Game Headliner

Early returns of entry blanks for the BPAA National Men's Team Match Game Championship indicate a record equaling field of 60 five-man teams will be entered in the 1960 event, according to Dick Nethaway, tournament director for the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America.

With the entry deadline not until Oct. 28, Nethaway said he expects the field to close before that date based upon the present trend.

Budweiser Beer of St. Louis will be seeking its fifth title in six years, having copped the championship the last two years after a one year's âbsence, when four days of competition begins Saturday, Nov. 19, at Paramus Bowling in Paramus, N. J., 10 miles west of the George Washington bridge.

HOWEVER, this time the Budweisers, who include Ray Bluth and Dick Weber, newly crowned BPAA Doubles 22.

Champions, will be shooting for a record $2,500 first prize money. In the two previous years, the Buds won $2,000 each time.

The $2,500 is part of an estimated record prize fund of $11,200, based upon 60 entries The record prize fund is made possible by the BPAA increasing its contribution from $1,500 to $2,500.

Each team will roll four three-game blocks on Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 19 and 20. The top eight teams will enter the match game finals in which every team will bowl a two-game block against the other seven teams plus a position round on Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 21 and

Sought for Bad Checks

'Plucky' Housewife Helps Nab Fugitive

A fugitive from justice was locked in the Palatine jail Monday night, pending trial in Superior court, after a long history of passing fraudulent checks and unfinished contracts.

The man, Ed Jacobi, alias Edwin Herman Jacoby, of 105 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, was brought to bay with important credits going to three persons according to justice of the peace ,Liston Pennington Rolling Meadows, who handled complaints.

Pennington said, "We owe a big debt to a plucky Palatine woman, Mrs. Herbert Weiss, who put temporary clamps on a piece of Jacobi's blacktop equipment. We never could have come to court if R. A. Kersting, Mt. Prospect, hadn't signed a criminal complaint charging Jacobi with writing a fraudulent check. And we never could have made charges stick if it hadn't been for the diligent police work of Rolling Meadows chief Cy Campbell."

The Jacobi case is an intricate yarn that involved four towns, at least two states, 15 persons who have formally signed complaints against the blacktop contractor, an intricate series of bogus checks, and the state's attorney's office.

POLICE FILES on the man are thick in Mt. Prospect and Arlington Heights. No formal complaints have previously been signed against him in Palatine.

Jacobi's blacktop activities first came to light formally when Mrs. Weiss put her tabs on the steam roller.

Wednesday, Aug. 17, Mrs. Jacobi came to see Judge Pennington complaining that Mrs. Weiss had her steam roller under lock and key until her driveway work was completed.

The judge gave Mrs. Weiss a call saying she was violating state statutes by holding property that didn't belong to her—that she must release it.

Not willing to believe anyone without checking, Mrs. Weiss called the Palatine Chamber of Commerce. The then-secretary, Mrs. C. E. Burns called Pennington to bring him up to date on the Jacobi activities.

THE ROLLER was released with a promise that the Weiss driveway would be completed barring an act of God. Two days passed. Nothing was done. The Jacobi pattern of accepting downpayments for work, then falling down on the job, was being reenacted again.

Mrs. Jacobi replied to queries about the job that she had been unable to find the workmen. Saturday there was an act of God—rain.

After another phone call from Pennington, Mrs. Jacobi said she thought she wouldn't finish the job because "Mrs. Weiss got in my hair."

"She spoke of refunding the money," Pennington said. The Weisses had paid $160 down.

BY THIS TIME Pennington knew enough persons who had experienced similar jobs from Jacobi to call for action. The state's attorney's aid was enlisted, and all persons who had complaints were asked to appear Wednesday, Sept. 14, at the Palatine township office.

At that time Kersting signed the complaint. Jacobi had asked him "as a favor" to cash a $35 check. The check bounced. It was dated July 22 and the Des Plaines bank revealed that the account had been closed June 30.

At that time and shortly thereafter complaints were signed by the following persons who had lost money: Weiss, Palatine, $160; Keith Van Kirk, Palatine, $240; William Spence, Palatine, $88; Edwin Gill, Palatine, $150; Burton Showers, Palatine, $135.

From Rolling Meadows the persons and their money are John Kernbower, $200; Frank Bryan, $130; Dorothy Worth, $125. Others are Kersting, $900; William Rhine, $100, and Sarah Sarni, $56, all of Mt. Prospect. From Prospect Heights there were two: Harold Fricke, $80 and Richard Leonard, $80.

JACOBI WAS arrested and placed on $2,000 bond because of the Kersting case. The state's attorney compiled the rest of the blacktop cases and invited Jacobi to appear downtown Thursday, Sept. 22, the day after he was to appear in Rolling Meadows on the bad check charge. The same day, Wednesday, Sept. 21, Jacobi was released on his signature only from an Arlington Heights charge.

The September 21 case was continued until October 5 at the request of the state's attorney. When Jacobi appeared downtown, Eldred Benz, from the state's attorney's office, offered to work out Jacobi's problems with him, so that his blacktop work would be done, and people not hurt.

In the meantime, when Jacobi had been arrested, Cy Campbell had him fingerprinted. The prints were sent to the FBI in Washington. Their reply showed seven cases in New Jersey including charges of false pretenses, fraudulent checks, and overdrawn checking accounts. He had been released on probation to make restitution, which he failed to do. A fugitive warrant (bring in the body) was out for him from New Jersey. The last case listed on the FBI transcript was "Arlington Heights, check fraud."

WHEN OCTOBER 5 came and went with no Jacobi appearing in court, Pennington notified the bondsman. It is further rumored that the bondsman was paid with a $200 check, "account closed."

Jacobi was nowhere to be found. The bondsman was told to go and get him. The bond was forfeited.

Monday, Oct. 10, the man who had signed the bond was notified that this was the absolute deadline. Monday, Oct. 10, Jacobi, his wife, his attorney Thomas Kilroy, and the bondsman appeared at the Rolling Meadows city hall.

From there he was jailed a "fugitive from justice" on a $10,000 bond because of the New Jersey warrant. His $2,000 bond was continued, at the request of the state's attorney.

Where does he go from here?

HE GOES to Superior court. He will have 21 days to fight being extradited to New Jersey. After then he can be brought in and extradited on a warrant from Governor Stratton.

What does Jacobi have to say about all this?

The Palatine Enterprise interviewed him Tuesday in jail. He maintains he was doing his blacktop work; that the state has no case against him. His answers to the fraudulent checks are devious, going so far as to say the $200 check to the bondsman was never meant to be cashed. (AF

Musicians Needed for 'Messiah'

First call has gone out for area musicians to participate in the bi-annual presentation of Handel's "Messiah," scheduled for December 4 at 3 p.m. in the boys' gym of Arlington high school.

Director Frederick Schmoyer, head of the music department at Arlington and Prospect high schools, announced that rehearsals will begin November 13.

"We want vocalists and we want instrumentalists, especially stringed instruments," Schmoyer states. Some 800 persons have been part of the choir in the three previous presentations.

Area church choirs cooperate with the high school musicians, and soloes are handled by guest singers. Schmoyer asks that interested persons contact him if they desire more information.

Luxury Apartment Plans to Be Told

Expansion plans for a proposed large luxury apartment project in west central Arlington Heights will be revealed at a rezoning hearing before the plan commission, Tuesday, Oct. 18 at the village hall.

The petitioner, Joseph W. Bernstein of Chicago, is seeking to have 11 lots on the west side of Kaspar rezoned and Kaspar vacated between St. James and Miner sts. so that he might expand his proposed apartments from six to 10 buildings, with 12 units in each.

PLANS WERE approved last winter for Bernstein's initial proposal for a million dollar apartment project of six buildings between Kaspar and Salem and south of St. James. The 2.5 acres proposed for the site of the six buildings is already zoned for apartments.

Before plans can be expanded, however, Bernstein must win approval of his petition to rezone the west side of Kaspar for apartments. (AF

Gifts Galore Will Be Given

The first anniversary Elk Grove merchants are observing with the shoppers they have wooed adds up to a compatible first year alliance.

Today through Saturday, the merchants will display their gratitude with an emphasis any dolting husband would stress for a bride of a year with an outpouring of gifts.

Prizes will be awarded Saturday, and include the top prize of an RCA color console TV set. A portable dishwasher, freezer, and polaroid camera are also included on the prize list.

All customers have to do to be eligible for these items is to fill out a coupon available at any Elk Grove Park & Shop business with their name, address and telephone number, and drop the information in ballot boxes located throughout the shopping center.

COMMENTING on the first anniversary, Gayle Bantner, president of the Elk Grove Merchants and Professional association, said:

"We certainly enjoy doing business in Elk Grove. You'd have to go a long way to find better customers than the people we deal with. I'm sure our customers attending the anniversary celebration will find bargains hard to beat."

Since its formation, the merchants' association has undertaken a number of civic projects to assist the community.

Association members donated $600 to last summer's Peony Pageant sponsored by the Elk Grove Village Junior Chamber of Commerce.

THE ASSOCIATION introduced a shuttle bus service running through Elk Grove Village to the shopping center, and while this service had to be discontinued because of lack of customers, fares collected amounting to $72 were turned over to the Elk Grove Village volunteer fire department.

The association this past year also gave financial support to the Elk Grove chapter of the American Red Cross, the Elk Grove District 59 Men's association and the Rupley school mother's club's flag sale.

Customers last Christmas were treated to the sight of a modernized version of Santa Claus' annual visit when the old gent landed in a helicopter on the shopping center's parking lot.

OTHER OFFICERS in the association headed by Bantner, manager of the Suburban Drug store, are: Sidney Rosen, owner of the Elk Grove Currency exchange, treasurer; and Robert Larberg, of the Elk Grove Insurance agency, secretary.

Other stores in the center include: the IGA Foodliner, Best Hardware, Jarosch Bakery, Elk Grove TV sales and service, the Elk Grove Optical company, the Elk Grove Cleaners, the Elk Grove Beauty Salon, the Elk Grove Barber shop, and Dovenmuehle, Inc., real estate, mortgages and insurance house. Latest addition is a Ben Franklin Variety store.

The medical center in the shopping center has the professional services of two general practitioners, a pediatrician, obstetrician, and two dentists. (EG-SS

Giant IGA Store 'Pilot' Project

AL VISINTIN

The IGA foodliner, which introduced untried marketing procedures to Elk Grove Village as a "pilot" store, has found the past year to be a successful experiment.

This is the report of Al Visintin, IGA manager, as his store observes its first anniversary at the Elk Grove Park & Shop along with other Elk Grove merchants.

Supplied by the nearby Franklin MacVeagh and company warehouse in the Centex Industrial Park, the store has introduced a new concept in marketing with the sale of soft goods, i.e., clothing and wearing apparel.

ANOTHER NEW innovation at the supermarket has been its dairy case, stocked as completely as a delicatessen.

"We're very pleased with the year," Visintin commented, adding, "We appreciate what we got."

Visintin has 15 years experience in marketing. He started his career with a rather unauspicious beginning as a part-time stock employee while attending school.

The IGA manager was hired by the food chain in Milwaukee where he had been employed by another retail food outlet as store manager.

Visintin has commuted to Milwaukee weekends since he became manager of the Elk Grove store. His wife and four children still reside there, and Al presently rents accommodations in Des Plaines.

VISINTIN HOLDS a certificate in retailing from Northern Michigan College of Education, Marquette, Mich., where he completed a two-year course.

The store manager is a member of the Elks and Holy Name Society.

First Year Was Prosperous One For Park & Shop

Ray G. Walton, manager of Dovenmuehle, Inc., can look back on a prosperous year in marking the first anniversary of the Elk Grove Park & Shop.

RAY WALTON

The firm, Chicago's first mortgage house, appointed Walton manager of real estate sales and mortgage service operations in this area last year with the opening of the shopping center.

Dovenmuehle, Inc., has been one of the most active mortgage firms in the field of residential lending, particularly on a project basis.

TWO OF THE largest village projects in the Chicagoland area — Park Forest and Elk Grove Village—were financed in a large measure by the 115-year-old firm.

In addition, a sizable number of smaller home projects and individual home purchases are financed through Dovenmuehle, Inc. The firm is also noted for its extensive activity in the field of commercial, industrial and apartment loans.

Walton has been associated with the mortgage industry since his release from active duty with the 8th Air Force in 1945. He was formerly loan service manager for General Mortgage Investments, and from 1952-1956 had been assistant residential mortgage supervisor for Equitable Life Assurance Society.

IN THE EARLY days of the GI home loan, Walton was with the Veterans Administration, in charge of the Evanston Regional office.

The Walton family includes wife Virginia and four children: Raydell, Michael, James and Tom. They have been residents of this area since 1950, and now live at 11 Lynnbrook dr., Prospect Heights. (EG-SS

Merchants President Achieves Two Goals

OBSERVING FIRST anniversary of Elk Grove Park & Shop today, Friday and Saturday will be Gayle Bantner (center), manager of Suburban Drugs and president of the Elk Grove Merchants and Professional association, along with two Elk Grove Village employees who were with him when the store opened. They are, Mrs. Delores Sierant (left) and Mrs. Marie Cunniff, shown above examining Halloween costume.

A year ago, Gayle Bantner, president of the Elk Grove Merchants and Professional association and manager of the Suburban Drug store, listed two immediate goals of the organization he has headed since the shopping center opened.

One of these was getting established, certainly something that has been realized since Oct. 15, 1959. The other goal was setting up an operating budget and putting promotional plans into practice.

THIS WILL be seen today, Friday and Saturday when the merchants put into gear their biggest promotion yet: celebration of their first anniversary.

An auto show will be featured during the 3-day observance, and a multitude of gifts will be awarded Saturday.

Besides planning the overall event in his capacity of association president, Bantner will also have P. J. Hoff, the cartooning weatherman present at the Suburban Drug store on Friday from noon to 1:30 p.m., and plans to give away candy, ballpoint pens and measuring spoons to store patrons.

The store manager has established community roots in Elk Grove Village as a member of the Elk Grove Lions club and the Queen of the Rosary church, even though his duties as store manager and association president require his presence at the shopping center on the average of 10 hours a day.

BANTNER, his wife, Jane, and the couple's four children: John, Kathy, Brenda, and Sharon, reside at 780 Crest st., in the village.

Gayle has witnessed every one of the Suburban Drug chain's links being forged in the Chicagoland area, taking an active part in most of these organizational practices.

He has opened Suburban Drug stores in Rolling Meadows, Westchester, Northlake, LaGrange, and Chicago Heights.

His present store in the Elk Grove Park & Shop is the newest and most completely stocked in the 18-year-old chain's history of eight establishments operated in the Chicago area.

WORKING WITH Bantner in the prescription and drug departments is Dick Weismehl, the store's other registered pharmacist.

Celebrating with Bantner the first anniversary celebration will be two employes who were with him when the drug store opened. Both residents of Elk Grove Village, they are: Mrs. Delores Sierant, 67 Wildwood, and Mrs. Marie Cunniff, 22 Ridgewood.

A native of Assumption, Ill., Gayle graduated from the University of Illinois' school of pharmacy in 1949. His schooling was interrupted in 1941 with a five-year tour of duty with the Army medical corps.

A high school football player, Bantner now likes to engage in boating and fishing, and he's such a devoted fisherman that he even takes his wife along in their 14-foot outboard boat. (EG-SS

P. J. Hoff to Visit Elk Grove on Friday

"What's the weather outlook, P. J.?"

This familiar query, common to Chicagoland TV viewers, will be asked of the cartooning weatherman this Friday by Elk Grove merchants when P. J. Hoff visits the Elk Grove Park & Shop.

The merchants hope for a favorable response for their first anniversary of doing business in Elk Grove with a three-day celebration which began today and will continue through Saturday, featuring an auto show of 1961 models.

Hoff will render his verdict Friday between noon and 1:30 p.m. when he visits the Suburban Drug store, according to Gayle Bantner, drug store manager and president of the Elk Grove Merchants and Professional association.

DESPITE P.J.'s rural presence, he is a graduate of the University of Washington with a degree in engineering. He gave up the drafting table for the drawing board when he began an illustrated column for the St. Paul Dispatch.

With the arrival of television, P.J. started a weekly cartoon program which reviewed current events in cartoon form. In 1949, weather by cartooning was introduced by Hoff to Twin City television viewers.

P.J. joined WBBM-TV and Fahey Flynn in 1953 on the "Ten O'Clock News, Weather, and Sport Roundup. To complement his chores, Hoff has taken a pilot's course in meteorology taught by the Navy in Minnesota.

WHILE he conducts 22 shows a week, Hoff still finds time to be president of the Midwest Chapter of the National Cartoonists' Society; he is also a member of the Press club, the Headline club and the Chicago Executive's club.

Not actually a weather forecaster, P.J. relies on official forecasts put out by the U.S. Weather Bureau, presenting the forecasts through such characters he has created as "Little Mr. Ah Choo," "The Vice-President in Charge of Looking Out the Window," and "Mr. Yellencuss."

Shopping Center's History Colorful

GRAND OPENING of Elk Grove Park & Shop saw Steven Walsh cutting lollipop ribbon with assistance from Sister Audrey and Village President Hodlmair. The youngsters are children of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Walsh, 72 Forest ln., the first family to occupy home in Elk Grove Village.

Whatever the occasion - from ground-breaking to ribbon-cutting - events connected with the Elk Grove Park & Shop have commanded an audience.

When ground was broken for the $800,000 shopping center in September of 1958, Miss Illinois of that year, June Pickney, was on hand and — to the delight of photographers recording the scene—was outfitted with antlers and leotard to underline the "elk" in the village's name.

When the center observed its grand opening on Oct. 15, 1959, merchants wisely selected children of the first family to move into Elk Grove Village to cut the ribbon marking the opening of the businesses' doors.

DESPITE the fact that Steven Walsh, 2 (at the time), was distracted by the fact that it was a ribbon of lollipops, he was guided through the ceremony by his sister, Audrey, then 5. They are children of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Walsh, 72 Forest ln., the first family to occupy a home in the village.

Unique at the center is the IGA Foodliner, actually a "pilot" store where the latest ideas in merchandising are tested by the Franklin MacVeagh company whose distribution depot is located in the nearby Centex Industrial Park.

Many of the other stores, such as Suburban Drugs, Dovenmuehle real estate and mortgage firm, and the latest newcomer to the center, Ben Franklin, represent national or regional merchandising chains. (EG-SS

Island Winning Couple Still in Civilization

Too Busy to Get Away from It All

Whatever happened to that island the Elk Grove couple won last year as top prize with the opening of the Elk Grove Park & Shop?

"We haven't even seen it yet," Mrs. Richard J. Hanat, 799 Ridge ave., Elk Grove Village, lamented.

Sidney Rosen, Elk Grove Currency exchange owner, and a friend of the Hanats, reported that Dick Hanat, 29, a district market representative of a Los Angeles tool company, has only had one opportunity to see the North Woods retreat he won.

"His boss told him to take a day to go see it since business was taking him up that way," Rosen observed. "He and his wife planned to go, but they couldn't get a babysitter."

The island is situated in Burntside Lake, near Ely, Minn., about a quarter mile offshore. It is one of more than 100 islands dotting the big lake which is in the Superior National Forest along the Canadian border north of Duluth.

AT LEAST this is the information the Hanats have received.

In their possession since winning the prize is a letter from Orville L. Freeman, governor of Minnesota, who wrote to extend congratulations and welcome the Hanats officially as property owners and summer residents of Minnesota.

The oldest resident in the area also wrote the family an extensive history of the area, and the mayor of Ely, Dr. J. P. Grahek, also wrote and explained that he had a summer home on the lake so that they might be neighbors.

The Hanats have one child, Gregory, 2, and Mrs. Hanat is expecting another child "momentarily."

She said her husband is a fishing enthusiast, but hasn't found time in the year since they won the island to make the trip to Ely. Hanat also belongs to a private hunting club in Illinois.

THE HANATS are in the habit of taking their vacations at Dick's folks' place in Wisconsin on Lake Koshkonong, about 40 miles south of Madison, Wis.

But they still are curious about their new property, Paddle or Ah-bwe island (depending on whether you use the Anglo-Saxon or Indian name).

"So far, all we've done is pay taxes on it," Mrs. Hanat related somewhat wistfully.

WINNERS OF an island in Minnesota at last year's grand opening of the Elk Grove Park & Shop were the Richard J. Hanats, 799 Ridge ave., Elk Grove Village, shown above happily receiving deed to the property from Evan Stebbins, real estate manager for Centex Construction company. Unfortunately, however, the Hanats haven't found the time to see their island yet. Mrs. Hanat is holding son Gregory, now 2 years old. (EG-SS MAP LOCATES the Hanat's island located on Burntside Lake near Ely, Minn., which the couple still hasn't visited. (EG-SS

Bakery Business Is Tradition for Family

FRESHLY BAKED BREAD is one of the trademarks of the Jarosch Bakery in the Elk Grove Park & Shop. Studying loaf prepared by Mrs. Jarosch are her son, Herbert (left)and husband, George. The Jarosch family has been in the bakery business for three generations. (EG-SS

The Jarosch family has a tradition of three generations background in the bakery business.

The present shop in the Elk Grove Park & Shop sees George Jarosch, and his wife, and their son, Herbert, carrying on this tradition.

GEORGE WORKED in his father's bakery in Germany as a teenager. After coming to this country 34 years ago, he was employed by a number of retail bakeries, including some of Chicago's leading chain bakeries.

For many years, George Jarosch was superintendent for Davidson's Bakeries in Chicago.

From 1944 to 1956 he was in business at 5640 W. Diversey ave., Chicago, after which he and his wife retired until opening the Jarosch Bakeries in Elk Grove along with their son.

One of their daughters, Mrs. Jack Pick and her husband, operated the bakery in Chicago some years following the parent's retirement, while another daughter, Helen, 19, a student at Valparaiso University, worked this last summer at the Elk Grove shop.

Herbert Jarosch also learned the bakery trade as a teenager, working for his father after school and during the summers. He even operated a field bakery in Korea during a service stint.

THE ELDER Jarosch couple live at 206 W. Orchard, Arlington Heights, while Herbert and his family reside at 509 Oakton st., Elk Grove. Herbert married a girl he had met (where else?) in his father's bakery.

VFW Hospital Chairmen Seek Old Jewelry for Vets

Special guests at the regular meeting of the Arlington auxiliary to VFW Post 981, Arlington Heights, were Mrs. Reba Meyer and Mrs. Jean Mears, department hospital chairman and co-chairman.

Mrs. Meyer stated there are 1050 to 1200 veterans at the Elgin State hospital and asked that anyone wishing to dispose of old jewelry or odd earrings call Miss Lorraine Schubert, local hospital chairman, at CL 3-7548. The hospital recently acquired a jewelry making machine whereby the vets can make use of discarded jewelry.

Miss Schubert and Miss Elaine Allison, members of the local organization, were given special pins by Mrs. Meyer for giving 150 or more hours to hospital work.

OCTOBER 28, members of post 981 and the auxiliary will sponsor a party at the Elgin State hospital. Any member wishing to attend should meet at the clubhouse at 6:45 p.m. Money for the hospital parties comes from the Poppy Day sale and from special projects such as the recent card party and penny social.

Two-thirds of the profits from this event went towards relief work. Also, the auxiliary sold more than a thousand boxes of candy in another money-making project. Mrs. Gertrude Hicks, chairman of the sale, requested this money be also put into the relief fund

FOUR NEW members were initiated into the organization October 5: Mrs. Salvatore A. Fiduccia, Mrs. Ronald McCloud and Mrs Chester W. Sokolski, all of Arlington Heights, and Mrs. John M. Campbell of Prospect Heights.

Following the meeting, the organization welcomed the new members into the group over "coffee and donuts" served by the refreshment committee. (A

Real Estate Firm Opens New Office

Boeske Real Estate, formerly of Addision, officially announce the opening of new offices this week at 348 Ardmore, Villa Park.

The enterprise includes associate operations covering residential, commercial, industrial and agricultural sales and service, as well as property planning and management and construction.

The addition of comprehensive insurance service to the Boeske organization was also revealed. Headed by specialist G. L. Grenier, the affiliate will be known as Insurance Management Agency and will offer the gamut in insurance planning and service.

THE HISTORY of the Boeske office includes several million dollars worth of residential construction in a half dozen subdivision developments. This year income property projects alone total two million dollars.

One of the newest Boeske projects is a deluxe "country club" airport now under construction just west of Roselle. The completely landscaped facilities will include a motel, swimming pool, cocktail lounge, coffee shop, putting green and shuffleboard court.

Next week Boeske is introducing himself to his immediate Villa Park neighbors with a Trampoline Party for the 2,000 children in the area.

Change Contracts For School Buses

Arlington and Prospect high school buses ran off schedule early this week following a change in transportation contracts.

The situation should be cleared up by the end of the week, however, according to Superintendent H. L. Slichenmyer, who explained that it was just a matter of the new contractor's acquiring sufficient drivers.

The high school district, which owns the buses, had switched contractors when Ervin Jellinek's Jelco transportation company failed to purchase land and construct a building to store and maintain the buses.

ACCORDING to Slichenmyer, the bus contract had been offered to Jellinek last spring under those conditions. When, by the middle of September, no lane or building had been furnished, the board of education began looking for another contractor.

Lee Stahl's Cook County School Bus, Inc., took over the high school bus operation Monday. Some students were late to class, however, because of a shortage of drivers and consequent schedule changes.

"The time schedule should be cleared up so that students won't have to leave quite so early," Slichenmyer stated, pointing out that the buses, under the new agreement, would be used for high school purposes only. (ACM

Club to Be Sold? Hauff Won't Say

Rumors, which have not been denied by official "un-official" sources say that the Mount Prospect Country Club is in the process of being sold to a group of private citizens in the area.

In an exclusive interview with a Herald reporter, Richard Hauff, present owner and court appointed controller would not deny the rumor.

WHEN ASKED point blank if the property was in the process of being sold, he smiled, nodded his head and said "no comment." Upon further prodding of the subject, Hauff said "wait a few days."

The rumor, from reliable sources which can not at this time be made public goes that a group of approximately 10 prominent northwest suburban business men and doctors is negotiating for the purchase of the club. They have the legal option to buy. They plan to operate it as a private club and to instigate an extensive improvement program.

The group is reported to include six or seven doctors from Arlington Heights and immediate area, at least one attorney and a broker, also from Arlington Heights. The report came from a "legal source directly connected with the transaction."

THE PURCHASE is to be completed as soon as the bankruptcy is paid off according to the court order which disolved the original Mount Prospect Country Club, Inc. which went into bankruptcy.

The new group is reported to be ready to "take over possession just as soon as the pay-off action takes place." This action is now being completed. It will be run by an entirely new group of people and under entirely new management.

The Mount Prospect Park board is holding a referendum Saturday to get legal authority to issue $1.1 million bonds for the purchase of the club and other park property. If the referendum passes, the country club will have more buyers than it can handle.

Unique Parking Arrangement OKd

Local plumbing shops are now featuring the new Moen Dialcet, a unique new valve unit for shower, tub, and shower-tub installations which represents a new concept in design, operation and serviceability.

The new Dialcet presents both a strikingly beautiful and modern appearance. Its gleaming chromium escutcheon contains only one control knob made of jewel-like lucite. The user simply turns this knob to get hot, cold, or any temperature in between. He pulls the same knob in or out to start, stop, or adjust the rate of flow.

Dialcet's design pays obvious dividends in convenience. Water may be turned on or off very simply at any given temperature. This allows bathers to turn the water off while soaping, then flick it back on at exactly the same temperature . . . . eliminates the need to squirm out of range of the water or manipulate two handles while soaping. This feature also assures a substantial savings in expensive hot water.

Fall Home Festival

Where are we heading?

Inside This Section:

• You'll learn how the population boom is erasing cornfields and creating a solid block of houses throughout the northwest suburbs. Analyzed is how this marching army of homes will bring social problems and the need for planning;

• Subdivision control ordinances created by villages to establish uniform building and the controversial issue of land donations by builders usually written into these ordinances is discussed in depth in an article by Bruce Ladd; he also considers the implications posed by one northwest suburban area builder's court challenge of land donated for public use;

• Education Editor Helene Bristol investigates the building boom in high schools, and studies the question of whether many schools being erected now will be obsolete by the time they're completed;

• Talie McKenzie has dipped into history to study the home from its cave origins to its present conveniences and finds that our pre-fabricated era is foreign to most of the peoples of the world;

• You'll also discover the legions of experts needed today to erect a single home in an article by Managing Editor Bill Dulaney; you'll find out what the advantages and disadvantages of buying an old vs. a new home are, in a comparison drawn by Lynn Melcher; Sports Editor Bob Frisk tells how school sports programs have expanded with the building boom; Phil Nelson writes humorously of a new sales pitch; Columnist Martin Marty addresses an open letter to prospective suburban home buyers, and Steve Franzmeier reports on what is the most important purchase most people will ever make: their home.

• These and stories on the new class of status seekers, how real estate associations protect against unethical practices, and many other interesting features await your reading pleasure as Paddock Publications editors answer the question in this Fall Home Festival issue of "Where We are Headed."

What Factors Control Home Value?

Expert Lists Five Points

by STEVE FRANZMEIER

The largest investment most people make in their lives is their home. Thus, whether their home will gain or drop in value is an important subject to them.

Lowell Siff is vice president in charge of marketing for L & S Construction co., builders of Hoffman Estates (population 9,000) and 17,000 homes in 23 other major communities in the country. He enjoys a wide reputation in the industry for his knowledge of the social and economic factors involved in subdivisions.

Siff lists five factors which determine future value of a residence within a subdivision. These are the things which people can look for before they buy a home in a subdivision—if they wish to be able to predict quite accurately the future value of their home compared with the money they spend for it.

THE REVERSE of Siff's five factors tend to produce the suburban slums, some of which, Siff admits, already exist in the Northwest suburban area.

Speaking generally, homes built on large acreages unimproved by curbs, gutters or sidewalks, served by a gravel road, septic tank and water well are the most likely to lose value.

On the other hand, quality homes built in well-planned, integral communities are most likely to maintain their value and even increase in value.

The planning features which make or break home values are the responsibilities of builders, architects and construction engineers who should be aware of and institute continual improvements in building technology.

They are the responsibility of county and municipal building officials to be alert to new techniques and allow them and reflect a knowledge of them in building codes.

And they are the responsibility of trade union officials to allow builders to use new materials and techniques which save time and money and produce a higher quality home.

INSISTENCE BY a home buyer on high quality materials and workmanship can influence the result. So can such uncertain factors as competition among builders and scarcity of work available for carpenters and other workmen and for contractors.

These, then, are Siff's five which a prospective owner can predict whether his home will maintain its value, gain or lose:

. . . . Quality of original construction. Siff breaks down this standard into ability to withstand the elements and ease with which the home lends itself to perpetual maintenance.

He said he prefers to avoid mention of materials not suitable for a northern Illinois climate. This, he said, is an objective question answered best by engineers and architects.

BUT, HE said that certain materials are more easily and more effectively maintained. Such a material is wood, more easily repaired than metal.

. . . . "Cosmetic" value of subdivision in which home is located. Street paving, curbs, gutters, sidewalks, street lighting, architectural landscaping all contribute to the "cosmetic" value—visual appearance—of a subdivision. All these elements, Siff points out, are within the control of the subdivider.

A residence in a setting of complete physical improvements is most likely to be enhanced in value by them.

If improvements such as curbs and gutters are installed when a subdivision is built cost to the home buyer is about half as much as it will be in the future in taxes paid as a home owner's share of a special or general assessment, says Siff.

. . . . Architectural variety of homes. "We have found this to be a very important element," says Siff. "Resale value is greatly influenced by a mixture of homes."

AS FOR STYLE of architecture which should be varied, Siff says he has found that the taste of Chicago area home buyers is substantial appearing homes of conventional architectural motiffs built with traditional materials such as masonry and wood siding.

Adding to variety besides architecture are streets laid out in a curvilinear pattern, following natural topography and intersecting with streets offset with other intersecting streets. They afford a sense of mystery, says Siff.

Park, church and school sites interspersed throughout the subdivision break up the monotony of house after house and enhance property value by means of the variety they lend.

. . . . Manner in which subdivision is improved. Basic ally this has to do with water mains or wells and sanitary sewers or septic tanks.

A good number of early post - war subdivision incorporated septic tanks. Because of the impervious clay soil characteristic of much of the Chicago area the anticipated septic action did not occur. So, health departments were forced to step in and forbid septic tanks. Fast-falling water table in suburban areas has rendered wells useless or potentially useless.

Both these situations naturally tend to depress property value.

. . . . Character of the subdivision. Siff believes that a subdivision should be planned to attract people of many interests, talents and professsions. To achieve this a subdivider should offer homes, in the Chicago area, which range in price from $15,00 to $40,000—all in one subdivision. Subdivisions in which all homes are priced at $18,-00, $19,000 or $20,000 should be avoided.

PURPOSE OF attempting to attract a variety of people is to assure the community which the subdivision will become of a population which can cooperate, utilizing the variety of talents, interests and professions, in a variety of community cultural and social activities.

Ideally there will be people capable of sustaining a little theater group, thrashing out decisions as members of the village board, knowledgeable about education and willing to serve on the school board.

Siff demonstrates his conception of an ideal new community by reference to the typical small town in New England and the middle west. Tradition dates back hundreds of years. There are old, newer and new areas of town.

"This," says Siff, "is a realistic community, not just one born out of a test tube."

More people will be more likely to buy homes in subdivisions which are active, integrated communities with opportunity for an exercise of a wide variety of interests. He believes that new communities in the Northwest suburbs could use Evanston and Oak Park as models.

THE ARE NOT similar to the bulk of such communities as Rolling Meadows and Palatine by reason of their newness, Siff admits; but they began in the same manner.

"They have a total and autonomous aura to them and real estate values not only have been stable in good times and bad, but property values have appreciated dramatically," says Siff.

But, the other side of the coin are subdivisions in which homes have deteriorated rapidly—will deteriorate—and promise to become the slums of the suburban areas.

"They will have a fantastic vacancy rate," says Siff.

He blames these develping slum areas on lack of planning by subdividers, irresponsibility of builders in choosing inferior materials, a profit-at-all-costs attitude and the hit-and-run attitude of builders riding the high tide of consumer demand.

A significant development of the future, as Siff sees it, probably will be marketing of the small two - bedroom homes, many of which were buit in the first few years after the war, to older couples, many of the husbands retired. Families are larger now than they were in that immediate post-war period, and the demand is for larger, family-sized homes. The high proportion of Catholic population in the Chicago area accentuates the tendency toward obsolescence of small homes because Catholic families generally have larger families.

AN INDICATION of the possible trend of home values might be home values in the past. From the end of the war to the middle 1950s, says Siff, subivisions built shortly after the war maintained their value and in some instances appreciated in value; but from the middle 1950s to the resent a good number of residences began dropping in value and have continued to drop.

These are the homes which have become obsolete because they are too small for most people who buy homes today.

A similar change in consumer preference may occur in the future. But, this is a factor which cannot be predicted. The factors which Siff lists, however, when applied to the conditions affecting a home which a person is considering buying in a specific subdivision, can quite accurately predict the future value of a home, discounting the affect of depressions, inflationary periods, recessions and so-called periods of adjustment.

What You're Getting Into

by MARTIN E. MARTY

(An open letter to about-to-be-suburbanites).

Dear Prospective Suburban Home-Owner:

By now one-third of our nation technically lives in the suburbs and probably two-thirds of it is engaged in what we might loosely call "the suburban way of life." That being the case, it has become old hat to engage in isolated criticism of the people who have chosen to live around the great cities instead of in them or in rural areas. To be sure, they are still a highly observable lot, but there is little new that need be said about them by way of analysis. We're all more interested in therapy.

One persistent feature of the suburban way of life as a choice is its limitations as far as solving basic problems of life is concerned. Counsellors in the school systems, doctors, psychologists dealing with management problems, ministers all agree that many of the people they have dealt with bought a home in the suburbs in order to cure an ulcer or a bad marriage or some other modern disturbance. Eight or twenty-eight months later the dream has vanished. It turns out they had put a mustard-plaster on a malignancy and solved nothing except to involve themselves in a long mortgage.

THIS wouldn't have to be the case or at least it wouldn't have to be so often. We could all bear in mind that we take our problems with us and when we don't solve them they will reappear in another form. What is more, we can recognize some of the profounder causes and deal with them. And we can utilizze some of the advantages of suburban life—advantages which can be used merely selfishly—to be of service to others and to help make life count.

What, most of all, keeps us from seeing this? The other evening I heard a candidate for public office say that he felt he could help educate suburbanites in the realities of today's world and global needs. Why? Because we are literate, college-educated, etc.

I wonder. I wonder whether our successes don't insulate us against these realities; I wonder whether our prosperities which keep us an antiseptic distance from disease and death; whether own comforts make us forget other's needs. In times of depression we were more ready to spot other's miseries; in wartime bomb-shelters people huddled together to learn compassion. Now we pay agencies to take care of things; we are taxed for the general welfare; in so many ways we miss the vision of human need. Maybe here last of all, our politician friend to the contrary, will we learn giving.

If you are suburban-bound or changing place of residence within the suburbs maybe you can help. You can bring some imagination and energy and the firm resolve not to let the diseases of apathy and comfortableness wear you down. Someone ought to bring its realities home. Many of us feel that the churches could do this if we let some of these energies loose there.

IF WE listen to the Word which breaks from an ancient time into our new day we can hear that it talks about us, that it judges us with a voice from beyond and saves us in more profound ways than escapism. But this Word is always mediated through people.

Whenever we think that owning a half-acre and all its implied comforts and tools will solve our problems we are borrowing trouble. Whenever we are soft and undisciplined, failing to give and sacrifice, we are buying anxious futures on the installment plan.

You are moving to the suburbs? Be part of our life but bring us something, too We need your help. We need your vision. We need your company, if you can come without illusions and develop few when you arrive.

Era of Togetherness Rapidly Fading Away

The era of undivided "togetherness" is fast fading.

This is the opinion of child guidance counselors, psychologists and sociologists. They point out that children and adults need time and space for privacy.

This trend is being reflected in home design, observes Bruce S. Blietz, vice president of the Irvin A. Blietz homebuilding organization.

"Prospective tenants viewing our studio garden rental homes in Carriage Hill are quick to query us on how much privacy is built into the homes," said Blietz.

"OF COURSE, certain family functions such as mealtimes and recreation require areas for togetherness. However, a thoughtfully planned room arrangement should include areas providing 'apartness,' as well," he added.

The split-level design homes in Carriage Hill, located in Glenview off Waukegan rd., offer a good example of this division. The living room, used primarily for entertaining, is on a level by itself so that members of the family not participating can find privacy on other levels of the home. A few stairs descent from the living room leads to the kitchen-dining-family room, which form the activities center. The bedrooms, master bath and dressing closets are located on the upper level, or quiet zone.

In addition to the provisions for privacy within Carriage Hill homes, there is privacy between the homes not ordinarily found in rental accommodations.

For example, the solid masonry walls separating the units are 10 inches in thickness, providing maximum soundproofing.

Individually installed plumbing lines also contribute to privacy and quietude. The inter-connection of piping in most multiple family dwellings creates undue plumbing noises or, in some cases, a hot water shortage when several families are dishwashing, bathing or laundering. At Carriage Hill the individual systems assure privacy as well as independent service.

OTHER individually installed utilities include electrical wiring and heatings units. The conveniences of such an arrangement are obvious. Should the electrical system be heavily taxed and a fuse blown, only a single home is affected.

The indiivduality and landscaping artistry of the patios, which open from a sliding glass windowall in the family-dining areas, further reflect this trend toward privacy. Tall evergreen plantings which separate the patios lend an aura of cool restfulness. However, their size and foliage serve a dual purpose in assuring tenants privacy. Garden areas were designed so as not to resemble a communal picnic grounds.

Tenants also have the option of selecting the placement of the plantings for individuality. Separating barriers alternate between evergreens and rustic fencing interlaced with vines to create distinctiveness.

The Carriage Hill landscaping scheme will cost about $250,000.

Competition Levels Off Building Costs

Intense competition between major building contractors in the City of Chicago and the Chicagoland area now in force will keep costs of such construction at relatively stable levels despite recent increases in wages and prices of materials, Leonard J. Graf, president of the Builders' association of Chicago, thinks.

He estimated that general building costs have risen two per cent this year.

The Builders' association, composed of the area's general contractors in the institutional, commercial, industrial and public building fields, does nearly 75 per cent of such construction here, the president estimated.

"NEVER," said the BAC president, "has competition been so severe."

As an example of close bidding Graf cited an instance last year where on a project costing more than $1 million at Argonne National laboratory in Lemont, Ill., the contract was awarded on a difference of only $2, with both bids being under government estimates for the project.

"It has been increasingly evident that in many major project biddings as many as five bids will not have a variation range of one or two per cent," he said. "With that sort of bidding it should be evident that the buyer is getting his money's worth."

The competition that is occasioning the close bidding is a good thing for the investors, owners, whether private or public, Graf contended.

"During the first big building splurge after World War II the usual pattern of many people with little resources getting into construction appeared," he said. "The stiff competition of today, which I believe will continue for some time, will weed out the contractors who cut quality and workmanship to enable them to make low bids. Only the proven, responsible contractor will be able to stay in business.

"I do not mean that major construction is getting less. It is, in fact, one segment of our economy that has grown again this year despite adverse conditions in some related industries. But the records are showing that there is increasingly less opportunity for the inexpert and underfinanced operator in the business. Contractors are having to figure narrow profit margins and must have the capabilities to follow through in cases of unforeseen delays or other costly happenings."

Simpler planning by architects and engineers, constant new developments by material manufacturers, particularly in the component field, and increasing pools of skilled labor from trade schools are helping the contractor keep costs as low as possible, the BAC president said.

"THE WAVE of research that is sweeping all units of industry is immense and far from its end," he said. "Advances in construction machinery and materials are being made almost daily."

To further understanding of the role of the general contractor and in the interest of the building public, the Builders' association has published a brochure as the first step in an informational program and has made it available to all persons interested in major construction, A. L. Jackson, head of the BAC public relations committee, stated.

"This is the first time any major construction association in the United States has undertaken such a campaign," Jackson said.

"For many years general contractors have been content with letting their contributions to the public well-being be expressed in the structures they have created," he said. "However, in today's world more and more citizens are sharing in decisions affecting building and the association feels it is its duty to provide them with information it believes of value in guiding their decisions. So far as we know, there has been no previous information of this nature available here."

The brochure emphasizes that the general contractor has centralized responsibility for coordinating the varied details of a job and that he is able to do so with his own experienced and seasoned personnel.

Centralizing the control does away with uncertainty in administration and frees the owner from many legal and financial obligations he might otherwise have to assume, it is asserted. Lowest possible costs are obtainable without sacrifice of quality and completion on time is assured, and one general contract insures quality of work.

The general contract establishes uniform policy of work, the report holds, pointing out that the Builders' association is nationally known for its participation in a Joint Conference Board which operates with the Chicago and Cook County Building and Construction Trades Council in purisdictional matters, and jurisdictional strikes have been held to an absolute minimum here since 1913. (The Chicago jurisdictional pattern is recognized nationally as this area's "Formula For Labor Peace.")

Safety measures can be correlated and the owner is protected against loss from suits, claims or similar actions, and the contractor assumes the problem of industrial ethics as well as providing the elements of open competition against a background of wide experience, it is held.

The brochure also contains a section illustrated by Fred Steffen which describes some of the modern time-saving mechanical devices contractors use today in achieving operational savings and contrasts them with conditions as they existed some time ago.

Self-Imposed Government

Suburb Realtors Seek Professional Stature

EXPANSION OF FACILITIES has recently been undertaken by Carl M. Behrens & associates at 205 S. State rd., Arlington Heights. The expansion was undertaken, the firm says, because real estate has become big business in the suburbs, "demanding an ever-increasing knowledge of the opportunities available in the area for satisfying the needs of new home owners moving into the area, established residents who are interested in expanding or contracting their living facilities, and new business enterprises, both small and large."

by JACK MARTIN

Through self-imposed government and an active association, northwest suburban real estate men are gaining professional recognition for their occupation.

The Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, affiliated with the National Association of Real Estate Boards, has given realtors a strong organization and has assured villages of ethical practices in the real estate business.

Founded in 1945, the suburban board first had only 15 or 20 members. As late as January, 1959, the group claimed only 196 members. There are 440 members now, according to president M. Edward Smith, 221 Wilshire, Arlington Heights.

"THIS IS largely due to the fact that realtors are now required to have all their salesmen belong to the association," explains Smith.

"Although this may sound un-democratic, it is the best way of assuring that salesmen, as well as their bosses, will follow the code of ethics set up by the board," Smith continued.

The code of ethics forms the major part of the group's governing process. "Violators may be ousted from the association and are then prohibited from advertising themselves as realtors."

THE TITLE of realtor is a copywrited term which may be claimed only by members of the national association, which works through local boards such as the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

"This right has been tested in the courts, some real estate men preferring to fight it out in the courts rather than lose the title of 'realtor,'" Smith informs.

The code of ethics deals with all aspects of the real estate business, providing instructions for the realtors' professional growth as well as outlining acceptable and unacceptable practices.

According to the code, realtors "should not be instrumental in introducing into a neighborhood a character of property or use which will clearly be detrimental to property values in that neighborhood."

He should see "that financial obligations and commitments regarding real estate transactions are in writing," that "he charges for his services only such fees as are fair and reasonable, and in accordance with local practice in similar transactions."

THE REALTOR "should not undertake to make an appraisal that is outside the field of his experience," or "submit or advertise property without authority, and in any offering, the price quoted should not be other than that agreed upon with the owners."

He should seek "no unfair advantage over his fellow realtors and should willingly share with them the lessons of his experience and study."

In all, there are 30 articles to the code, which concludes by declaring that "the realtor has come to connote competence, fair dealing and high integrity resulting from adherence to a lofty ideal of moral conduct in business relations."

According to Smith, 98 per cent of northwest suburban real estate men belong to the association. Realtors are full members, while salesmen are given associate memberships, and persons in related fields such as the building trades, savings and loans firms, and banking, may become affiliate members.

"We have about 65 to 75 per cent attendance at our meetings," Smith points out. "The average throughout the country is only 42 per cent."

THE ORGANIZATION is more than a code of ethics the Arlington Heights man asserts. "We conduct courses for persons in the real estate business. You'd be surprised how much a realtor who has been in the business many years can learn from one of our eight week courses."

The course, which is operated as part of the adult education program at Prospect high school this fall, instructs real estate men in legal aspects of the business.

The national association, whose office is in Chicago, provides literature as well as large library facilities designed to keep realtors "up" on legislation and changes in the profession.

"We are seeking to win recognition as experts on real estate," Smith concluded. "We want realtors to be in a position to help their communities and to bring credit to their profession."

Fullerton Attends Sales Conference

Paul Fullerton, manager of the A & P store at 36 N. Main st., Mt. Prospect, attended the second annual sales conference for store managers in Chicago last week.

Major points discussed were courtesy, merchandising, advertising and a top merchants awards sales campaign.

Baird & Warner Sales Are Up

Sales are up in 1960, reports Baird & Warner real estate firm, 220 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights.

This fact is reflected by enlargement of the Baird & Warner staff to seven sales personnel, and by figures which show 1960 totals have already passed total sales for 1959, according to Robert G. Walters, district sales manager.

Walters also disclosed that an eighth salesman will be added in the near future. Comments Walters: "We're really out for business."

Variety of Flooring Is Now Available to New Homeowners

EARLY COLONIAL farmhouse? The floor of apparent weathered white brick conveys this impression. Actually, the "brick" is linoleum, a special type whose surface is embossed for three-dimensional realism. The brick design is one of a number available in embossed inlaid linoleum for the home. (SS

The family planning the renovation of a single room or the construction of an entire home will find the selection of resilient flooring one of the easier tasks they face. So many flooring styles and patterns are available today that they are almost sure to find some that strike their fancy.

Resilient flooring offers advantages that will make any home more attractive, more comfortable and more valuable. In the first place, it brings design and color to an area that can contribute a great deal to the interior decoration of a room. Resilient floors are more comfortable and quiet underfoot than other types of floors, and are particularly easy to clean. A quick swish with a damp mop is the only daily care needed, and occasional washings and waxings will keep the floor bright and spotless.

THE TWO MAIN categories of resilient flooring are tiles and sheet floors. The tiles are available in a number of sizes, with 9" x 9" the most common. Sheet floors generally are made in rolls 6 feet wide, so they can be installed almost without seams. This is important for areas like kitchens and bathrooms, where water may be spilled on the floor, or for rooms in which an over-all design effect is desired. But tiles have their advantages, too. They are generally easier for the do-it-yourselfer to install, for example, and custom designs can be easily built into the floor by laying out the tiles in a set arrangement.

Falling into the two categories are 10 basic types of flooring, each with distinct characteristics:

1. Linoleum sheet flooring—Probably the best known of all resilient floors, linoleum offers exceptional resistance to greases so it is one of the best types for the kitchen. It is made in more than a hundred different patterns.

2. Vinyl sheet flooring—An ultra-smooth surface and crisp, bright colors are typical of vinyl flooring. A new type, made with a special backing, can be installed even in basements or basementless houses, unlike linoleum. It is resistant to greases, alkalis, and most household chemicals. (True resilient flooring, which is cemented into place for years of wear, should not be confused with floor coverings, such as felt-base rugs and roto-vinyl types. Floor coverings have printed patterns and are generally loose-laid on the floor.)

3. ASPHALT tile—Usually lowest in cost of all resilient floors, asphalt tile is a good value for the family operating on a tight budget. It is not as easy to maintain nor as comfortable underfoot, however, as most other types.

4. Linoleum tile—This is simply linoleum cut into block form to facilitate handling. Its general characteristics are the same as those of linoleum sheet flooring.

5. Vinyl-asbestos tile—The do-it-yourselfers' favorite, this flooring offers the advantages of many "luxury-type" floors, but at a low budget cost. It is easy to install and may be used anywhere in the home, even in basements.

6. Cork tile—Quietest and most comfortable of all smooth-surface floors, cork tile adds a look of dignity and warmth to bedrooms, dens and other rooms. It is not as easily maintained in heavy traffic areas as other types, so is not recommended for kitchens and foyers.

7. Rubber tile—Exceptional recovery from indentation gives rubber tile a springy comfort underfoot. Called the aristcrat of fine floors, it has a smooth, plate-like surface with high light reflectance. Lighter guages may be installed by the do-it-yourselfer.

8. Linotile—This is not the same as linoleum cut into blocks. Linotile is specially processed for wearability and is regarded as the most durable of all resilient floors. It is highly resistant to indentation and scratching, and is one of the easiest of all types to maintain.

9. "Solid" viny tile—Lustrous and stain-free, vinyl tile is recommended for homes in which a true look of luxury is desired. It is made in patterns ranging from the bright and bold to the pleasantly subdued.

10. VINYL-CORK tile—The rich, nutlike tones of cork gleam up through clear vinyl plastic in this flooring. The natural cork is sealed under the smooth vinyl surface, so the tile may be used even in kitchens and other heavy traffic areas of the home.

The first step in choosing resilient flooring for the home is to decide what is expected of the floor. Certain types of flooring — vinyl-asbestos tile, asphalt tile, solid vinyl tile, vinyl sheet floors with Hydrocord backing, and rubber tile—may be installed anywhere in the home, even in basement rooms. Some other types, such as linoleum, should not be installed directly over concrete that is in contact with the ground. For these, subfloor should be "suspended," with an adequate air space below.

The location of the room, then, is important in determining the kind of floor that can be chosen. Here are some other factors to be considered:

What is the room to be used for? Is food or water likely to be spilled on the floor? If so, then perhaps one of the sheet materials is the answer.

Is the room designed for sleeping or undisturbed study? If so, then cork tile or rubber tile may be the best choice, since they are exceptionally quiet underfoot.

IS LOW COST the main consideration? Then asphalt tile and vinyl-asbestos tile are logical choices.

Are wearability and easy care the most important factors? Linotile, solid vinyl tile and vinyl sheet flooring are all excellent selections.

The ultimate design effect, of course, is often the really decisive factor in choosing a floor. The homemaker can choose from hundreds and hundreds of patterns. One manufacturer, Armstrong Cork Company, has more than 500 patterns in its line alone. Of these, a number would do for any given room in the home.

For advice in selecting the one flooring type and pattern that best suits her fancy, the homemaker can turn to any reliable flooring retailer. He can show her the styles that will add the flair of fashionable floors to her home.

Prospect Heights: Pleasant Suburbia

Prospect Heights, away from the bustle of its larger neighbors, is one of the northwest suburbs most desirable communities.

Established by Smith & Dawson realty in the mid-thirties, Prospect Heights offers winding streets, lovely trees and wooded areas.

It has excellent school facilities, a public and parochial grade school, public high school, and parochial boys' high school.

A LOVELY swimming pool operated under the auspices of the Lions club Aquacenter for residents only offers lots of uncrowded fun.

There are four churches in the community, including Roman Catholic.

Prospect Heights has its own self-contained shopping center to fill all family needs. A professional building with laboratory and pharmacy is available to accommodate medical needs.

Police protection is provided by the county sheriff's police and a separate fire protection district serves Prospect Heights. Because this is the largest unincorporated community in Illinois, the area consequently has lower taxes. (SS

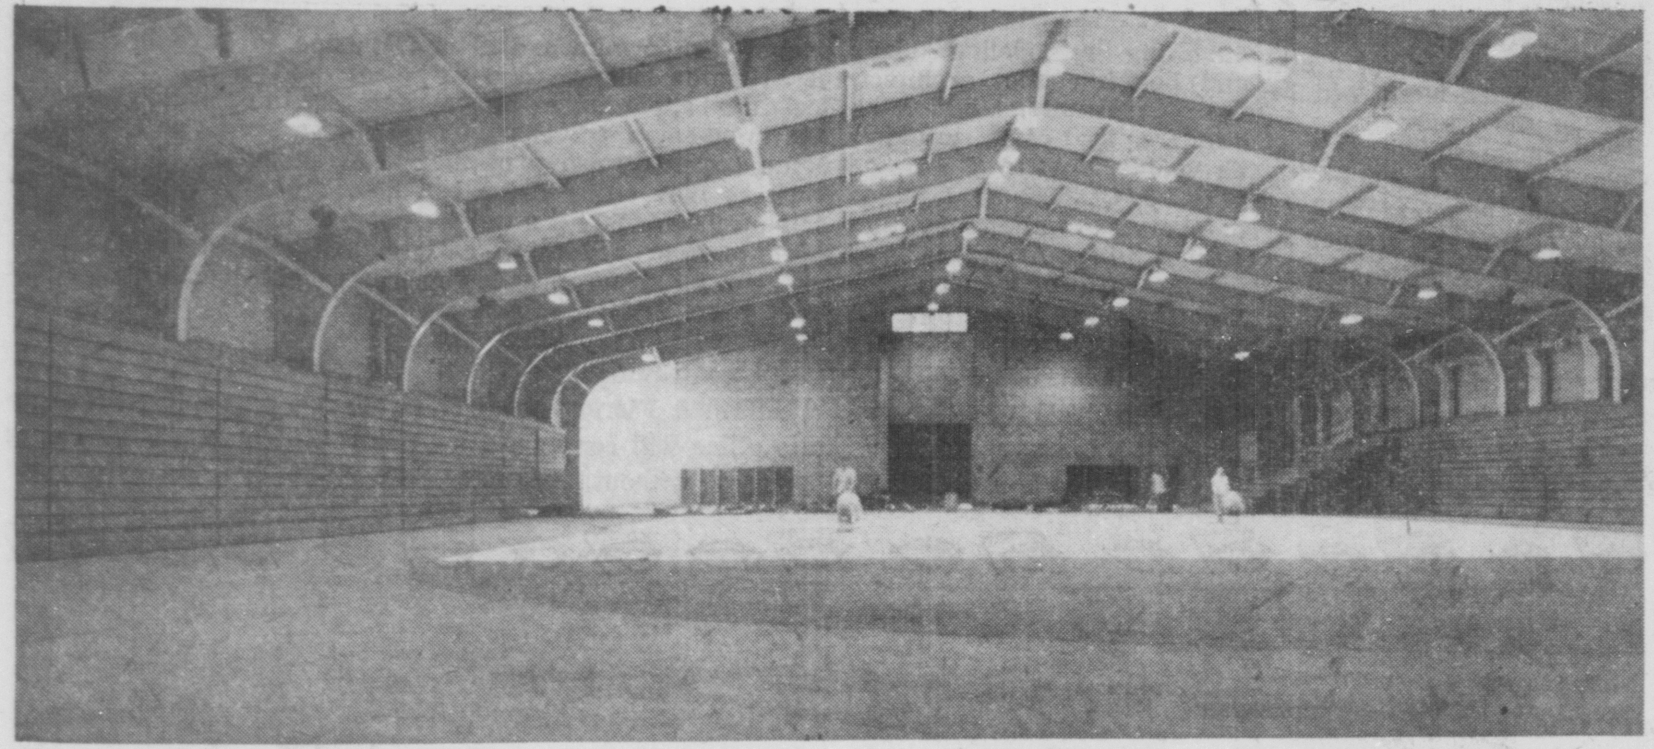
Responsibilities and Rights

Suburb Athletics Programs Have Grown with Territory



IN ITS DEVELOPMENT of physical education and athletic facilities Prospect high school is nearing completion of its impressive fieldhouse. The permanent wood floor and rubberized asphalt on the remainder of the floor area and track are completed and the roll-away bleachers will accommodate 3,500 persons. (SS

by BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

Participation in athletics is a privilege involving both responsibilities and rights.

The athlete's responsibilities are to play fair, to give his best, to keep in training, and to conduct himself with credit to his sport and the school he represents.

In turn he has the right to optimal protection against injury and should expect the proper instruction, conditioning, regulation, and conditions of play.

For an effective contribution to total fitness, the physical education programs must be administered with due regard for each student's maximum development.

THIS NEED for total fitness in the modern age has brought about many curricular changes. And chief among these is the need for a unified and effective health, physical-education and recreation-educational program. The special needs for the total fitness can largely be met by a program of such a broadened scope.

Booming is the most fitting one word description for the big expansion in athletics. Booming in the number of sports and facilities available; booming in the number of schools and organizations fielding teams.

A few years ago Willowbrook and Prospect high schools were just projects on the architects' drawing boards.

Today Willowbrook high school in Villa Park, a 7.5 million dollar plant, has a physical education setup that will take care of 2,500 students. The main gymnasium can provide for a seating capacity of 4,000 for major events but can be divided by bleacher arrangements to provide three teaching stations.

UNDER THE gymnasium is a field house area which includes a running track, broad jump and high jump pits, and an area for wrestling.

The separate girls' gym is located above locker rooms and can be divided by a folding door so that it can be used for two dance or exercise groups or as one main athletic court.

Between the two gyms is an area that can be converted into another gymnasium or swimming pool. All of the physical activity areas are complete with storage rooms, offices, locker rooms, etc.

Today Prospect high school, a 3.5 million dollar structure, continues to move ahead in its development of physical education and athletic facilities.

UNDER THIS expansion plan Prospect will soon boast a fieldhouse that will seat 3,500 persons. A permanent wood floor 100' x 78' is already completed in addition to the rubberized asphalt on the remainder of the floor area with taped or painted courts and track.

The football field and outdoor track are a reality and development continues in both indoor and outdoor facilities at the Foundry rd. school.

People closely associated with high school sports through the years have been amazed with their growth.

Basketball in Arlington Heights was once played in Meyer's dance pavilion, located in the center of a grove of trees at the rear of the present Hill-Behan lumber co. Its only conveniences were one potbellied stove and a few electric lights.

Today Arlington high school's gymnasium seats 4,000 fans and with bleachers retracted, the gym floor measures 108 feet by 96 feet, six inches. Each of the two balconies provides an area approximately 81 by 25 feet for gymnastics and special activities.

Several years ago the athletic programs in suburban sports listed only football, basketball, track, and baseball, the so-called major sports.

Today Arlington, Prospect, Willowbrook and a majority of the other schools in the Chicago area include cross country, gymnastics, wrestling, golf, and tennis in their expanding athletic programs.

Some schools have swimming teams, and it is felt that soccer and bowling may soon become sports in interschool competition.

SINCE 1945 five new sports have been added to Arlington high's program. Golf came in around 1945 with cross country initiated in 1948. Then, in successive years tennis, wrestling, and gymnastics joined the fold.

To provide an adequate program requires more than the provision of a basketball arena with a shower or two for the players. It requires more than two or three acres of space beyond that required for the school building alone.

There must be a new vision in school building and planning. It isn't realistic to expect 100 per cent results or anywhere near perfection when provisions aren't effective.

But the schools aren't alone in this area.

It has been long established that recreation is a fundamental human need essential to the well-being and fitness of all people.

In an age of expanding leisure, each community is faced with the problem of helping its citizens occupy their leisure time with worthwhile pursuits. Past experience has shown that the most successful solution to this problem is to provide a broad program of community recreation activities which will appeal to the needs and desires of citizens of all ages.

THE AREA park districts are presenting expanding athletic programs with interest picking up in all suburban communities. Just last week the Arlington Heights Park District announced new classes in tumbling, trampoline, judo, and self defense. These new programs represent just a small segment of a large, overall development in this field.

Living in the modern age is far more complex than it was several generations ago.

The trend to live longer and faster, and the complexities which arise have brought about a demand that human beings of all ages possess healthy bodies and minds as well as a capacity for exceptional endurance.

Strength and endurance can be developed in most individuals in a realatively short time if they are organically sound and free from disease. However, it must be maintained by systematic activity.

In writing for the Journal of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, I. A. Eisenhardt stressed that individual fitness brings about national fitness.

"We must persuade people that one can never 'retire' from active participation . . . that life is activity."

FENCING IS ONE of the new physical education courses brought into several of the area high schools. If student interests, needs, and capacities are to be met, there must be greater variety in both required or core activities and in the elective aspects of the physical education programs.

Strong Demand For Better Houses In Mount Prospect

L. George O'Day, local realtor and builder, asserts Mt. Prospect has "arrived" and can justifiably claim a high place among the more desirable of Chicago's residential suburbs.

"Mt. Prospect's marvelous schools and unsurpassed municipal facilities together with the matchless transportation afforded by new expressways and O'Hare Field make Mt. Prospect virtually irresistible," said O'Day. "The wise supervision of its architectural, planning and zoning bodies has produced as pretty and high value a town as exists anywhere in the 30-mile radius of Chicago.

"This growth in prestige has opened new horizons of particular interest to speculative builders. No longer need a speculator have fear of building expensive homes here, he said. In evidence he offers his experience of recent months during which he test-built and readily sold five finer Colonial type homes at prices ranging from $42,000 to $48,000. He now believes firmly that if builders produce what people want, they'll buy, and that price need no longer be of concern.

"Further in evidence," he states, "the brokerage of spacious used homes shows considerable activity and demand. Homes with four bedrooms, multiple baths and family rooms sell like hot cakes, and at unprecedented high prices. The only problem his organization has encountered is that the supply is far insufficient for the demand." (SS

Bigger, Better Clock Coming

"Tell 'em the clock will be out of commission, but a bigger and better clock will be there in the future."

Thus spoke Clarence Hendrickson as he spoke of the remodeling plans of Willson & Florence at the corner of Evergreen and Northwest highway in Arlington Heights.

"Lots of people tell us they set their watches as they look at our clock in the morning," continued Clarence. "We hate to shut the thing off, but we have big remodeling plans and between the architect, the carpenters, and the painters, the clock wouldn't be visible, anyway."

THAT CLOCK so familiar to everyone walking by that corner in Arlington, or driving westbound on the highway, will soon have a new office around it. Ken Carrick, advertising director for the real estate office, explains it this way:

"Our corner is a prominent one in the downtown district of Arlington Heights, and we feel the appearance affects the impression travelers (or home buyers) receive of the town as they either drive by or stop in. We feel it's worthwhile to do everything we can to help build up the downtown area, and embarked on this remodeling plan as our small contribution."

Willson & Florence real estate office will continue doing business without the clock, but hope to have both timepiece and newly remodeled quarters in operation as early in November as possible.

Not expecting to help with the painting, but definitely hoping prospects will continue to stop in are salesmen Harry Norstrom and Andy Zorn.

Cooperation

Weakness can't co-operate with anything. — President Eisenhower.

New, Built-In Barbecue Introduced in Suburbs

A new, built-in barbecue that fits into a 20-by-21 inch space on a standard kitchen counter has just been introduced by NuTone, Inc., well-known manufacturer of electrical built-ins for homes.

Everything from a 14-pound turkey to three Cornish hens slip on the sturdy rotisserie unit.

Its special feature is the anodized aluminum cover which retains and reflects heat and reduces cooking time.

The rotisserie and cover come off in seconds when you want to use the grill. Flare-ups and smoke are prevented by channeled grids that drain away fat into a hidden drip pan.

TO MAKE its new barbecue entirely practical for indoor use, NuTone has developed a new double-power hood-fan with automatic thermal switch and pilot light.

These barbecues can be obtained from Walter Darrel Kitchens. 210 E. Northwest hwy., Arlington Heights. There are no displays of the built-ins at present, but the management says it will have one in the near future.

Another NuTone barbecue model, using charcoal, is available for patios and terraces.

Barbecue Model 4000 (Built-in Electric Barbecue) —List price, $129.95.

Barbecue Model 4020 (Rotisserie Attachment) — List price, $34.95.

Nelson Enlarges For Sales Boom

To meet increased business demands, Nelson Realty, 6 W. Northwest Hwy., Mt. Prospect, recently remodeled and practically doubled its size.

The two and a half year old realty firm removed a partition and took over the building formerly occupied by Bar Construction co. According to President Robert L. Nelson, the addition was needed because "business is up over 100 per cent compared to a like period last year."

IT WAS THE second remodeling job for the firm, which now boasts a Colonial motif with attractive colored photographs of Mt. Prospect parks, schools, and churches. New fixtures, carpeting, and color schemes were part of the improvement.

Nelson Realty has four salesmen and a saleswoman, and specializes in Mt. Prospect, Prospect Heights, and Arlington Heights real estate sales. Robert Nelson, an Arlington Heights resident, reports over 105 realty transactions for the year. (SS

Subdivision Controls Help Protect Suburban Character

by BRUCE LADD

It was 16 years after the Allied armies' invasion of Europe that a second D-Day developed in the northwest suburbs.

The "Day of Decision" was Tuesday, July 5, 1960.

On that momentous day, Circuit court Judge Cornelius J. Harrington ruled that a village ordinance requiring a subdivision developer to dedicate land for public use is unconstitutional.

The decision came as the result of a suit filed by home builder Salvatore DiMucci against the village of Mt. Prospect. DiMucci claimed a village ordinance requiring him to donate one acre of land for every 60 homes he built in his Elk Ridge Villa development south of the village was unjust.

THE VILLAGE, in turn, claimed that state statutes gave it the power to make the demand. The case is being appealed to the state Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, to put it mildy, the ramifications of this court decision have been tremendous in scope. The suit brought to a head a problem which has been steadily mounting across the nation since the building boom began after World War II.

The modern house builder, transforming barren land into a mature community in a few short months, has created demands of immense proportions on already existing villages. Taxing bodies, especially school districts, have been hard pressed to keep up with services demanded by the residents of new subdivisions.

What are builder's obligations to the village, the school district, the park system, the prospective home buyer? How far can the village go in laying down the ground rules for housing and industrial developments? Where does the taxpayer stand in respect to the builder vs. village dispute?

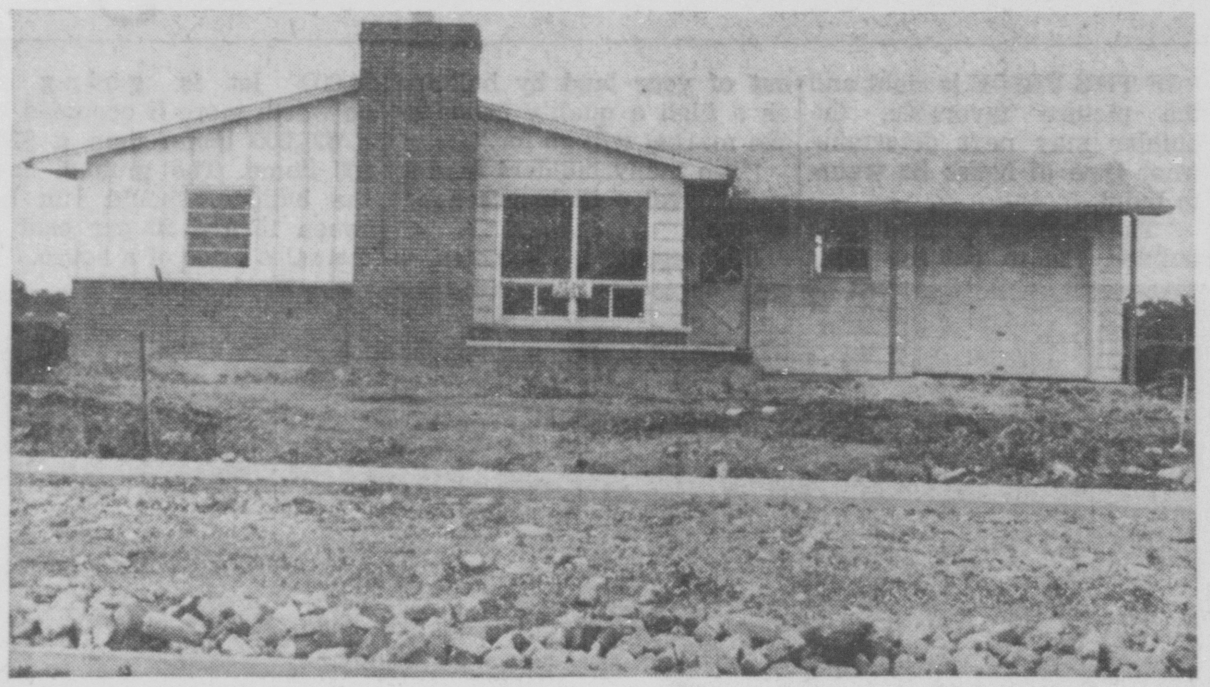
ANSWERS TO these questions vary. Some are simple, others complicated, and still others cloaked in ambiguity. Judge Harrington's ruling has caused suburban governments to give renewed consideration to the age-old problem of procurring lands for public use.

Most of the northwest suburbs have ordinances regulating the subdivision of lands. Most of the ordinances require a builder to dedicate a percentage of his property for public use.



UNFINISHED HOME in a northwest subdivision is yet to be surrounded by streets, sidewalks, trees, and street lighting. The builder is obligated to make these improvements. Some builders will do more than is required, keeping in mind the buyer's satisfaction and comfort. Others will do less. (SS

Wheeling's subdivision control ordinance, for example, stipulates that "in addition to land dedicated for street and alley purposes, the subdivider shall also dedicate for school, park or other public purposes land....at the rate of at least five per cent of the area, but not more than 10 per cent of any subdivision containing more than five lots."

The Wheeling ordinance further provides that "if the dedication of land in the particular instance shall not be practicable or beneficial, the board of trustees shall determine or accept in lieu of a dedication of land any other consideration of not less than the value of the land which would otherwise have been dedicated."

THIS DEMAND for the dedication of land prompted DiMucci to file his suit. DiMucci's lawyers argued the ordinance contemplates the taking of private property for public use without just compensation and is therefore unconstitutional. The court agreed.

Mt. Prospect and Wheeling are not the only area villages employing the subdivision control ordinances. Addison, Arlington Heights, Bensenville, Hoffman Estates, Palatine and Rolling Meadows also have them. Elk Grove Village is drafting one now.

Though they don't at the present time use the ordinance in its written form, the villages of Itasca, Roselle and Wood Dale do demand land dedication and other concessions from builders.

School districts, hardest hit by the DiMucci suit outcome, have already bonded themselves to the hilt to keep up with the heavy demands of growing families in expanding subdivisions. School districts have felt the squeeze in their educational budgets because of the lag in tax assessments collection and the distribution procedures caused by the archaic state revenue code.

Only two factors have anabled schools to meet the demand. One is cooperation from builders. The other, much more effective, is the village ordinance requiring dedication. Now the latter is gone and the former made weaker than before.

THE BUILDER'S obligation to the village, its arms of government, and its people is now a moral question. There is no legal argument left for the taxing bodies. Therefore, cooperation between builder and village takes on great importance.

In Hoffman Estates, the F & S Construction company has donated sites and complete schools. This epitomizes the cooperative attitude. But the prevailing philosophy of the builder today seems to be "promise everything and think it over later."

To cite this less desirable attitude, we point to a subdivision at Wheeling's west boundary. The builder agreed to donate school sites to the village, but only after a certain amount of time had passed. The school district, being called upon to accommodate the influx of the subdivision's children, was forced to buy land, not being able to wait the two or three years stipulated in the agreement.

Another example was the same builder's promise to pay the school district $175 for each home built and occupied. This is not an overly generous offer to begin with. After deciding they weren't making as much money as fast as possible, however, the builder re-negotiated with the school district and came out with an agreemnt to donate only $75 per home.

SO, THE BUILDER has obligations. His obligations to the village consist mainly in adhering to requirements of lot size, water and sewer facilities, street and paving standards, and construction codes. His obligations to the school and park districts consist of making land available, possibly dedicating it free of cost.

His obligations to the people consist of making sure he meets his obligations to the village and school and park districts. The people suffer when a builder shirks responsibility.

How far can the village go in laying down the ground rules for housing and industrial developments? The answer here is the same as it was before the DiMucci decision.

The village has not changed its requests. The difference comes in the village's ability to enforce its demands. No longer can the village demand; it must now ask, and with a smile. It's up to the builder to decide what will be done.

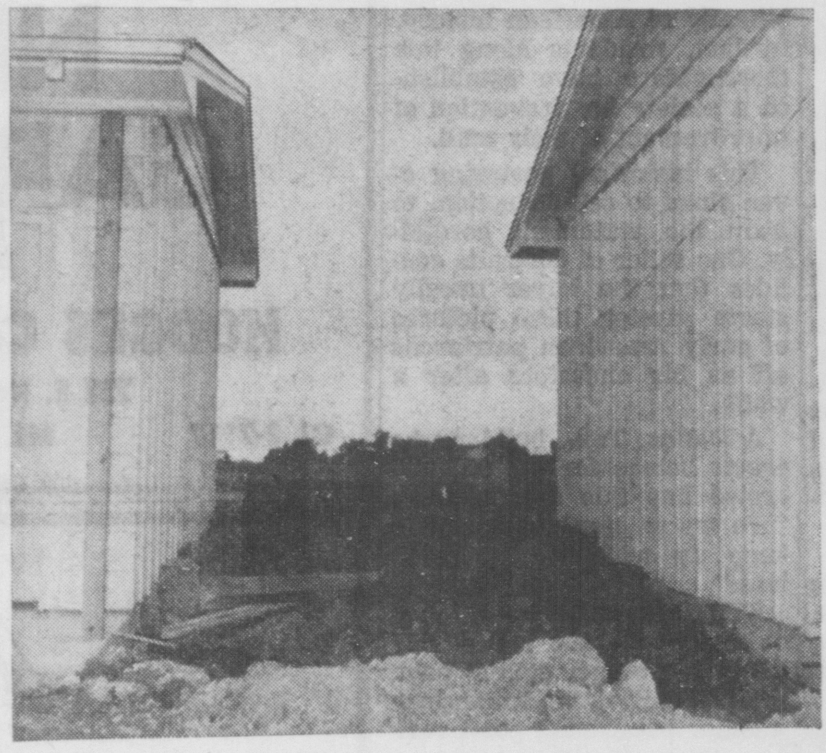
OF COURSE, the village can simply refuse to annex or approve a subdivision, thereby forcing the builder to comply. But this too has been ruled illegal, though it's a speculative matter varying with local circumstances. The irony of the problem is that the builder is able to promise to meet all requests, get what he wants from the municipality, and then back out of the agreement.



AREA SUBDIVIDER leaves only the minimum space required by village ordinance between new homes. A Paddock Publications reporter counted ten feet between the two houses pictured above. The homes will sell from $17,000 to $20,000. (SS

The village must go ahead and ask for what it thinks is right. Then, after a period of waiting, trustees and school officials are tossed onto pins and needles waiting to see if agreements are kept. It's a cat-and-mouse game.

Where does the taxpayer stand? In the cold. All John Q. Taxpayer can do is elect the most intelligent, far-sighted public officials possible and then keep crossd fingers. The hope is that those elected will be able to work with builders.

The taxpayer's stake in the agreements with builders is that of tax money. If the builder fails to assist in providing schools for his subdivision's children, the other residents pick up the tab. The same goes for parks, streets, sewers, and other public improvements.

It is assumed the state Supreme court will uphold Judge Harrington's decision in the DiMucci suit. If so, it will be possible for developers to build thousands of homes with little or no provisions for the education or recreation of the people that buy them.

There is an obligation on the part of the builder to see for his people. Where the line is to be drawn would differ with each community. In a case where homes are raised in strictly rural areas having only country schools, the builder would have a greater obligation to assist than in an area which already has a large school system.

LEGISLATIVE attempts have been made to clarify the builder's moral responsibility. So far the attempts have been futile. Keener debate may be forthcoming in the Illinois General Assembly next year.

Right now the prevailing philosophy of northwest suburban communities is to deal in good faith with builders and hope the consideraton is returned. This has always been the best way to do business. new philosophy is going to bear fruit.

Army of Workers Involved In Building a New Home

by WILLIAM L. DULANEY

What does it take to build a house?

About ten times as many people, plans, and problems as the average homebuyer would imagine, according to one northwest suburban builder.

The developer who made this observation builds about 50 houses a year in the mid-twenties price range. He notes that between 75 and 100 persons are involved from the time he purchases a piece of land until a family moves into one of his homes.

In addition to employing 30 sub-contractors, our builder must deal with engineers, bankers, salesmen, credit managers, advertising men, attorneys, clerical help, architects, interior decorators, and their various helpers.

FROM EXCAVATION for the foundation to the final step of installing the shower door (a delicate process because the door must fit perfectly) the builder counts 62 steps in the construction of one of his houses.

A progress report is kept on each house under construction by use of a large wall chart. The work begins however, long before a shovel of dirt is turned.

The first step is naturally acquisition of land. But you don't just start pricing corn fields, notes our builder. Many developers avail themselves of market analyses of the location in which they hope to build. They determine the economic status, age group, and other statistics on the families with whom they hope to do business.

Our builder has a check list he consults when looking for likely subdivision locations. Can the desired land be annexed to an incorporated community? Are sewer and water connections readily accessible, and what is the cost of bringing them to the property? If necessary, can a charter be obtained for a sewage treatment plant and water supply company?

What are subdivision regulations of the area or community to which annexation is desired? How many lots can be obtained? How much land must be dedicated for public use? What is competition in area? Can financing be obtained?

IF THE PRICE is right and the picture favorable, the builder may next determine what type of house he wants to build.

"The object," says one builder, "is to get the most out of your land by building as a high a quality house as the market will go for."

"Too many builders tend to underdevelop their acreage," he says.

For example, he notes, a $4,000 lot is going to be worth more if occupied by a $25,000 home than a $15,000 home. The ground, says the builder, should run between 15 and 20 per cent of the sales price of a house.

Plans for the type houses decided upon are submitted to sub-contractors for bids. The engineering work begins with the installation of streets, water, and sewer connections.

Once construction gets underway, advertising plays a big part. Our builder notes that a survey revealed that homebuyers visit an average of 13 subdivisions before making a purchase. He cautions, however, that a developer has to be careful not to sell to a prospective housebuyer who would have difficulty meeting his payments.

"Too many people are so taken with the idea of owning a home that they don't spend enough time figuring out their budget, and what price house they can actually afford."

MANY NORTHWEST suburban communities have rigid building and subdivision codes, and while our developer thinks the theory behind them is commendable, he shakes his head over the delays builders experience when their plats and plans are shuttled from committee to commission to board and back again to committee.

"Time is extremely valuable to a builder. He'd better be able to deliver his homes when he says he can. Plus bad weather is always just around the corner ready to bring building to a halt." Other headaches, he notes, are vandalism and thefts of material.

TYPICAL OF scenes throughout northwest suburban area are these houses surrounded by lumber, dirt, and other building materials. Before house is ready for occupancy there may be as many as 100 persons involved. One area builder lists 62 steps in the building of his homes. (SS

Shelter Has Become Suburb Status Symbol

A home, in the dictionary's capsule comment, means everything from residence to native land, an animal burrow to an institution for sheltering orphans.

And while "shelter" has been the commonly accepted definition since cave-dwelling, the home of today is equated as considerably more.

Behind this fence of words lurks the dark desires of the human psychic seeking to project the ego from a split-level or colonial facade.

The new fetish among America's conspicious-consumption classes is to express success through their homes. Borrowing from the social engineers who designed cars appealing to the symbols of success, builders now tune up their pitches with "snob appeal."

EXAMPLES of this are ads stating "No cash for veterans. No down to vets," thereby counteracting the equalization trend which followed World War II with GI loans and subsidized education.

Other house sale advertisements are written exclusively in French, "the snob langguage, with the exception of the price which is native American.

Reason for the shift in emphasis from Detroit to Suburbia in buying status symbols is explained by Vance Packard, author of 'The Status Seekers," as a utilitarian accommodation.

In the home, Packard points out, one can display antiques, old glassware, leather-bound books, classical records, paintings. Such nose-elevation is obviously impossible with a car.

If Packard struck one dominant chore in this scale of values, it was that home-buyer is apparently as insecure as a high wire artist.

The higher the social scale, i.e.,economic level, the more intense the search for roots in early America. Builders have even been able to sell inferior homes for fantastic prices by tossing up a coach lamp out front.

Residents on an exclusive street in Lake Forest, Packard reports, still use gas lights to tie their prestige umbilically to American history. In fact, residents along this thoroughfare have established a society for prevention of improvement of their road.

This historical posturing even sinks to self-deception, to fram the statement cordially. One seller of portraits confides that the buyer usually starts passing these pictures of early American patriarchs off as his ancestors after a while.

A Dallas, Tex., builder who erects homes for the oil field crowd has this quaint view: "We try to create a desire to keep up with the Rockefellers."

STREET ADDRESSES synonimous with the status ladder are a bigger selling point than quality workmanship; another bargaining point realtors stress to the status scramblers is proximity to a golf course, another image of "having arrived."

While status-seeking has been dismissed with a chuckle and shrug and is categorized along with such harmless pastimes as "Gamemanship," it does have its ugly consequences.

The Commission on Race and Housing has charged that mass builders have contributed a good deal to intensification of racial segregation by throwing up development communities outside of metropolitan centers restricted to Caucasian members of society.

And the one-class community, an entity in itself with its own shopping center and community center, is producing a homogeneity of tastes, desires, goals.

With a look-alike, think-alike physical setting, it is producing a similar mentality. Packard points out that with such selfcontained communities there is no need to rub elbows with fellow Americans who are of a different class.

Long range effects of the mass-produced community on society are not yet apparent, he reports. But he notes that social scientists have been studying the possible traumas which children might exhibit from this encounter with mono-dimensional living, as one northwest suburban clergyman has called it.

He quotes one student of human behavior as observing that children of the prefabricated era do not have their parents' experience with the wide world beyond.

'The lone and level plains of this development are all they know. Who can tell how inexarobly packaged their personalities will prove to be?"

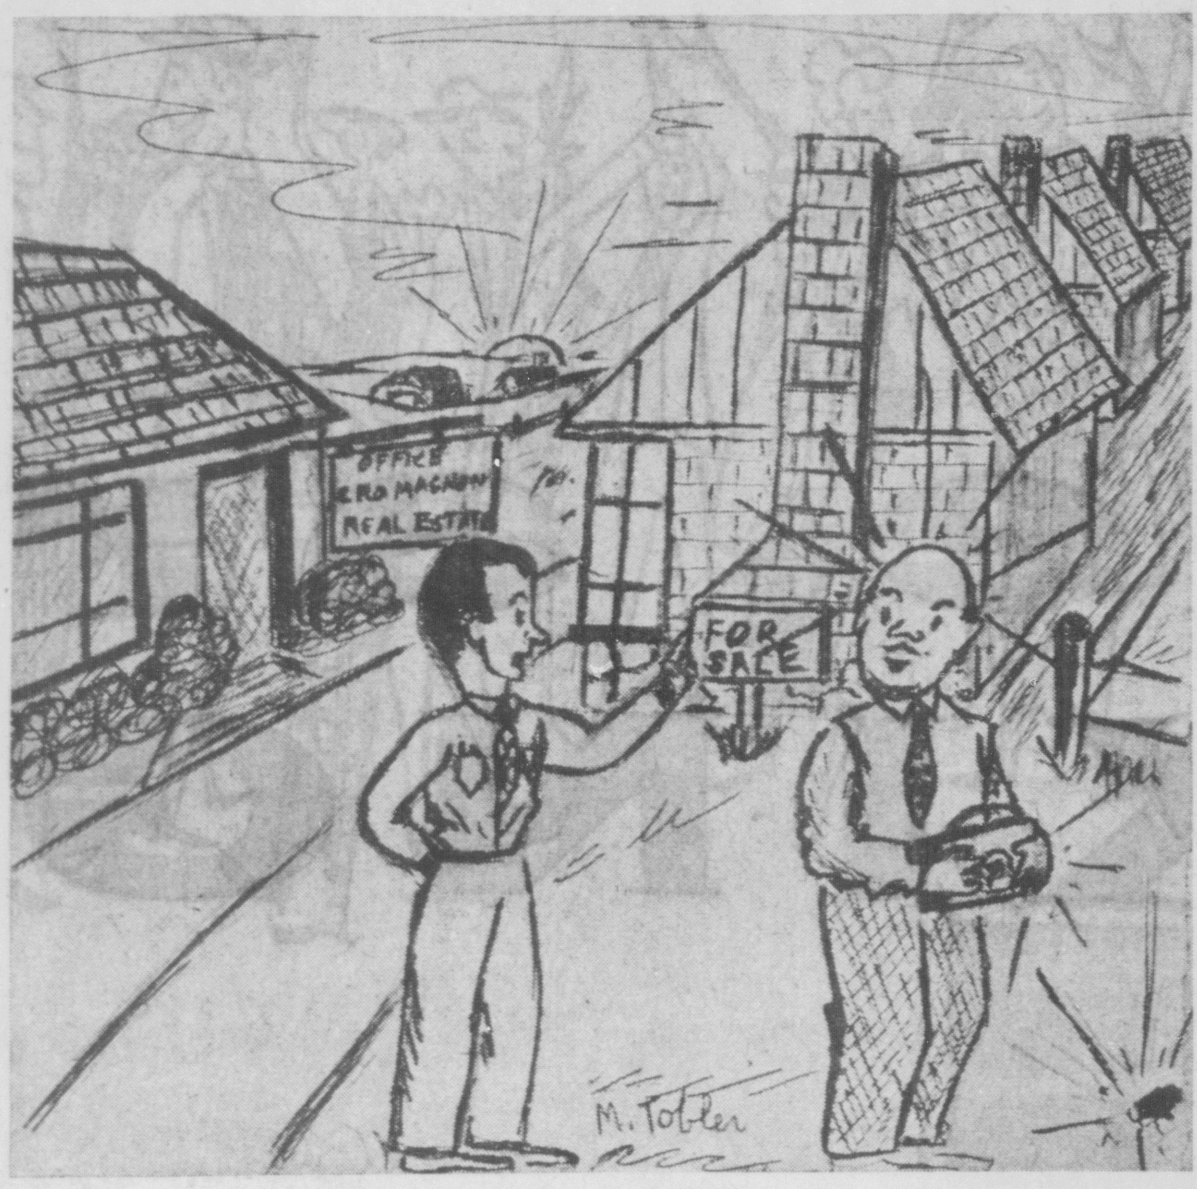
An Unreal Real Estate Deal Illustrates Common Plight



by PHILIP NELSON

The Cro Magnon Real Estate office was going through one of its annual boom and bust periods, when they hired two extra men.

"Here today and gone tomorrow," I sighed. "Ho, hum, here they come."

Joe Perklehorn was green. You could tell. I'm an oldtimer, and he was the only salesman who didn't snap to attention when a "ive one" strolled into the office. All the rest of us paid out our hooks, dangled our lure.

But the other fellow, Sam Malbatross, was a cagy customer. He knew a thing or two. And he wasn't going to be outfoxed by any newcomer.

I watched them tackle the prospects.

"Here comes a 'furniture looker,' " Malbatross would hiss, and we would all look busy or pick up a phone.

THAT IS, all but Perklehorn. Perklehorn was the kind of a chap even the fish feel sorry for when he reels them in on the line.

One day, this Mrs. Snapdragon walked into the office. One look at her black cotton outit and her goofy hat and we all groaned and found something else to do. All, that is, except Perklehorn, who sort of twitched up his eyebrows.

"Pssst," one of the salesman whispered to him. "Curiosity seeker. Maybe she'll go away."

But she didn't. And he didn't. Stop egging her on, I mean . I heard her tell him: "Cyril gave me this $100 to give you for a deposit on that house we looked at, but we h'aint got any money for a down payment."

"But, madam," Perklehorn was saying.

"Now, lookahere," she rattled on, her skinny, bony face taking on that "young-man, don't try and tell me your business" look. "Just because I h'aint got no money down, don't mean you can't sell me a house. Put it all on the mortgage. In maybe six, eight months, we'll pay you what we owe ye. Now, the kind of a house I wan't got to have air-conditioning and a two-car garage, got to have a southern exposure, and we'd like it to be sittin' up on a hill like I saw in one o' these pitcher magazines . . ."

ON SHE WENT, and on and on, and we all sat there, busting while Perklehorn listened real serious-like. Just when she ran out of breath, and was musterin' some to run uphill again, Perklehorn stuck his jaw right in the eye, and said in a real solemn voice:

"Have you ever seen a Yeti?"

Most of the houses Perklehorn was struck with were real dogs. But once in awhile, he'd get a "sleeper." I mean a good house, one that was real sharp, real clean. Trouble is there weren't many prospects clamoring for it that Sunday.

A fella drove up in a 1948 Ford. Uh, uh, Sunday driver, I thought to myself, just a joy rider, somebody who just wants to look at property.

'This is a little gem," I heard Perklehorn telling him as the jay scrutinized a picture in Perklehorn's hand.

The prospect was a cold one. You can tell when they're not hot. This one had probably bought a house already and just wanted to compare. Next thing I knew, he was sitting in Perklehorn's old Buick and they were going to drive over to look at it.

I heard the motor turn over in Perk's car, heard it chug - chug - chug, then die. It was no use. I was just about to sneak out the back, when Perk stuck his head through the door. I was stuck. Had to drive them out to the property.

PERKLEHORN didn't say a word, just let the man rattle on and on about how he wanted something with an exposure that would let the daylight come into the house at 7 o'clock at night but only in the summertime.

"When is the best time to get quick-growing grass?" he asked Perklehorn, and just as Perk was about to open his mouth went on to ask:

"How much can I get off if I pay cash, and what's the minimum down payment I have to make?"

Perk just blinked his eyes, rolled his tongue around the inside of his mouth and was about to say something, when the fellow says:

'I want to buy something right now. I've got the cash in my hands, if—"

And then he rattled off a couple dozen impossible "ifs" that I knew was leaving him an out when he told old Perk that he was sorry, but he couldn't buy the house. Business was slow, so I didn't mind wasting my time, but I knew old Perk was being taken in.

WE HAD FIVE models on the new subdivision. This old fella looked at all of them, knocking on the walls, asked "what's the hole doing in the floor?" for the access panel to the crawl space in the closet, told Perklehorn that he'd liked all the models. Only one thing was bothering him, he said.

"What's that?" asked old Perk.

"Well," drawled the "prospect," twisting his lips as he thought about it, "I like the living room in one of the models and the kitchen in another. Tell the truth, that was a nice basement, too in that model at the end. And there's only one bedroom that appealed to me. Any way of making me a house with one of each of the rooms I like the best?"

Old Perk did't blink an eyelash. "Can't have any changes," he said.

"Oh, no," protested the "buyer," his eyes blinkin' like old Perk had just told him he was a horsethief. "I don't want a single change. Only—"

And then he was off, talking about tearing down one wall and making a fireplace, adding a two-car garage to the living room.

"One more thing," he concluded, "that would be kinda nice. Do you think you could sorta throw in a 240-line three-phase for my power tools? It would come in mighty handy."

I WAS GOING to kick him then, and started back to the car, but old Perk was playing it cool. He pursed his lips, and said:

"I was just thinkin,' " he began slowly, "that I'm makin' a big mistake."

"What do you mean?" the Sunday looker asked.

"Well," said Perklehorn, "this ain't hardly a good piece of land for you to locate in. It's mostly swamp."

"H'mmm," said the fella. "Ain't that bad. It's just a good piece of bottom land. Ought to be real good for growin' flowers and things."

"Naw," said Perk, while my jaw dropped. "When the land settles in about three months, the whole house is liable to cave in, now I think about it."

"I'll bet my last dollar," the buyer said stubbornly, "on this piece of land."

"N' nother thing, too," said Perk. "I forgot to tell yuh, there ain't no schools ner shops around here for miles and the closest thing to transporta—"

"P'shaw," laughed the prospect, "just what I want. We h'int got no kids, and I want to keep the old woman as far away from shops as I kin. As fer transporta—," he tried to go on, but Perk was determined.

"LOOK," SAID he, putting a hand on the man's shoulder, "I don't want you to buy a lemon, but I'm trying tuh tell you these houses are overpriced."

"Horse feathers," said the other, not to be put off now. "What's the matter, somebody tryin' to give you a better price? Tell you waht. Whatever he offers for that model at the end, I'll give yuh a hundert dollars better. What'd ye say?"

Well, there was no puttin' him off. He was signed sealed and delivered. He pulled out a wad of bills that would choke a hippo, gave old Perk the 10 per cent earnest money right on the spot, and it was all over but the closing.

Just as I drove the two of them back to the office and he was getting out of the car to get into his old heap, something fell out of his topcoat pocket.

"Oh," he said to old Perk, "here, I forgot to give you this back."

"Thanks," said Perk, his nose twitching as he watched the old geezer drive off, swinging the object, some kind of meter as he watched.

"What's that?" I asked old Perk.

"Oh, nothin,' " he said casually. "Just an old Geiger counter I happened to have layin' around."

I LOOKED at Perk, and I looked at the Geiger counter. Finally, exasperated, I put it to him pointblank: "What in the Sam Hill is it fer?"

"Oh, nothin,' " he said in that maddening slow way he had of talking. "Just thought I'd try a little experiment, planted a little rock that used to have uranium ore in that end house, that's all, loaned this fella the counter."

The Cro Magnon Real Estate office ain't the same any more. Every salesmen comes equipped with one of them new-fangled counters now.

By the way, have you ever seen a Yeti?

Dear Charles:

It is a pleasure to receive a letter such as you wrote September 25 on the first anniversary of our acquiring our new home. During the confusion of the final transactions and the whirling of one's brain at the figures on the closing statements, I failed to express to you my gratitude for the wonderful co-operation you gave us in both selling our old home and acquiring our new one.

I have tried to make up for this by, at every opportunity, referring acquaintances and friends to your company as the outstanding realtor in Arlington Heights.

I think you do a marvelous job and I wish you continued success.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Charlie:

We are now completely settled in our new home, and we want to take this opportunity to express our appreciation for the fair, businesslike, and courteous manner in which you handled our transaction.

It has been my privilege to work closely with many realtors in this area, and I am happy to include you among those northwest suburban realtors who have earned such enviable reputations for high professional standards in the conduct of their business.

You are to be congratulated on your new trade-in program, and it was a pleasant experience for me to have served as its first customer. As you know, I have wanted to own a traditional home of Colonial architecture and to develop some of my ideas for traditional furnishing and design. Our new home has met all the requirements, including our need for more living space.

Your trade-in guarantee eliminated any uncertainty involved in double financing as well as any possibility of my ending up as the owner of two homes. You made it possible, through your trade-in program, for us to secure our new home when it was available.

As a businessman with limited time available, I appreciated the prompt and convenient service which you provided.

You have demonstrated once again why realtors in the northwest suburbs enjoy such an excellent reputation for service and growth.

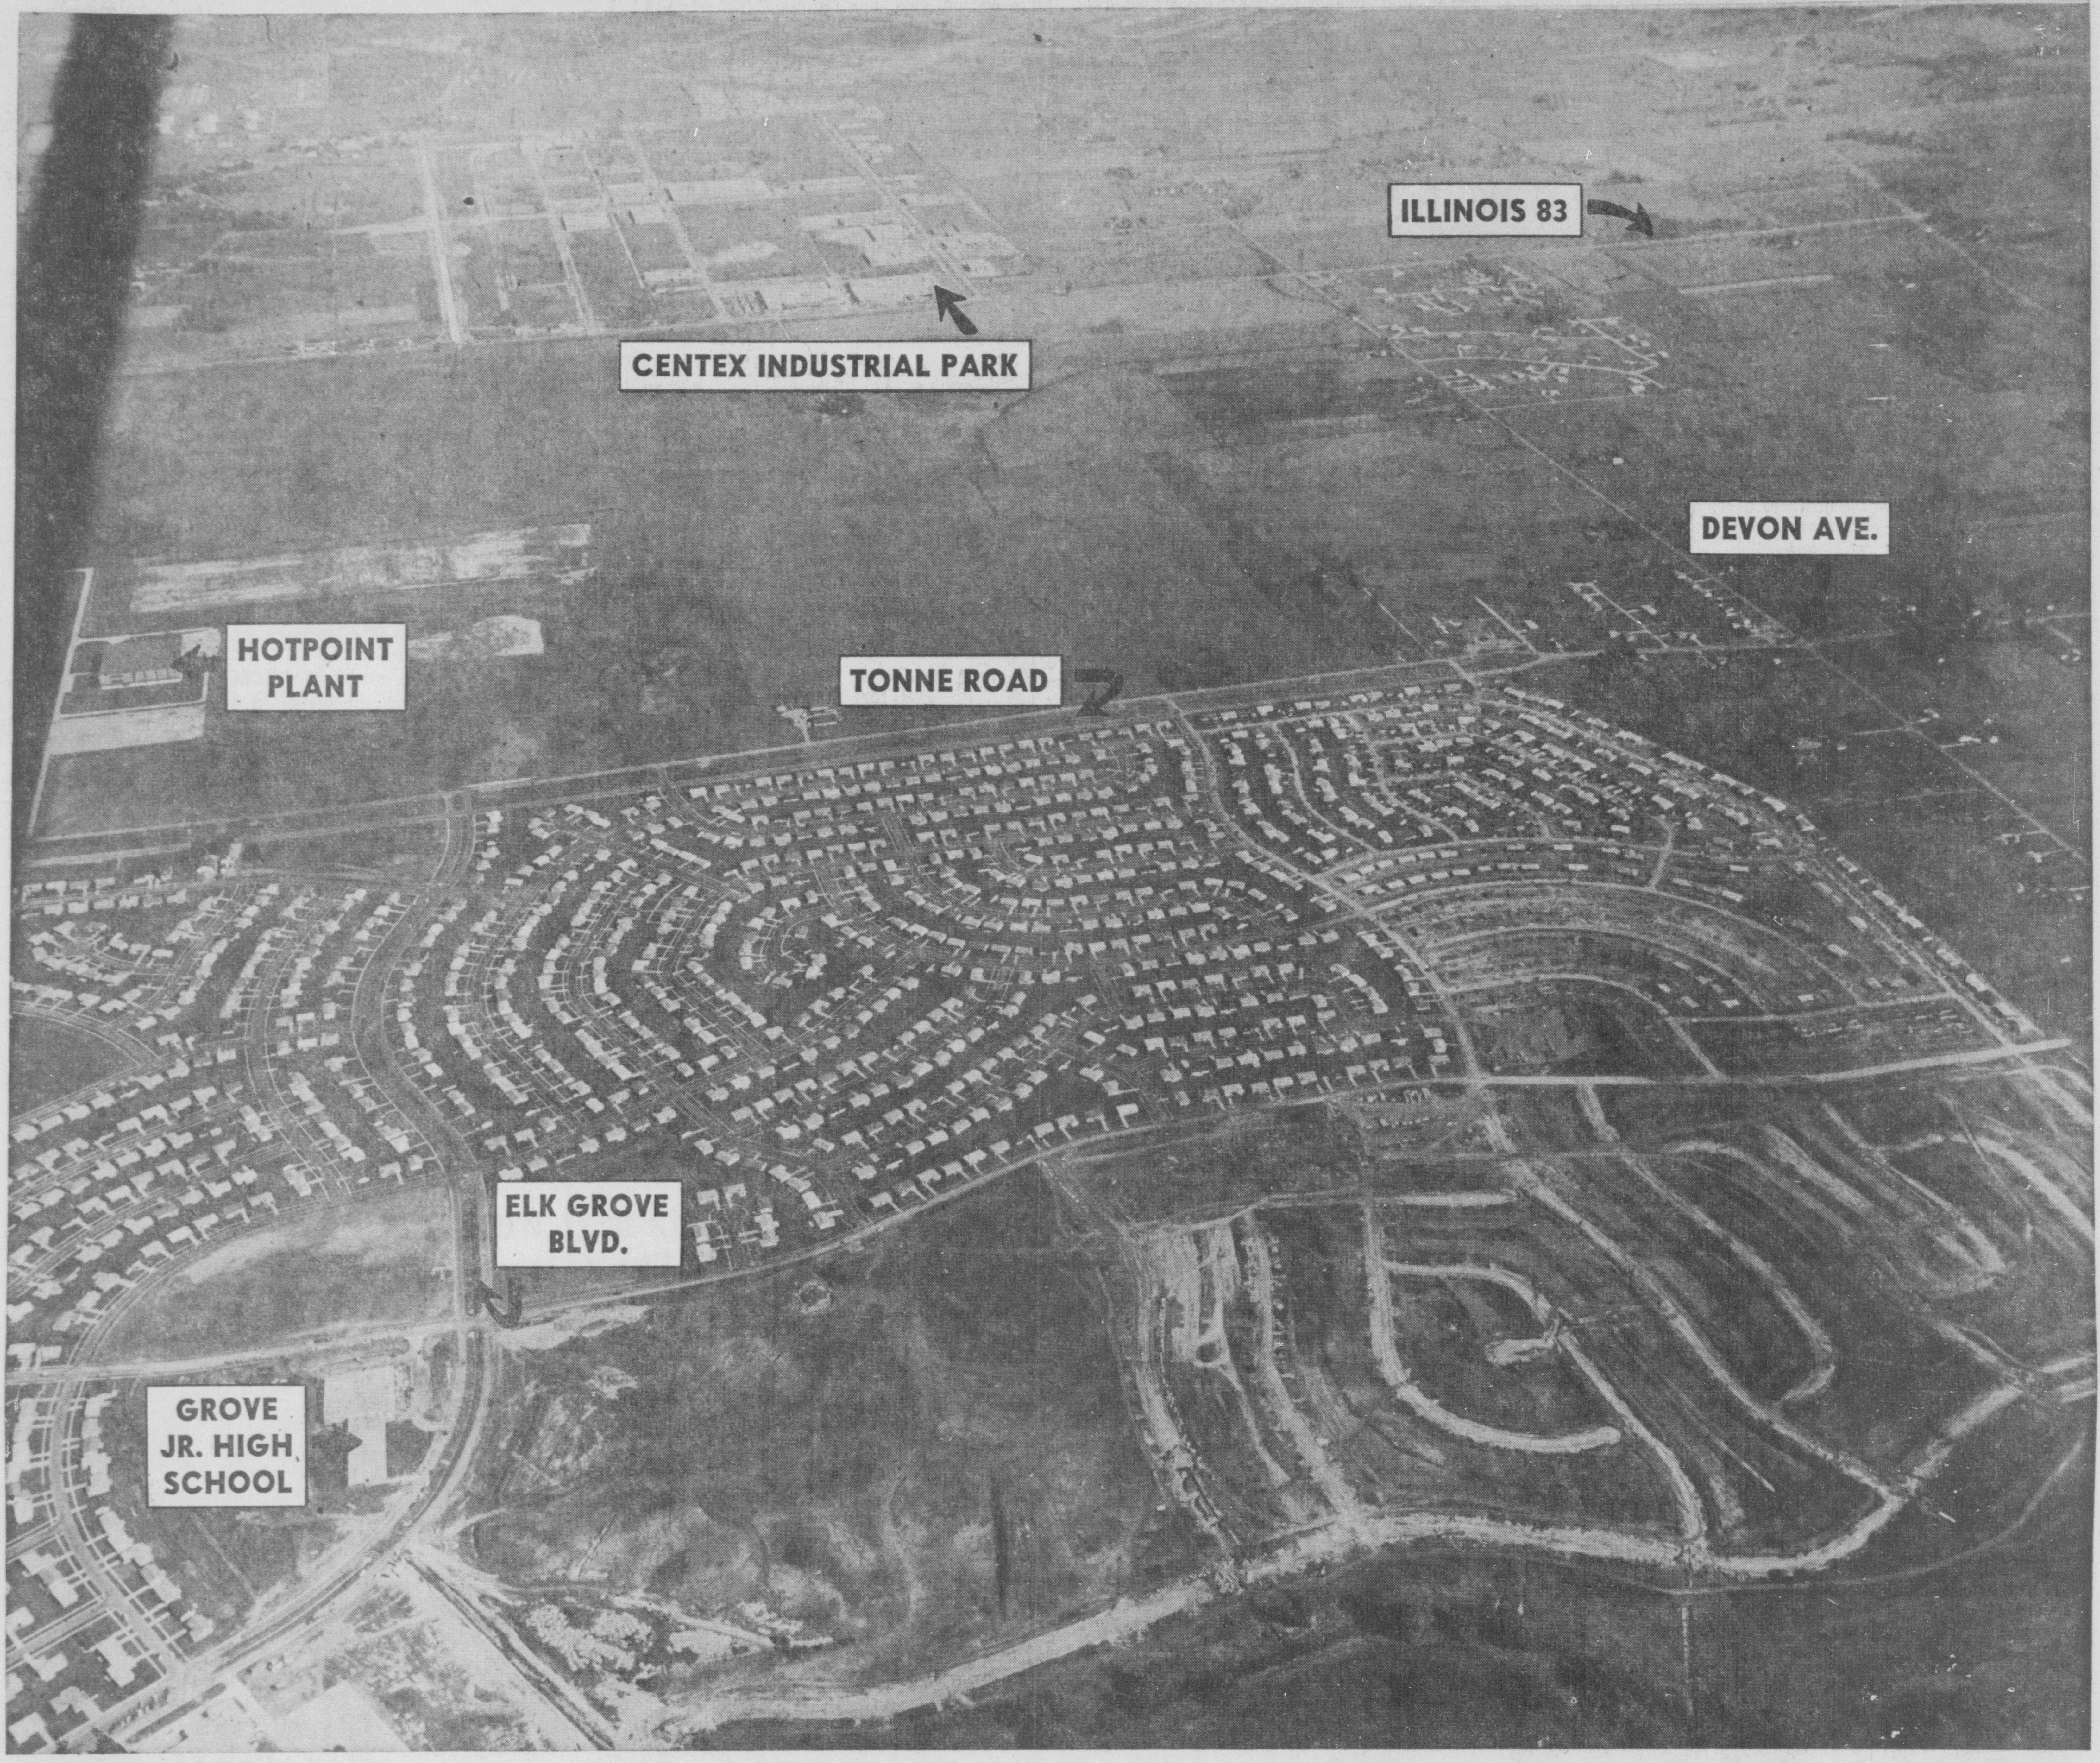
Sprawling Suburbia: Dream Come True



PATTERNS OF PROGRESS stretch out in concentric lines in this aerial view of Elk Grove Villiage where both completed homes and land still being developed merge. In the upper portion of the photograph is the Centex Industrial Park, which illustrates the wedding of selected industry with residential areas in balanced communities. Typical of the booming northwest suburban area, Elk Grove Village residents are looking to industry for tax relief and as a further support of educational facilities. With the population explosion in this area, social planners and zoning experts are taking another look in an effort to even keep abreast of the problems expected to arise with the mighty migration from urban to suburban life.

(SS

Populations Spiral Upward

Underwritten by unparalleled prosperity, supported by ingenious technology, accentuated by economic trends which push jobs as well as people into the hinterlands, suburbia is a dream come true for 50 million Americans.

A yearning for grassroots living pulls city-dwellers to the countryside, persuades them to invest their higher incomes in ranch houses, barbecue grills, grass seed and septic tanks.

A vision of a pastoral scene turns potato fields into mass developments, transforms sleepy half-rural towns into commuter bedrooms, gives a whole generation of children a first-hand knowledge of green grass and fresh air, and changes the family habits of the nation.

AMERICA'S suburbs in the past decade grew six times faster than the cities and accounted for nearly two-thirds of the national population increase since 1950.

Experts now expect suburban areas to absorb 64 million of the anticipated 80 million population increase by 1980.

Chicago's rapidly-expanding northwest suburbs also reflect this move to suburban communities.

Ten years ago the residents of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, and Palatine were fewer in number than the three villages' grade school children last year.

Since 1950 Arlington Heights population has increased 218 per cent; Mount Prospect 369 per cent; Palatine 181 per cent; Wheeling 664 per cent; Addison 727 per cent Bensenville 172 per cent Itasca 178 per cent; and Roselle 244 per cent.

Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove, and Hoffman Estates were non-existent 10 years ago.

IN 1950 the 46 miles of northwest area from Park Ridge to Harvard—16 villages—had a population of 88,100. That same area today has a population in excess of a quarter million.

Chicago's suburban population is expected to reach 3 million by 1980. Much of this growth will be reflected in the northwest area, which possesses unlimited potential as a result of completion of the toll and express highway network, modernization of rapid transit and other transportation, completion of the world's largest airport—O'Hare Field, and development of the St. Lawrence Seaway system.

A total of 19,091 new homes were built in the northwest suburbs between 1950 and 1960 for a total valuation of more than $350 million—making this area the decade's home building leader in all metropolitan Chicago.

Estimates of the northwest area's growth potential reach as high as a half million population before 1970.

THE OUTLOOK is not all bright and cheerful, however. The population boom will throw even greater strains on the schools, municipal services, and public facilities of local communities.

Mass tract developments have stimulated controversy over construction of "tomorrow's eyesores."

Andrew J. Dallstream, chairman of the Cook county zoning board of appeals recently expressed concern with the "erection of miles of dreary slums in the cornfields of today. Our suburban future is laced with gas stations, shopping centers, and endless rows of bleak, drab housing."

Other critics have stressed that proportionately more sub-standard housing was built in suburbs between World War II and 1960 than in cities.

SOCIOLOGISTS have pointed out that social and family tensions are being created in the burgeoning suburbia by:

—the transition from the sub-cultures of urban and suburban living;

—less time spent together by families; and —the additional expense of home ownership.

They urge establishment of adequate welfare and counseling facilities in the new growing community need.

"The population explosion and changing pattern of metropolitan development spells problems for the suburbs," declares Dr. Curtis D. MacDougall, former chairman of the Cook County Housing Authority and a noted journalist and sociologist. "We must face the problems which this explosion will create. Schools and faculties will have to be expanded. Public jobs will have to be done and paid for. Tremendous disorganization, both social and geographic, will continue to take place. Although suburban slums will be easy to see and attack, the products of such slum—crime, poor health, illiteracy, delinquency, poverty and prejudice—these will be more difficult to treat."

Local Men Named To Board

Dwight D. Guilfoil, Jr., 633 S. Burton pl., Arlington Heights, and William Burhans, 813 Cathy lane, Mt., Prospect, were named to the executive board of the Governor's committee on employment of the physically handicapped.

The appointments were announced recently by George Barr, committee chaiman and president of G. Barr and company.

Guilfoil is president of Paraplegics Manufacturing Co. while Burhans is director of health, education and welfare, Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry.

The Governor's committee which works on a year-round basis to further employment of the physically handicapped, is composed of representatives from civic, fraternal and veterans' groups, as well as the general public and business.

Test Shows Suburb TB Rate Is Low

Five per cent of suburban Cook county school children tuberculin tested during 1959 have been infected with tuberculosis germs.

A total of 17,199 students in 108 schools were tested from January through December, 1959, in the suburbs in a program conducted by the Tuberculosis Institute of Chicago and Cook county (the Christmas Seal agency), the Suburban Cook County Tuberculosis Sanitarium district, local health officers, and school and local physicians.

In the nine high schools and 68 elementary schools of the public system in Cook county suburbs there were 12,570 pupils tested. Of these, 740 were reactors. The rate of reaction among the students was 5.9.

One high school and 30 elementary schools of the parochial school systems in ten suburban towns were tuberculin tested during 1959. A total of 4,629 students were tested; 143 reactors were found. This is a reaction rate of 3.1, just a little more than half that of the students in public schools.

"THESE RESULTS would indicate that the incidence of infection in the suburban area of Cook county is rather low," states Dr. Julius B. Novak, medical director of The Tuberculosis Institute.

In the one parochial high school tested the reaction rate was 5.9. The rate among the elementary parochial schools tested varied from 0.5 in one school to 7.2 in another.

The number of reactors among all elementary pupils tested in parochial schools was an average of 3.0 per cent of the total number tested.

The per cent of reaction in the nine public high schools was 11.4. It varied from 6.7 in one school to 21.8 in another.

IN PUBLIC elementary schools the reaction rate varied from 0.6 in two schools to 10.5 in one. For all 68 public elementary schools the rate of reaction was 2.9.

In the nine public high schools 4,440 students were tested and 506 reacted to the test.

In the 68 public elementary schools a total of 8,130 pupils were tested with 234 reacting.

BIRTHDAY celebration of Benj. Allen & Co. got off to a delicious start when the Sunbeam Corporation presented a big four-tier birthday cake to Robert M. Calvin, president of Benj. Allen & Co. Calvin handed the first slice to Miss Winnie Berry, the Sunbeam home service consultant who baked the cake in automatic fry pans. "This birthday cake will be just one of the highlights of our birthday celebration this week," Calvin said. "We planned this open-house event to thank all our Chicagoland friends who have made our success possible. Our first store opened just two years ago. The public's response was so enthusiastic that we're up to six stores today, with quite a few others being built and being planned," Calvin said. A Sunbeam demonstrator will be at the company's store in Arlington Market shopping center, Arlington Heights, all day Friday and Saturday to serve free cake and coffee.

Centex Construction Tells Of Success in Puerto Rico

Purchase at a price in excess of two million dollars of all the remaining lots in the Santa Rosa Sub-Division in Puerto Rico has been confirmed by Tom Lively, President of Centex Construction company, of Dallas, Texas.

This property was bought jointly by Centex, developers of Elk Grove Village, and the Heftler Construction company of Los Angeles and Miami, from the Santa Rosa Development company, Lively stated.

Centex will be the operating partner and handle the building. The total area involved will accommodate construction of more than 800 three and four bedroom houses ranging in price from $11,000 to $14,000 dollars.

Four model furnished homes from designs by the architectural firm of Muniz-Nunes, Sargent, Webster, Crenshaw and Folley with offices in San Juan (Santurce), Puerto Rico and Syracuse, (N. Y.) will be on display.

"PUERTO RICO has become a leading tourist attraction and with the surge of travel as well as the increased interest in commercial and industrial development, the need for increased modern housing facilities is apparent. As recently pointed out by Governor Luis Munoz-Marin of Puerto Rico, the growth of the net income of Puerto Rico was 9.4 per cent —one of the highest in the world," Tom Lively stated in discussing the Puerto Rico venture.

"What's next for Centex only time will tell," Lively added. "Our activities in both Hawaii and Puerto Rico readily tie-in with the original Centex concept of mobility when Centex was formed in 1950—that is a new kind of construction company, geared for large scale developments, able to adapt its basic skills to any type of structure, ready to move anywhere quickly. Putting this concept into motion internationally should not offer any insurmountable problems, and, we are delighted now to be in Puerto Rico."

With the Santa Rose subdivision purchase Centex becomes not only the largest builder in terms of total number of homes built but geographically as well, Lively feels. Centex projects now extend from Puerto Rico across the nation to Hawaii; and from near the Mexican Border (Corpus Christi and San Antonio, Texas to Alaska (Fairbank, Anchorage and Sitka); in addition more than 50 major projects throughout the eight states of Texas, California, Idaho, Illinois, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Kansas and Indiana, adding to a total valuation of more than $750,000,000.

Outstanding among these building projects is the Centex $200,000,000 development at Elk Grove Village where 2,000 of a 6,000 home-building program have already been completed and more than 70 plant sites in the Centex Industrial Park have been purchased by leading business and industrial firms.

ELK GROVE Village is the only completely integrated city of its kind, with a home community served by its own shopping center and an industrial Center that offers nearby employment and lower taxes to home owners, according to Marshall Bennett, partner of Bennett and Kahnweiler, exclusive sales agents for the village's Centex Industrial Park.

Another major Centex project similar in its overall proportions to the Elk Grove Village development is the new $200,000,000 city of University Park near Boca Raton, Florida. These two developments added to the $100.000,000 Centex home-building projects at Hawaii and its Santa Rosa Sub-division at Puerto Rico, complete this huge home building empire.

Centex has successfully carried out such varied projects as single and multiple family homes, highrise apartments, military housing installations, office buildings, shopping centers, industrial plants, schools, hotels and public utilities.

Farm Installment Buying Pros, Cons in Pamphlet

Millions of Americans buy various goods on the installment plan, but many farmers don't realize that the same idea can be applied to buying or selling farm land.

In a circular just published by the University of Illinois college of agriculture, N. G. P. Krausz reported some advantages and disadvantages of the installment land contract.

For the buyer, this method offers a low down payment. Installments are often about the same as rent. The buyer can safely make permanent improvements, since he expects to obtain legal title. All profits go to the buyer, and interest rates may be lower.

Sellers may be able to save on income and estate taxes. They also retain part of the investment in the farm for a time. Regular installment payments may represent a desirable annuity for retirement. The interest on the unpaid balance also provides income. A land contract is especially useful for transferring land within a family.

CHANGES IN land values, however, present one of the major disadvantages of installment land contracts for both buyer and seller. If land values go up during the contract, the seller may wish he had waited to sell. If values go down, the buyer is at a disadvantge. Interest rates may also change during the life of the contract.

Krausz concluded that land contracts work very well in a period of rising land values and fairly high farm income. But they may not work so well if there should be a long period of low farm income and falling land values.

Copies of circular No. 823, "Installment Land Contracts for Farmland," may be obtained from Cook county farm adviser, Carl F. Mees, 201 N. Dunton ave., Arlington Heights.

New School Buildings Keep Pace with Enrollment Rise

by HELENE BRISTOL

Going up, and up, and up!

That is the direction school enrllments in the northwest suburban area are going—now, in the next few years and for the predictable future.

Conservative estimates place enrollments of high school districts 211 and 214 at 15,224 by 1966-67. These districts cover Wheeling, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg townships. Enrollment today is about 6000, a dramatic rise over even the past five year period.

According to Dr. Jack Childress of Northwestern University, an expert in school and population studies, the population growth in the northwestern suburban area will continue. He stressed "The only conclusion you can come to is that school districts in that area should anticipate they may be entirely built up with homes and start now to get school sites accordingly."

FOR SOME districts such as Patatine-Rolling Meadows district 15 acquiring sites is desirable, and almost a necessity, but financing makes purchase of many advance sites impossible. For other districts such as district 25 in Arlington Heights the advance site purchase is even today "paying off".

Dr. Childress feels the suburban area will have an eventual "saturation population," variable according to the amount of land set aside for commercial, industrial and other nonresidential purposes. This saturation point in Wheeling and Elk Grove townships will be about three families to an acre. With 23,040 acres to the township, this means an eventual family population of 138,240 in the two township area. This would mean a population in excess of 275,000. For schools this indicates a future enrollment of more than 30,000 high school students and almost 76,000 elementary children.

"Crystal ball gazers" in population trends do not hesitate to predict this fantastic growth pattern in the northwest suburban area. A recent issue of U.S. World and News Reports stated Chicago would be one of eight or ten possible great metropolitan centers in 100 years, with a solid band of development and population as far north as Milwaukee.

....THE RECENT study of the Northeastern Illinois Metropolitan Area Planning Commission estimated the population of the two township area of Wheeling-Elk Grove would rise to 180,000 people between 1970-80. This is more than half the Childress-estimate of 275,000 saturation.

Such fantastic growth in ten years can only mean "bad news" for local school districts who are hard pressed today to stay ahead of classroom demand.

One of the reasons cited by Dr. Childress for this continued growth will be the rise of general population in the normal child-bearing age bracket of 20 to 25 years of age. In that group today are children born during the "Depression 30's but soon, and particularly by 1970, this age group will represent the War-time and post-War baby "boom."

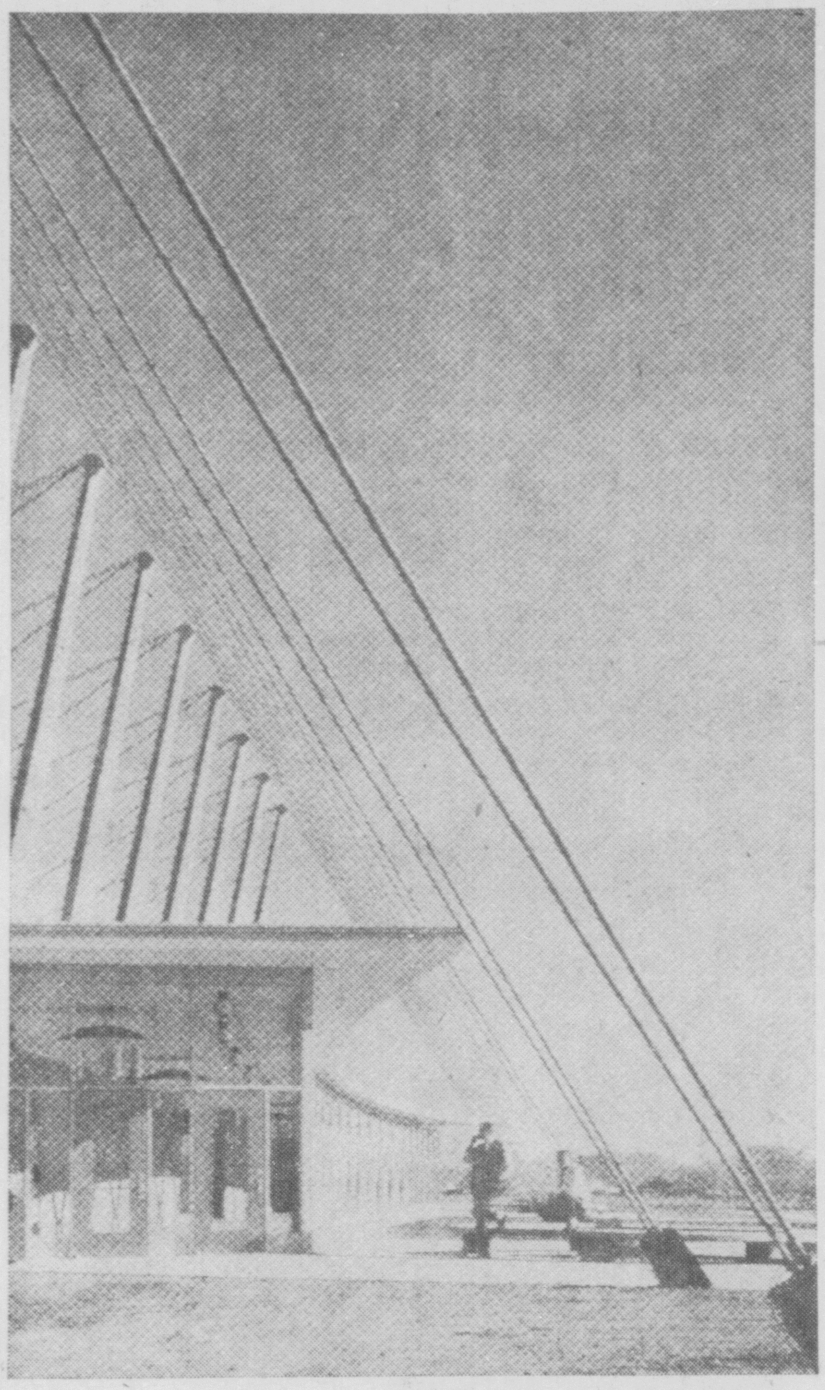
IN ADDITION to the press to keep ahead in the classroom race, school districts face the possibility of new trends in education making present and new school buildings obsolete. Trends toward larger lecture-type classes, followed by very small discussion group conferences and emphasis on individual work projects would make a building of standard-size classrooms out of date.

Lack of space at the college level will make selection of high school graduates for college work more and more selective. With this selectivity will come more and more pressure from parents for better education in suburban schools, with intense preparation for college entrance.

All this will mean headaches for overcrowded school districts, problems in money, availability of suitable teachers, curriculum and classroom space. More and more classrooms, more and more teachers, better and enlarged curriculum and new, different and more classrooms. This is the fate of northwest suburban schools with enrollment going up, and up and up!

S



RADICAL NEW building techniques such as this cable/concrete - pylon - supported roof health - and - physical - education building will be used more and more in efforts by school designers to keep ahead of the demand for better and more efficient schools to meet changes in curriculum, teaching methods and growth of enrollment.

POURING THROUGH the doors of their school these children are only a small part of the exploding school population of tomorrow. New styles in schools and greater numbers of both elementary and high school plants will be needed to match the fantastic growth of school-age population in the coming years in the northwest suburban area. The Big Decision: To Buy Old or New Home?

"OLDER" HOMES, according to realtors, are those that are 20 or more years old. Typical of the spaciousness an older home offers at a price that gives the buyer more room per sq. ft. of purchase dollar is this seven-room home in Arlington Heights. Features of the 50-year-old home include an 8 ft. by 30 ft. enclosed porch, four bedrooms (three up, one down), living room, dining room, kitchen plus pantry and full basement. Price is listed at $22,500. (SS LISTED AS THE BEST buys on the real estate market today are "used" homes - five to 10 years old. These homes are generally contemporary but architecturally pick up the flavor of either early American or modern design or a blend of the two. The five-room ranch pictured above is six blocks from shopping, one mile to rail transportation and four blocks from the grade and high schools. Located in Arlington Heights, the house is priced at $19,900. (SS

Money Is Key To Solution

by LYNN MELCHER

The answer to the question of new home versus old home purchase today is contingent, basically, on just one thing - money.

The availability of ready cash to meet immediate expenses of down payment, closing costs and necessary moving and initial improvement costs is, more often than not, the determining factor that overshadows the logic of location and community development for the home buyer.

For the community builder or subdivision developer, the dollar sign becomes a sales asset. He can attract his buying market with low down payments under VA or conventional financing programs as well as a trade-in program tailored to volume.

Real estate brokers, conversely, sell established communities, stable taxes and diversification of social strata when they guide the prospective home-buyer's hand to the dotted line of his checkbook.

THE PURCHASE of a home is the largest single investment the average person will make in his lifetime. It follows, then, that this purchase should be made with thought of comfort and convenience, financially and physically.

Financial ability to buy and maintain a home, however, quickly attacks the reasoning powers of all home buyers so that the comfort one couple may seek in looking for a certain type of home is often sacrificed to realistic economic considerations.

New homes—those in subdivisions or planned communities may be purchased for as little as two per cent down payment, while an older home (20 or more years) or "used" home (five to 10 years old) carries a general minimum 20 per cent down payment.

A new home priced at $17,000 is available for an immediate cash outlay, for mortgage purposes, of $650, while an older home in this same price range will require immediate cash amounting to $3,400 or more. Monthly mortgage payments will differ proportionately, varying with the overall term and amount of mortgage being carried.

ONCE A knowledge of financial ability has been established by the prospective home-buyer, the field of trial and error is his to explore.

And, trial and error is not a misnomer when applied to home buying. The age of space and speed has touched the real estate market and, according to brokers and subdividers, people change houses today with the frequency they changed cars 10 years ago.

Job transfers, retirement, change in family size and the economic pressures of a rising social-professional status account for the major reasons of home purchase and sale.

Today's "buyer's market" in real estate makes it possible for home purchasers, armed with adequate facts of housing do's and don'ts, to put his rent receipts into the purchase of his own home—even though he does not intend to live in that home over an extensive period of time. Realtors caution, however, that used housing is now selling at a realistic price—lower than during the past five years, and buyers who plan to sell within two to three years must be prepared to charge themselves something for living in the home.

IN OTHER WORDS, the margin of profit for home owners is now reduced and it must also be noted that remodeling and addition costs should be viewed as comfort and luxury features.

"Even in a new home, you normally would not get back the money you put in for improvements such as a family-room addition," said Ken Anderegg of Carl Behrens Realty, Arlington Heights. "An addition which cost the home owner $3,000 today would only result in $1,500 recovery in the sale of the home two or three years from now."

"Swimming pools," he noted, "are an attractive feature for resale purposes ,but it would be an exception for the owner to recover more than 50 per cent of the installation cost.

LANDSCAPING, awnings, storm windows, screens, wall paneling, draperies and carpeting are other home improvement items which enhance resale of a home but which are quickly depreciated and seldom recovered price-wise.

In Hoffman Estates, which led all incorporated areas in six northwest suburban counties in home building during the first eight months of this year F & S Construction company sales manager, Mort Silfin estimated per home improvements average $2,000. He listed this as a "conservative figure for landscaping, room additions, storm windows and screens, patio and outdoor living facilities.

A recent survey of new, used and old home purchase by the Allied Home Owners Association (a home service group with dealers in nearly 70 different cities), revealed that used-house buyers spend an average of $150 a year for improvements and repairs. This compares with an average $335 a year spent by new-house buyers.

Despite the variety in home styles available to the purchaser today, realtors report the days of buying a "dream house" are gone. People don't look for "the little white house with a white picket fence" any more and even those who think they have a custom-built dream house for sale find their ideas do not coincide with those of the buying public.

"Usually a custom home is difficult to sell for this reason," Andereggs said. "The subdivision house has good resale value because builders conduct extensive surveys to determine what features of housing will please a family group and they strike a happy medium in design and architecture."

UNDER TIPS for today's home buyers (who may well be tomorrow's home sellers), realtors and builders noted the following:

1. The most important thing in buying a house is location. Do not buy the most expensive house in a given block or area because it will not be a good resale item if it is located next to less expensive homes.

2. Check zoning of any vacant property adjacent to the home you buy to determine whether possible future commercial construction will increase or decrease the value of your home.

3. Contemplete improvements in view of resale value versus luxury and comfort. Extensive improvements can place your home in the "most expensive in the neighborhood" category.

4. For resale purposes, a three-bedroom home is more desirable than a two-bedroom home; primarily because the size and activities of today's families demand more space.

5. In buying a used or older home, remember that while housing is priced realistically, based on what people will pay for it, there is no such thing as a "firm" price. After a house has been on the market (most sales are consummated in 30 to 60 days) for a period of time, the buyer will usually consider a fair offer.

HOME ownership, after all the statistics are reviewed, is basically a matter of personal preference. For those who want the companionship and comfort of living among people whose financial and social status is comparative, a growing subdivision, such as Hoffman Estates, may be the answer.

For more than 20 families a week this is so, according to Siflin, who reports F & S has completed 2,400 homes in the five-year-old subdivision and expects to continue building for an indefinite period of time.

In the metropolitan-to-suburban population shift, the used and older home market is equally active.

A final choice of which home to buy, however, remains with the individual purchaser who, in addition to balancing preference and budget, might well consider Anderegg's comment that "A house is like a husband, you never know it until you live with it."

ONE OF FIVE model homes currently available in Hoffman Estates, a five-year-old subdivision, is The Scandia which sells for $20,950 with a two per cent VA down payment of $950. The Contemporary model of The Scandia features modern finishes and accessories, inside and out. (SS

Wheeling Township Leads in Building

Wheeling township led the north and northwest suburbs in building permits issued during September for unincorporated areas, but Elk Grove was ahead in value of construction covered, according to the monthly report of the county department of buildings.

One business project costing $4,092,000 was enough to put Elk Grove ahead of all 30 suburban townships in valuation with $4,456,200 although fourth in number of permits, 27. And its valuation was nearly half of that in the entire 30 townships, $9,382,670.

However, Elk Grove also had 18 homes with sewers, costing $327,400; one with septic tank, $23,000; one alteration, $2,800 and five accessory buildings, $9,800.

SECOND LARGEST in the county in both valuation and permits was Wheeling township, with 59 permits costing $1,436,600, including 16 homes with sewers, $317,600; four without, $79,600; and nine apartment buildings with 63 units costing $924,200.

Largest in permits was Stickney township with 88 costing $756,450.

Northfield township was fourth in the west and northwest, with 46 permits costing $536,750. (BB

Caves to Conveniences

Development of Homes Has Followed Progress of Man

by TALIE McKENZIE

Ah, life was lovely back in those solid caves of ours. None of that flimsey prefabricated stuff for us. Good solid walls; doors that shut out the night winds and rain. Yes those boulder doors really were the thing.

What a far cry is modern 20th century suburban living from our relatives and friends in the caves. What a far cry is modern 20th century suburban living from homes today in other countries.

One of man's first problems on this earth seems to be to find himself shelter. From the very rude to sleek, manicuréd showplaces, the gamut has been run.

To protect himself and his family from elements and wild animals, man has devised houses on stilts, riverboat homes, houses on wheels, thatched huts, mud huts, tents.

THE HOUSE is something that has not only evolved in a vertical plan, it has horizontal dimensions as well. According to the climate and building materials available in each section of the world, man makes his protection. Some haven't changed through centuries. The Nomad tent in Arabia or on the Sahara desert of Africa has changed little since the days before Christ.

Because there are no trees, log cabins on the desert are sort of out of the question. Because the heat is so intense, picture windows turn home sweet home into a furnace.

As man's knowledge of technology and his experimentation with new materials increased, so his habitations changed. But again looking at the horizontal picture, no amount of refined sawmilling or clever use of synthetics would cause much variation in the Eskimo igloo.

He lives in a land where the temperature sometimes drops as low as 80 degrees below zero. Snow is his medium and from snow he makes his home. Not only is the igloo hewn from snow blocks, the Eskimo's bed is refined from the material of the iceland. To warm himself in this veritable ice box he burns fish and seal oil that doesn't enhance the atmospheric condition of his dome-shaped shelter. For warmth in bed he drapes piles of furs over his ice block, then smothers himself with more layers of animal hide.

From cave with its boulder doors, man took to his lake homes, then the tree, and first apartment dwellings in the side of a cliff. The hut has been the simplest form of man's permanent home. It is the chief home of the African, and about the only home used by natives of the islands of the South Seas. Millions of persons live in huts in China, India, and South America.

The hut has seen its day in America when early settlers built themselves sod houses on the prairie or rude temporary bark dwellings while they built log homes. The hut was the mainstay of feudal Europe as peasant tilled his castle-ensconced lord's lands.

AS MAN learned that stone made strong tools for fashioning his homes, he learned also that homes of stone were sturdy. One of the biggest refinements of home construction was the development of the brick, thought to have been evolved by the Egyptians. They learned that straw mixed with native clays and sun baked formed a firm material from which homes could be built.

The Assyrians were the first to learn that bricks fired in an oven were even stronger than the sun-baked varieties. They also learned that fired bricks could be coated beforehand with material that baked to a hard, decorative finish. Thus was born the beautiful glazed brick on the age of Nebuchadnezzar.

Greeks are noted for their homes and temples of stone, built to endure the wear of centuries. Their homes had advanced so far from crude one-room huts that they had separate dining rooms, wherein each family member had his individual dining table and reclining couch.

When the glory that was Greece fell under the hand of warrior Rome, the innovations of building were adopted too. The Roman were wise and dedicated to home comforts. Their bedrooms had to face the rising sun, and hot running water emerged from bathroom spouts. Romans of wealthy status heated their homes with pipes laid under floors. Through these were forced hot water or air. Romans copied the Greek fashion of the reclining meal. However, instead of individual tables, Romans all pulled their couches up to an enormous common board.

SYMBOL of early America is the log cabin, actually an import from Norway, the land of abundant woods. Our early log homes were rude one-room squares built over hard packed dirt floors, chinked with moss and mud, and warmed by the combination cooking, heating fireplace.

Hard-packed dirt floors were later replaced with a log split in two, laid even side up. With the growth of communities and wealth, the sawmill came to America, and smooth board could be fashioned for floors.

American homes of modern day have been influenced by the potpourri of people that inhabit these shores. Frame homes are still the thing in New England. Copies from the Dutch were the basis of New York architecture. Popular too was the English style timber house. The Spanish influence is seen in the West, and the Victorian gingerbread ornate house was "the thing" a century ago in the midwest. Southerners borrowed their stately pillared mansions from the Greeks.

Even the apartment building is not an American invention. The desert people of North Africa, the Greeks, Romans and Pueblo Indians have all enjoyed or endured stacked living conditions.

The American apartment building is higher than its predecessors because the elevator has been invented; because the use of steel for girders and beams has made thin high walls possible.

For a time it looked like Americans were going to be divided into two camps; the apartment dweller, and the ranch dweller. However, builders turned to the tri-level, and now seem to be coming back to the two-story home.

SIZE, OF COURSE, has shrunk with the American dollar and the sky-rocketing mortgage. People can no longer afford a great amount of land with an overwhelming sized abode.

When one thinks of homes of the future—homes of the 1985 era—one almost has to think of cities of the future. Long-range planning has become an integral part of established towns and cities and tracts not even now on blueprints.

Cities of the future will have routed traffic on expressways on the perimeter. Centrally located will be civic centers and stores.

The emphasis today and in the future is on greenery. So what man has robbed from nature he tries to substitute for with potted trees and garden apartment projects and planned greenbelts. The city of tomorrow will be the stomping ground of the pedestrian, the taboo for the motorist.

So far as changes in architecture and conveniences---How far can man's imagination reach? Homes all in the round? Homes made of plastic alone? Homes where appliances and conveniences are carefully concealed? In - a - wall, in - a - door, in - a - closet living.

We'll see.

RON TERRY, (left) television and radio personality, is shown above congratulating Morton Deutsch, president of Town Builders, following his grand opening of Capitol Hill, suburban development located on the south side of Algonquin rd. a short distance west of Mt. Prospect rd. in Des Plaines. Capitol Hill features three and four-bedroom bi-level, ranch and colonial homes priced from $24,000 to $30,300. (SS

Use Care and Planning in Furnishing Your Home

your home reflects you

Declaration is for YOU . . . if you wish freedom from look-alike room settings. The look is contemporary, the inspiration Early American. Drexel brings you wonderful pieces for living, dining and bedroom with clever functional touches. You'll delight in the porcelain drawer pulls, milk glass shelves and accents of inlaid rosewood.

Drexel® interprets for you by creating furniture that is right for YOU — no matter what kind of a woman you are. The friendliest home reflects the kind of a person YOU are.

Drexel's Litchfield collection is for YOU . . . if you love simple colonial honesty blended with a future of comfort and charm. Each of its more than 35 pieces for living, dining and bedrooms is solid rock maple. Heavy cast brass hardware is only one of the assets . . . another is the price tags—lower than you'd dare to dream for so much quality.

Drexel's newest—Palazzo is for YOU . . . if you love elegance. A magnificent compound of neoclassic Italian design influences, each lovely piece fuses old-world beauty with elegant contemporary meaning. The woods are rich cherry and other select hardwoods distressed and antiqued in the ancient Italian manner. Choose from Palazzo's more than half-hundred pieces of living, dining and bedroom in three exclusive finishes. Choose the warm-toned Tuscan-Brown for major interest; introduce dramatic decorating contrast with painted pieces of black-striped Terra Cotta or mist-striped Palazzo White. Ancient Italian rings and pulls inspired the antique brass hardware.

Triune is for YOU if you love furniture inspired by the great periods of the past. The Empire-inspired bed and exposed wood frames of genuine mahogany bring elegance. The slim tapered legs and octagonal paneling are inspired by Sheraton. The hardware is a design borrowed from an antique of the French empire. The richest of colors and the most exotic of fabric textures are yours in furniture by Drexel.

Drexel's French Provincial styling is for YOU . . . if you love traditional groupings of these warm, dramatic designs. But style and design are not the only objectives of Drexel craftsmen — they produce the outstanding combination of beauty and hand-crafting.

Our interior decorator, Cal Peterson, will help you express YOUR personality—at no charge. Come in today.

New Furniture 'Compacts' Work Hard in Small Areas

Dual Purpose Units . . . .

You will find many new "compacts" in furniture this season. They are the models that combine dash and utility. They give maximum mileage in minimum space.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee pointed out today that new multi-purpose furniture is the answer to high building costs. If you are living in a home with small rooms-and millions of Americans are-dual units will reduce the aggravation.

You can double your table space with a new flip-top model designed by Lawrence Peabody. Ideal for an apartment, it is a game table with a 32-inch square when closed. Open it is 64 inches long. The white plastic top could let you skip a table cloth.

ANOTHER piece of furniture you buy once for double use is the expanding bench. This budget extender grows from six to twelve feet, depending on what you put on it.

You can choose from 15 different stacking units to build an entertainment center with t-v set and hi-fi units. Or you could create an entire storage wall, complete with a drop-front desk or bar.

The Holiday Collection offers a square what-not with lighted shelves. It can stand alone, in pairs on either side of a window or as a corner unit in a wall arrangement.

IN THE SLIM-lined contemporary Verve Collection compartments are backed with reversible panels. One side is walnut, the other is covered in a washable material of tortoise shell pattern.

Verve also includes a long low cocktail table, nicknamed the "multiplication table." Four triangular snack tables, surfaced with white plastic, nest beneath its top.

Walnut cubes are conversation starters in the new Patterns 7 Collection. You can turn three into a bunch, use them separately as extra seats or put them to work as small tables. They are 16 inches square.

A SOFA WITH a guest room inside is the concept of the new Wingback Bed n' Sofa by Englander. Early American styling has been combined with modern comfort. Deep tufted back and cushioned seats assure complete seating comfort. For night use the Wingback converts easily and instantly to a full size bed for two people. It is available at Schneller Furniture Co., Arlington Heights. (SFS IROQUOIS INFORMAL, a modern functional china you can even fry in, as well as roast, bake and broil in, can be seen at House of Jarvis in Arlington Heights. Such serving innovations as the decorative Informal fry pan, sauce pan, casserole, vegetable dish and dutch oven come to the table directly from the oven or top of the stove. This same "sizzling" quality applies to the Informal platter that broils steaks and arrives at the table spanking hot, smacking good. (SFS

Twice Yearly Waxing Enough For Furniture

Girls, you don't have to polish your furniture every few weeks. It doesn't help the furniture at all. Polishing twice a year should be enough.

This advice comes from the Home Furnishings Industry Committee which points out that much present-day furniture never needs waxing. The finish includes ingredients that make it possible for you to wipe it clean with a damp cloth.

When you buy furniture, hang on to the manufacturer's care instructions. Often they will advise leaning every six months. You start with warm soap and water and a soft cloth. Follow with clear water, dry, and apply a good paste wax. Then polish.

Oiled walnut finishes generally are cleaned with boiled linseed oil. Don't experiment. Get instructions from the place you bought your furniture.

Wood experts warn that frequent treatments with some easy-to-do polishes form a permanent film, almost impossible to remove, on the original finish.

What to Look For

Woods in medium brown tones, walnut, mahogany and cherry, Inlays of olive and elm burl, the intrical natural swirls of which create rich panels. Maple, pine butternut—also finished a bit darker than previously.

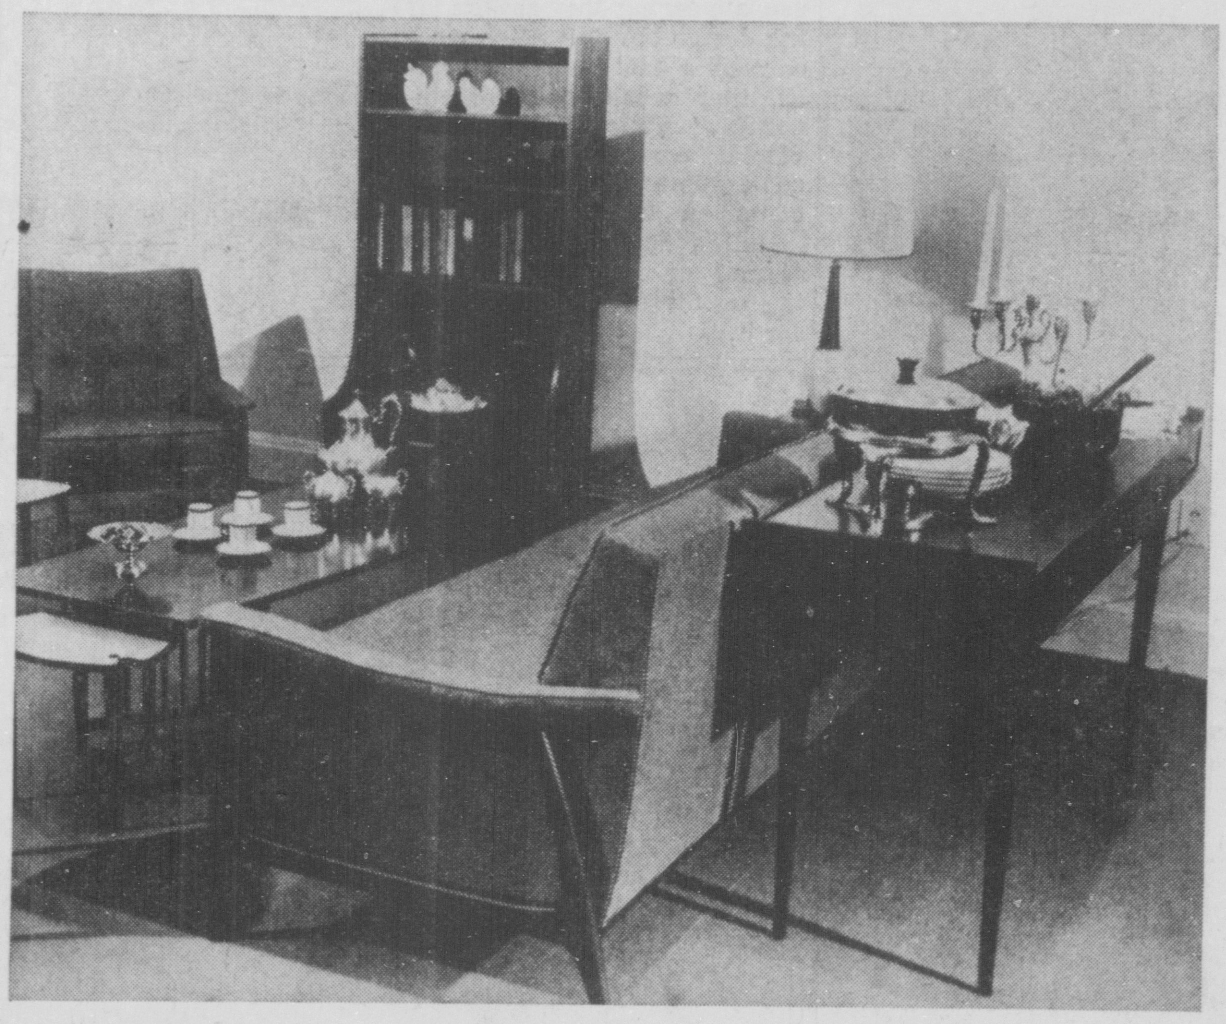
Well designed drawer pulls cabinet door knobs and keyhole escutcheons in polished brass or rubbed with a lacquer color.

Painted and decorated furniture in every style from formal 18th Century English, French and Italian to sleek, trim modern.

Double utility in many wood pieces such as serving carts which appear as cabinets—low and high cabinets for china, books or hi-fi or TV.

Classic design influence has slimmed lines, and enriched them with graceful contours and identifying carving.

1960 modern furniture design less severe; trend toward rustic effect or mellow curved lines.



"CONTEMPORARY" is the style of the 45-piece walnut Verve Collection for living room, dining room and bedroom. The baluster-leg coffee table conceals four white plastic-surfaced snack tables beneath its top. A reversible back panel in the cabinet is walnut on one side and covered with a washable tortoise-shell patern on the other. Chair and sofa rest on walnut cradles. It is available at Mayfair Rug and Furniture Town, Arlington Heights. (SFS

New Storage Furniture Fights Mess

Finding enough places to put things is a problem in almost every home. This year's new furniture designs offer both novel and time-tried solutions, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee observed today.

More storage space in less floor space is provided by bedroom units that go up. Additional height gives triple-dresser capacity to a chest with double-dresser length and width. It will be a blessing to the home with small bedrooms. The traditional dresser mirror is replaced with slender full-length mirror above the night tables.

The high, wide and handsome armoire or valet chest for men is included in bedroom groups of many different styles. They have drawers below and varied shaped compartments above-to say nothing of tie racks, shaving outlets and tilt-up mirrors.

One new French Provincial group, shunning partisanship, includes an armoire for the man of the family and a tall slender eight-drawer lingerie chest for his wife. You can have it in numerous pastel finishes, decorated with hand-painted flowers, or in brown finishes.

You Find Warmth, Charm In Provincial Furniture

Provincial is a modifying word.

You don't want it modifying you. A provincial person is "narrow" and "limited."

Provincial furniture is another matter. It often has a quality of warmth, of bold design and of "belonging to the people" that makes it loved.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee notes that three provincial styles are prominent in new furniture collections. They are French, Italian and our own "provincial," Early American.

French Provincial has been propular in this country for four dcades. The designs get closer to the real Gallic spirit all of the time. They date back to Louis XV and his rich subjects in the country.

The provincial nobles had their own cabinetmakers who were conscious of what was going on in the big city in furniture. They liked it but they were unable—or perhaps just couldn't be bothered—to put in all of the curlicues.

THE substantial sweeping curves of their designs appear in the outstanding Provincial French and Mediterranean collections today. You see them in high - reading headboards, in sturdy cabriole (double curved) legs and in bold ladderback chairs. They are well suited to our present-day casual way of life.

Even in the old days Frenchmen used to get across their borders and pick up a few ideas. Quite appropriately, spindle-fronted cabinet doors of Spanish origin are part of one new French group.

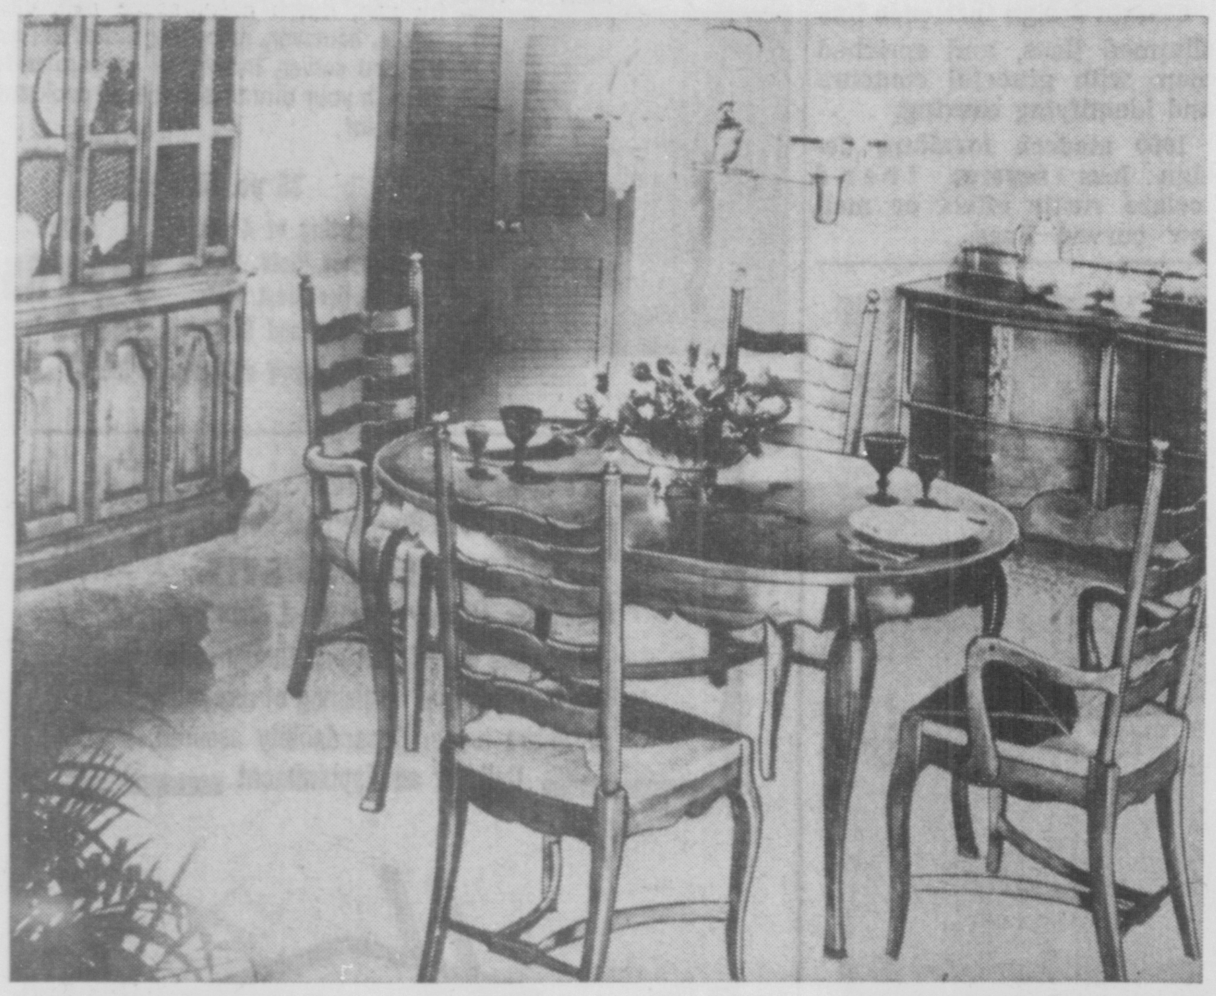
THE "PROVINCIAL" we call "Italian" traces its ancestry to the period following Louis XVI. Curving sinuous lines were out. Straight lines were in—along with columns, triangles, squares, circles and other geometric forms.

A large number of new Italian Provincial groups are appearing this season. If the design simplification were carried a few degrees further, they would be "contemporary." Thus Italian Provincial combines well with contemporary fabrics and accessories.

Italian Provincial can be formal or informal, depending on the setting you create for it.



PORCELAIN FINIALS top the ladderback dining room chairs in the new French Provincial Faubourg collection. Designer Jim Peed has given the buffet a brass gallery and deeply scallopd apron. The set is available through Schneller Furniture Co., Arlington Heights. (SFS

Be Stranger in Your Own Home: Take Good Look At That Furniture

A woman's home is like the face in her mirror. She looks at it every day, year after year.

The danger for both home and face is that she may look without seeing.

Sometimes it is a shock to a woman to return to her home after a vacation. Suddenly it doesn't look so pretty. Her eyes become aware for the first time of sagging upholstery, faded colors and end tables that weren't of very good design when they were bought twenty years ago.

The Home Furnishings Industry committee observes that the woman who wants an attractive home must inspect it frequently as if she were a stranger.

The "comfort" and "beauty" tests should be her guides. She should ask herself about each piece of furniture, "Is it still comfortable? Does it still help to make this room pretty?"

Furniture that fails should have numbered days.

The woman who knows what her house really looks like usually has three lists, mental or actual. One is for furniture still doing the job it was intended to do. The second is for items that will do and the third notes those that should be replaced as soon as possible.

New Furniture Must Follow Paper Pattern

Your pride and joy—that new furniture in your living room or bedroom—was put together the same way as the dresses hanging in your closet.

Craftsmen who made it started with a paper pattern.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee explains that a furniture designer's work parallels a dress designer's.

First comes the idea. This is shown in a sketch. Then the designer must make a paper pattern for the furniture factory superintendent. Every single part of the design is represented in a paper cutout scaled to actual size.

The designer knows how each machine in the plant works. He notes exactly how each part is to be cut and how it is to be fitted into the whole. Finally the designer recommends woods, finishes and "hardware" (handles and pulls).

Better Style for Less Money

Furniture Dollar Keeps Growing in Value

Competition may be rough on manufacturing, but it's wonderful for consumers.

This is apparent in two major trends shaping up in furniture production, the Home Furnishings Industry committee said today.

The first is the "styling up" of low-cost furniture. This year, more than ever before, the consumer will be able to find variety of clean-lined well-designed furniture in the small price tag groups.

The second trend is increased competition in the high-medium brackets. One manufacturer, who last year produced twelve groups at a time, this year is turning out a hundred at a time. His prices for the mass-produced group will be 20 to 30 per cent lower.

THE "STYLING up" of low-cost furniture has been apparent at recent markets. Markets are the style shows of the furniture industry. Dozens of manufacturers of low-cost furniture are turning out new groups of a quality that would have been available generally only at higher prices a few months ago.

"This is what the consumer wants," was the invariable explanation for the design switch.

Manufacturers are proud of making clean-cut groups available for low-income buyers. One, offering a distinctive Early American bed at a modest price, said with pride, "my competitors told me I could sell this bed for a lot more than we're asking."

"THE BANG-UP job our competitiors have been doing" is the reason one major company cites for producing a large collection to retail for 20 to 30 per cent less than its other groups.

"There is an economic trend to producing fine furniture at lower prices," the sales manager of this company explains. "Our competitors have been mass producing fine design at a price below ours.

"Older firms, such as ours, are finding it necessary to up production. We're not going to sacrifice design quality, but we have chosen a design for our new collection that is adaptable to mass methods. For us it is a quarter of a million dollar gamble."

This company ordinarily would expect three pieces of bedroom furniture to retail for about $1200. Three pieces of its new group would cost about $900.

Another major manufacturer is introducing a collection of simply-lined antique adaptations for store sale. They will retail for 20 to 30 per cent less than the company's reproductions of antiques in Virginia's restored Williamsburg community. (The latter are measured with calipers to make sure they are as like the original antiques as human skill can make them.)

THE 32-PIECE collection of Williamsburg Adaptations is expected to bring "authentic Williamsburg furniture into a price bracket that more persons can afford."

Here the reason for production of a slightly less expensive group is not competition, for the company has an exclusive license from Williamsburg Restoration, Inc. to make reproductions of the furniture. The result, however, will be that the consumer buying upper-medium priced furniture will be able to consider designs she could not have afforded a year ago.

CONTOURED PANELS — vertical on door fronts and horizintal on drawers — are the sole decoration on case fronts in the Criterion 26 collection. The solid cherry bedroom and dining room group is in transitional style, including both contemporary and traditional design elements and is available at Arlington Furniture Mart, Arlington Heights. (SFS

Look to the Future As You Furnish

"Look ahead two ways when you buy furniture."

This advice comes from the Home Furnishings Industry committee, and organization devoted to helping the American consumer make satisfying furniture purchases. How can you look ahead two ways?

First, you look to the immediate future and what your life will be like in the next several months.

Then you look ahead two years.

When you have these two pictures of your life clearly in mind, you will be ready to start planning. You will know what your needs are for the present and for the reasonable future. Here are some questions to ask yourself:

Will our family grow? The increase from two to three can be devastating. A young married couple might be wise to pause before buying fragile easily soiled treasures. Youngsters can be brought up to live with nice things, but it's often easier on parents if the "nice things" are scratch-resistant and easy-to-keep clean. As children grow the sturdy furniture can be transferred to a family room.

How much housekeeping can I afford? A woman "on the go" and on a budget will look for easy care. She will want finishes that won't show the first dust fleck, surfaces that will wipe clean with a damp cloth.

The woman who can afford a cleaning woman or the time to give her home intensive care can go in for carvings, curves and china collections.

Will we move? If you are likely to change addresses, you will want furniture that will be attractive in both your present and future homes. Size and scale are important here. Furniture that is just right for a generous-sized room overpowers a tiny one.

Dealer Must Make Wise Choices in Model Homes

ARLINGTON Furniture Mart has chosen contemporary furnishings to be used in the living-dining room in Winston Park's new model, The Monroe. (SFS

Arlington Furniture Mart on State Road, Arlington Heights' oldest furniture store prizes its good customer relations as its most valuable single asset.

E. H. Lindgren, president, in a recent staff meeting with decorators and sales personnel, made clear his intent not to deviate from this proven successful policy.

"It may sound trite" said Mr. Lindgren, "but Arlington Furniture Mart's unwavering policy of honest dealing, fair pricing and pressure-free selling has paid off. We have made a lot of friends with this policy and it will continue to be our policy as long as I am here."

IN ADDITION to stressing the importance of customer service and the duties of a retail store to its patrons, Mr. Lindgren had this to say about model home decorating:

"As a veteran decorator of model homes in this area, we now realize that the reputation of the store doing the decorating is at stake with every model. Consequently, a reputable dealer must be discriminating in its choice of model homes and know that the integrity of the builder is irreproachable."

"For example," continued Mr. Lindgren, "let's consider why our recent experience in furnishing the four new model homes in Winston Park was such a happy one.

"BOTH OUR staff and the principals of the builder, the Winston-Muss corporation, sat in conference and came to terms about our joint aims. The builder, of course, wanted to sell homes and we to display our talent. However, we both wanted to show prospective home owners a finished quality product.

"It was mutually agreed that the four models be given individual personalities—four entirely different style treatments: colonial, contemporary, french provincial and eastern.

"IT WAS ALSO decided that, in fairness to the prospective home buyer, it was mandatory for decorating costs to conform with the purchase price of the house.

"With this kind of mutual goal, the finished product will invariably reflect thoughtfulness and value. These homes do."

Royal Doulton Produces Dramatic Development

OLD COLONY is one of the seven lovely patterns designed by Royal Doulton in its new English translucent china. This delightfully, warm design in the 18th century manner may be seen at Dirigo Fine Table Appointments, 170 N. Milwaukee ave., Wheeling.

Among women who purchase fine china to complete their home furnishing there has been an increasing demand for translucent white china. After many years of patient ceramic research, Royal Doulton's mastercraftsmen have produced a new English china. It is remarkable for its translucency, whiteness, durability, refinement and beauty.

Seven lovely new designs to please both tranditional and contemporary-minded homemakers have been chosen. In function and decorative effect these new patterns reflect an ideal of loveliness which has lasted throughout time. Every line and form echoes the excellence of the potter's art and the skill of the Royal Doulton ceramists who selected only the finest materials from which to create this lovely new china.

More and more people are appreciating the finer things of life. Now Royal Doulton's evolution of many entirely new manufacturing and firing processes enable them to meet the widening demand for a fine china at a price within the reach of all.

This new translucent china may be seen at Dirigo Fine Table Appointments, 170 N. Milwaukee ave., Wheeling.

Comfort, More Style In Upholstered Furniture

New arm chairs and sofas for autumn, 1960, are going to give you "more" two ways—more comfort and more obvious luxury. This is true in all price brackets.

The dacron fluff and polyfoam construction, used only in expensive furniture two years ago, is now found in the low-medium range. You sink into down-like luxury when you sit on a dacron fluff cushion. You rise, and the cushion immediately springs back into its original shape.

Springs are completely eliminated in construction of two new arm chairs. Instead a neat polyfoam "interliner" fits into the frame over a flexible steel wire base. The seat is also polyfoam. The entire cushioning is removable for complete cleaning.

FABRIC AND color choice are limited only by your imagination. You can take your pick from among 400 different upholstery covers in one extensive group of chairs retailing for less than $100 and in another for less than $50.

Many sofas in the medium and low-medium range allow the customer to be co-designer. Would you prefer exposed wood to a completely-covered frame? You can have it. You also decide whether you want plain cushions or tufting.

CURVES take the honors in new upholstered furniture. Designers haven't given up the "straight and narrow," but high style puts more emphasis on rounded lines.

You will also find more of the dressmaking details dear to women. A contemporary collection in upper-medium price brackets offers a variety of tassels, braids, buttons and embroidered edgings. They can be applied almost anywhere your heart desires. Excellent quality and coordination prevent a fussy look, the Home Furnishings Industry Committee notes.

Home Decorators: Here Are Two Rules for 'Mixing'

It's all right to mix furniture styles if you combine the right ingredients. The trick is to know what goes with what.

The Home Furnishings Industry Committee offers two guides. First, choose styles that are similar in feeling, formal with formal and informal with informal.

(Formal styles usually have the name of a king, queen or famous furniture designer. Informal styles often are associated with a country: Early American, French Provincial, Rural English, Danish Modern. This rule-of-thumb won't separate all of the styles into formal or informal, but it covers a large number.)

Second, combine furniture in the same arrangement only when it is similar in scale and line. Italian Provincial is similar in proportion to furniture we call Contemporary.

Early American will combine readily with Rural English or with a truly rustic French Provincial. Fine oil-rubbed Danish Modern furniture and Shaker furniture are similar in their scale and spirit.

Shake It

When you buy furniture, you can learn something about its strength by shaking it. Your hands will tell if there is too much "give."

A NEW TUB chair rates backwards. The overskirt is split at back center and swept up at either side. Material beneath can match or contrast.

In Louis XV's time you couldn't find a flat place anywhere on a chair. Louis overdid it and became rococo. One of this season's new designs — Danish Modern in spirit — duplicates the accomplishments with restraint. Every surface and line is curving (except the legs). It's nice to sit in, too.

Crisp Autumn Weather Brings Onrush of Oven-Bake Recipes

by LOIS SEILER

When a lovely autumn day dawns crisp and clear, you'll want to try the delectable Cinnamon Twists being featured today. Before the sun is high in the sky the twists will be ready and waiting for the neighbors to drop in for a cup of coffee and a sampling of these delicious home-baked sweet rolls.

The recipe has been shared with us by Mrs. Harry A. Kunberger of Arlington Heights, and it is one of her favorites for coffee parties and late evening refreshments as well.

"I PERSONALLY feel that yeast recipes are the most challenging and interesting to work with," said Mrs. Kunberger. "This one is comparatively easy to make as no kneading is required."

The cinnamon twists are a favorite of Mrs. Kunberger's husband, too, and baked goods must achieve high standards to satisfy Mr. Kunberger, who hails from a family of professional bakers.

Butter and sour cream contribute to the richness and light texture of these twists, while cinnamon and chopped nuts give them flavor appeal. They freeze well and are just as good weeks after they were baked. They need only be reheated in the oven before serving and will have a first-day freshness.

ONE OF Mrs. Kunberger's favorite party recipes is for French Pastry, fancy individual frosted cakes which are as attractive to look at as they are delightful to taste.

This good cook makes them from a butter sponge cake baked in a jelly roll pan. She cuts the cake into small squares, triangles or rectangles, and assembles the pieces into miniature 2-layer cakes. The cake may also be cut with a cookie cutter into circles or other shapes, but Mrs. Kunberger warns that a good bit of cake is wasted this way.

TO FILL the small layer cakes she uses sieved strawberry or apricot jam, and ices them with a French Butter Cream Frosting. The sides of the French Pastries can be rolled in ground nuts, chocolate shot or coconut.

SUCCESSFUL HOMEMAKING

Mrs. Kunberger uses a pastry tube to decorate the top with a fluted effect, and cherries or other decorative touches may be added. Some of the frosting may be tinted with food coloring, if desired.

You can use your imagination when assembling and decorating these festive little cakes, and the result will be a tempting array of appetizing and beautiful pastries designed to please the eye and palate of your most discriminating guests.

"These French pastries are too rich for a dinner dessert," comments this capable cook, "so I only make them for special parties. "On one occasion, a baby shower, I decorated them to resemble bassinets and they were perfect for this event."

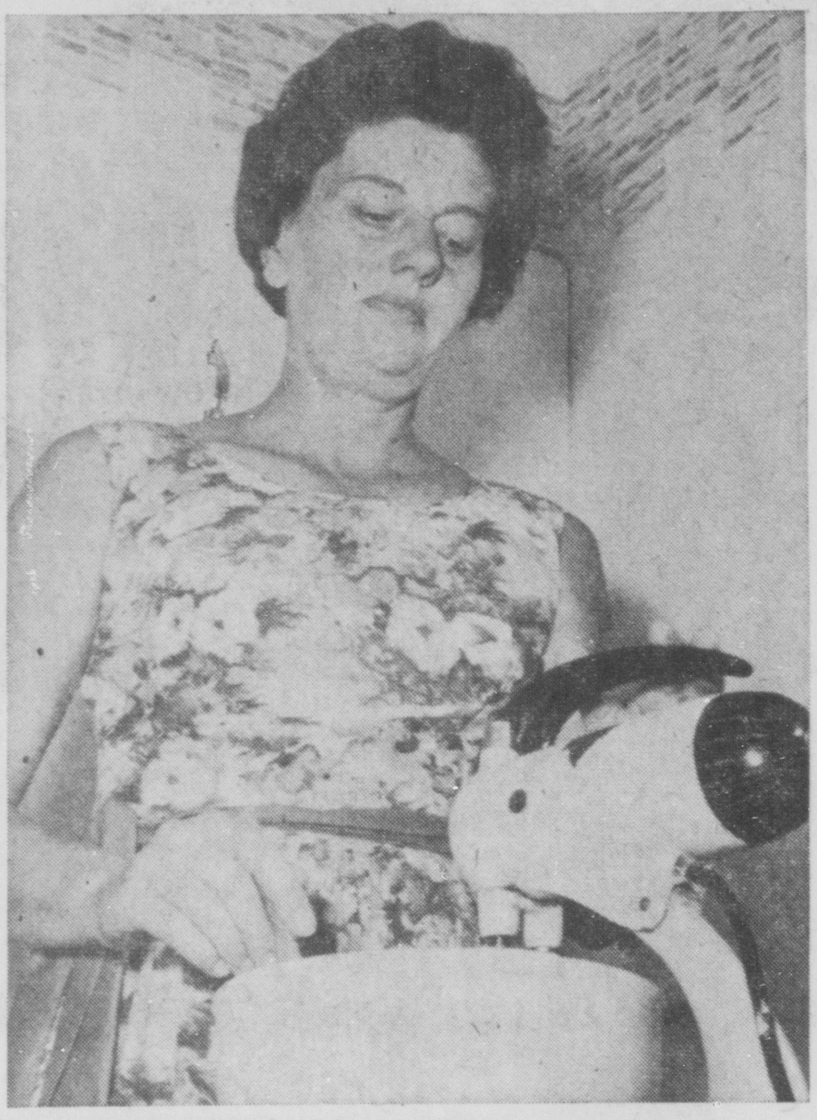
THIS RECIPE affords homemakers the opportunity to be really creative in their own kitchens, and the result will be a rewarding experience, indeed.

In addition to her culinary interests, Mrs. Kunberger enjoys bowling with the Park Ridge bowling league, and both she and her husband are members of the sponsoring committee for the Junior Cotillion.

The Kunbergers have four children: Lynn, a high school sophomore; Jim, an eighth grader; Chip, who is in first grade, and Beth 20-months-old. The family lives at 926 N. Kennicott in Arlington Heights.



YEAST RECIPES are a challenge to Mrs. Harry A. Kunberger, who finds them the most enjoyable and rewarding to work with. One of her favorite yeast recipes is for Cinnamon Twists, a delicious sweet roll which requires no kneading. This recipe, plus another for elegant French Pastry are being featured this week. (SH

Cinnamon Twists

1 package dry yeast
¼ cup warm water
1 cup sour cream, lukewarm
2 eggs, well-beaten
1 cup margarine or butter, melted
3½ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon salt

Combine yeast and warm water in a large bowl and let stand for five minutes. Add the sour cream, well beaten eggs and melted butter. Stir in the flour and salt; cover with waxed paper and chill for two hours or longer.

In another bowl mix together the following ingredients:

1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cinnamon
1 cup ground nuts (optional)

Sprinkle half of the cinnamon-sugar mixture on a pastry cloth. Turn chilled dough out onto mixture. Roll dough into a 12 by 27-inch rectangle. Sprinkle remaining sugar mixture on dough.

Fold dough in half, lengthwise and cut each third into 16 strips. There will be 48 strips in all.

Twist each strip as you pick it up and lay it on an ungreased baking sheet. Cover twists and let rise for 45 minutes.

Bake in a 375 degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm. Yield: Four dozen twists.

Butter Sponge Cake

1 cup sifted cake flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
3 large or 4 small eggs
1 cup granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 tablespoons butter

Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees. Line a greased jelly roll pan with waxed paper. Sift flour with baking powder. Melt butter and keep hot.

Beat eggs well until thick, light and fluffy. Beat in sugar until thick and smooth. Beat one to two minutes. Blend in vanilla.

Add water while still beating and blend in flour; beat in butter while still hot.

Pour batter into prepared jelly roll pan and bake in a 350 degree oven for 15 minutes. Place on rack to cool and cover with a towel.

TRIM DOWN edges of be rolled in ground pecans, cooled cake as little as possible and cut cake into 24 pieces in the shape of squares, rectangles or triangles. (The cake may be cut with a cookie cutter into circles or other shapes.)

Spread half of the pieces of cake with sieved strawberry or appricot jam. (A thin coating of the French Butter Cream Frosting may be spread on the cake before spreading on the jam.) Top with the remaining pieces of cake.

Spread sides of the little layer cakes with the following frosting:

French Butter Cream Frosting

¼ pound margarine
¼ pound butter
3 egg yolks
Dash of salt
1 pound confectioners sugar, sifted
½ teaspoon vanilla extract

Work fats until creamy. Beat in yolks, one at a time. Add sugar, salt and vanilla and beat until smooth. The amount of sugar depends on the yolks. If too thick, add just a little water. The frosting may be tinted with food coloring, if desired.

After the sides of the cakes are frosted, they can walnuts, almonds, chocolate shot or coconut.

Place the remaining frosting in a pastry tube and decorate the top with a fluted effect. Other decorative tidbets, such as cherries may be used. Makes 12 French pastries.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

by Edward Rentz

Last week we spoke of the increasing popularity of our own domestic wines.

Eighty per cent of the wine consumed in the United States is made from grapes grown on the sun-drenched hills and valley slopes of golden California. The reason for this is that only in California will the true, traditional wine grapes grow, and these are essential for wines that will compete with the ancient European wines that have been hailed as the aristocrats of the epicureans' world.

Other states, it is true, produce good wines; but it is only in California that we find the happy combination of grape, soil, and sunshine, that is so vital to excellence in wines.

Rosy Glazed Apples

1 package (3 ozs.) strawberry-flavored gelatin
1 package (3 ozs.) apple-flavored gelatin
1½ cups boiling water
1 cup cold water
6 large red baking apples
1 large stick cinnamon
6 whole cloves

Dissolve 2 packages of gelatin in 1½ cups boiling water. Add 1 cup cold water. Core apples. Starting at stem end, pare off a 1-inch strip of skin around each apple. Place apples, stem up in a large skillet.

Pour gelatin syrup over apples in skillet. Add spices. Place skillet over medium heat and bring liquid to a boil. Cover; reduce heat. Simmer apples 15 minutes or until tender. Remove cover. Place skillet under broiler about 2 inches from heat. Broil apples, basting frequently, 15 minutes, or until apples are glazed and lightly browned. Serve warm or cool with syrup. Makes 6 servings.

Note: If apples are to be stored in refrigerator, pour syrup into a small pan and chill until set. Before serving, rice or dice the set syrup and arrange around each serving.

Week's Best food buys

Beef, lamb and poultry are continuing bargain contenders. Pork is subject to further value - defaulting on firmer price tones at live, wholesale and retail markets due to inability of scarce supplies to meet good local and Eastern demand. In fresh and processed pork, only bacon shows the slightest sign of price slippage. Eggs also show significant action in this week's University of Illinois consumer service market survey for the period ending October 15.

U of I rated values include: Meats--beef chuck and rib roasts, round and sirloin steaks, lamb shoulder roasts; Poultry-- fryers, stewing hens and large turkeys; Produce--cabbage, lettuce, potatoes, green beans, Michigan apples, Tokay grapes, cranberries.

IN MEATS: live markets--cattle receipts are off sharply from week-ago and lowest since April, supplies rated normal prices slightly higher; hog receipts continue light, 12 per cent under year-ago. There is good local and eastern demand, prices stronger; lamb receipts are up 30 per cent, uneven distribution, prices generally lower.

WHOLESALE — beef normal in supplies, most activity in choice grades, loins back up to provide price dropping opportunities on steaks, good rib movement with feature opportunties; pork supplies are limited due to general demand and last week's spot promotions, prices are higher across the board; lamb carcass prices are down, leg roasts active and prices firm.

Retail--no basic change is predicted in beef prices. Typical low quotes seen in area survey stores include beef checks 35 cents, rib roasts 59-69 cents for the rougher cuts, rump and sirloin tip roasts 89-98 cents, round steaks 65 cents, sirloins 85 cents, porterhouse 95 cents. Pork is a little stronger toned, rib roasts 49 cents, loin ends 59 cents, center chops 98 cents, fresh Boston butts 49-55 cents, spare ribs 49 cents. Bacon holds its 69 cent top general level but slips on promotion to a 55-59 cent range. Lamb is steady.

Light receipts continue to undermine eggs, with wholesale advancing another penny in Chicago (two cents in New York). But the retail price failed to budge from last week's stabilized 69 cents top (the range 65-69 cents) for grade A large whites. Medium sizes suffer the most from scarcity, seldom quoting under 59 cents with indications of a further upturn in the making. Pullets moved to a 39 cent top, too. Meanwhile, the trade takes another bite out of storage stocks, now rated at 115,100 cases below year-ago.

FRYERS advanced a little more on local wholesale markets but are a reasonably good bargain for the week at the posted 29-39 cent range. The government ended school lunch buying after putting $6.8 million into 18,850,000 pounds of turkeys. The civilian market firmed on reaction, especially for hens and toms up to 20-pounders. This sets up a discounting possibility on heavier weights, to quote promotionally 39 cents. but more generally holding the 45-49 cent range. Stewing hens are firmer at wholesale, and range more widely at 39-45 cents on retail.

The grocery index turned up, and is 1.5 higher than year-ago, with many new-pack items completed. Several, such as green and waxed beans, corn and pumpkin, fall short of expected volume, and are firm. Only fruit cocktail shows of weakening. The trend to stronger markets is expected to continue indefinitely, reflecting some hold-backs, good fall buying activity and broad interest in the whole range of processed foods. Retail groceries are expected to be higher.

Fresh produce markets are relatively unchanged from week-ago, with emphasis on the heavier fall staple lines. Production outlook that will influence supplies and prices in the weeks to come includes:

More - avocados, bananas, cranberries, oranges, green beans, cabboge, cucumbers, cauliflower, broccoli, escarole-endive, spinach, lettuce, peppers, potatoes, squash, and turnips this year than last, but...

Less - apples, grapefruit, grapes, beets, brussel sprouts, carrots, celery, onions, sweet potatoes, and tomatoes, at slightly higher prices.

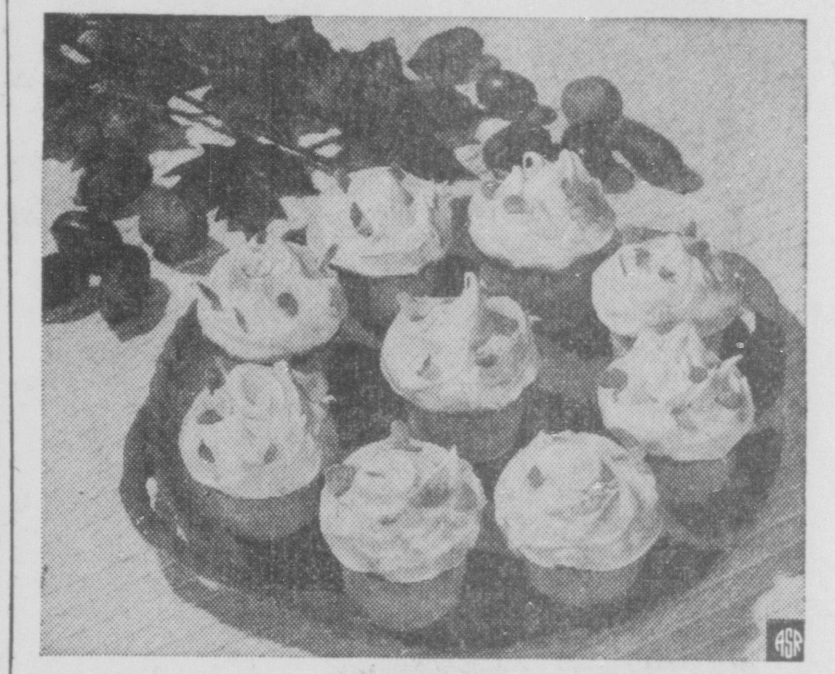
Fall Maple Magic



The smell and flavor of maple brings to mind that cooler days are on their way! To welcome the fall season, make individual cuplets with a package of your favorite cup cake mix—sure to give you light, feathery eating with a minimum of mixing. After each has baked and cooled, top with a swirl of fluffy Maple Frosting and a crown of toasted slivered almonds.

Maple Fluff Cakes

One pkg. Flako Cup Cake Mix
1 egg
½ cup milk

Maple Frosting

1/3 cup water
1/3 cup sugar
1 teaspoon maple flavoring
1 egg white
¼ teaspoon salt
Toasted slivered almonds

Heat oven to moderate (375 degrees F.). Empty contents of package into bowl. Add egg and ¼ cup milk. Beat 1 minute. Add another ¼ cup milk and beat another minute. (If using mixer, beat at low speed.) Line muffin cups with paper baking cups or grease and flour them; fill half full with batter.

Bake in preheated oven (375 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. For easy removal let stand a few minutes, then loosen cup cakes with knife or spatula. Cool. Frost with Maple Frosting; garnish with almonds.

FOR FROSTING, combine water, sugar and maple flavoring in saucepan. Cook over low heat until syrup dropped into cold water forms soft ball (234 degrees F.). Beat egg white with salt until stiff. Gradually add hot syrup to beaten egg white, beating until mixture forms soft peaks. Makes 12 large cupcakes.

Modern Woman: Too Soft?

SOMETIMES I THINK the modern woman is getting too soft. We have all those appliances that are supposed to help us have just umpteen hours more leisure. All I want to know is when I get to be leisurely.

All these modern contrivances spend most of their time in a horrible state of disrepair. I have yet to have all of my modern boons to womankind working in tiptop fashion at the same time. When the washer died a nasty choking death, and I was standing amidst a mountain of dirty clothes panicstricken, I wondered how dear old Granny would have handled the situation.

Well, as I recall Dear Old Granny, she had a scrubboard and a hand wringer and she got her wash out on the line before she whipped out the oatmeal and eggs. This example of feminine enterprise makes me ache all over. That is, it makes me ache until I recall how Dear old Granddad and all the Dear Old Children dressed in those days. Then I realize how Dear Old Granny had it made.

I would be only too glad — well, maybe not glad but reconciled, to washing by hand too if my young, and old, wore what THEY wore in those days. Daddy wore one set of underwear from Saturday until Saturday. Likewise Mommy and all the little kiddies. Little kiddies did not insist on a clean blouse every day. Nor did people get dressed up like a plush horse just to go to school.

Also, as I recall life back on the farm, the sheets were not changed every week. Possibly not every month. I know it all sounds pretty grubby but that was life in those days. Sometimes I think we get too clean. Why every week do I have 5 loads of just towels in my washer? Because the mob has used five loads of towels, that's why. Sometimes I think they use a clean towel to dry each arm, each hand, each cheek and even each eyebrow.

On the other hand, I think I shall try to keep the automatic washer going. The thought of going back to Granny's day makes me start to itch. And, I'm not strong enough to argue with the crowd over the state of their underwear. If they even had to wear a pair of bobby socks twice, there would be some kind of revolution.

Theatre Guild Plans Masked Ball

Des Plaines Theatre Guild, Inc. is holding its second annual "Thespian Thaw-Out," a masked ball to which the general public is invited, Saturday, Oct. 22, at Carpenters hall, Des Plaines. Festivities begin with a social hour from 7:30 p.m., and dancing to the music of Maurio and His Society Band from 8:30 to 12:30.

Throughout the evening there'll be surprises, skits, a "spook house" and awarding of prizes for the most unusual and most beautiful costumes.

TICKETS TO the "Thespian Thaw-Out" are $1.50 per person, available at Words and Music, 1507 Ellinwood, Des Plaines, or by sending a check to Des Plaines Theatre Guild, Inc., Box 84, Des Plaines. All proceeds from the dance will go into the Theatre guild building fund.

Garden Club Views Slides

Walter Jungling of Hollenbachs nursery showed slides of spring flowering bulbs to members of the Countryside Garden club October 6 in the home of Mrs. Dorothy Michel, 2102 Rohlwing rd., Rolling Meadows.

Poolside Reception after Riley-Gore Rites Sept. 3

A poolside garden reception at the Arlington Heights home of her parents followed the candlelight, double ring service September 3 in First Presbyterian church in which Miss Lorraine E. Riley and Thomas G. Gore, son of the Harold G. Gores of Menlo Park, Cal. were married. The bride is the daughter of the Earl K. Rileys, 738 S. Mitchell.

The couple met at Kansas university where both are students. They honeymooned in Key Biscayne, Fla. and are now at home at 22-11 Stauffer place, Lawrence, Kan. The bride was previously graduated from Arlington high school.

Dr. Paul Stumpf officiated at the service during which Anilise Auge was organist and Brenda Rudolph was soloist. Miss Rudolph's selections were "The Wedding Prayer" and "The Lord's Prayer." The church was decorated with candelabra and standards of woodwardia, stephanotis and ivy.

THE BRIDE, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory brocade fashioned with basque bodice, scoop neckline and three-quarter sleeves. The domed skirt was draped in a pannier effect over the hips and drifted into a wide train.

Her fingertip veil was of ivory and was held in place by a double crown of pearls and ivory sequins. Butterfly orchids, stephanotis and ivy made up her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. R. E. Riley of Arlington Heights, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Leonard Birck of Dis Plaines and Mrs. Dennis Payne and Miss Donna Roberson of Kansas.

The attendants wore identical gowns of ruby chiffon over satin sheaths with scoop necklines and midriff insets of matching satin with full back panels accented at the waistline with two roses. Their flowers were crescents of fuji mims, snowdrift miniatures, pink ti leaves and ivy streamers.

THE BRIDE'S mother chose a gold beige satin sheath with matching accessories and a cymbidium orchid while the bridegroom's mother chose a beige brocade dress with matching jacket and hat. Her jewelry was of pearls and her corsage of cymbidiums.

The bride's brother, Richard E. Riley, was best man and ushers were Dennis Payne, William Steele of Los Angeles and Robert Cowan of Palatine, cousin of the bride.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Andrew Riley of Arlington Heights, was among the guests at the wedding and reception. Other relatives came from Woodbridge, N. J., Long Island, N. Y. and Bellow Falls, Vt. In all, 100 guests were served from the canopied buffet table set up in the garden.

'Our Baby's Walking!'

Dear Peg:

"I know what we can use for a train," I heard Patrick tell Johnny from the living room where they'd been playing for a while. Wondering just what piece of furniture Patrick had plans for (the only reason they were allowed in there at all was to play on the floor with the Colorform set) I dried my hands and started through the dining room to the door of the living room.

When I saw what they were about to do, I screeched, "NO!" But it was too late. They snatched the rocking chair right out from under Deirdre's hands. She had been standing in front of it, rocking back and forth and watching the boys. I waited for her to fall on her face and start crying, but to my complete astonishment, she just stood there and grinned a toothy grin and then clapping her hands proudly she bravely took a step and then one more and then sat rather soundly.

I was amazed. Of all the times we have tried to get her to walk—holding and heading her back and forth to each other—she would never try and now she decides to attempt it all on her own. Nor was she discouraged by the "sitdown." Up she got on her feet again and tried again to walk toward me. I held out my hands and she came right to them.

One of the nicest things about it all was Patrick's reaction. "Look, John, our baby's walking! Come here, Deirdre, walk to Patrick." He was so excited and pleased. "I'm going to tell Josh, Mama. Can I go down to Josh's house?"

"Well, I guess you can if you have something important to tell him," I laughed. So, out the door the boys ran to tell the news to the neighborhood.

When you stop to think of it, it's sort of strange that babies ever learn to walk. When it's so much easier to crawl on all fours what makes them want to go through the discomfort of trying to gain their balance and walk on two little feet instead of staying close to the ground where they can't fall? And even if they do attempt it, when they fall and hurt themselves what makes them get up and try it again? I suppose it's the natural instinct of human beings to walk. Whatever it is, it's another stirring bit of evidence that God put us together in a most special and particular fashion.

My love,
Patty.

Women's Group Plans Fashion Show, Cards

Diane Carsello Is Bride Of the 'Boy Next Door'

Jenart

"The boy next door," Gary Hoch, claimed as his September 10 bride Miss Diane M. Carsello, daughter of Mrs. Gilda Carsello, 406 N. Pine st. Mt. Prospect, in a 2 o'clock ceremony in St. Raymond church. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Hoch, neighbors of the Carsellos at 408 N. Pine st.

The bridal pair both attended Arlington high school, and since their marriage are residing in a new home in Addison. Mr. Hoch is employed by the National Tea company in Mount Prospect, and his bride works for General Mills in Park Ridge.

THE BRIDE'S uncle, Anthony P. Ross of Park Ridge presented her in marriage. She was gowned in french peau de soie with alencon lace and seed pearl appliques as she came down the aisle for the double ring rites. Her gown, fashioned by Bianchi, had a scooped neckline, short sleeves and very full skirt and was complemented by a tiara crown, studded with aurora borealis jewels, which held a short veil in place. Long white gloves, a single strand pearl necklace and a bouquet of phalaenopsis orchids and lilies of the valley completed the bride's attire.

Pistachio green was chosen for the bridal attendants' dresses, and each girl carried a bouquet of small yellow and bronze mums. Carol DeCarlo of Addison was maid of honor; bridesmaids were Barbara Hengl of Arlington Heights and Susan Diana of Chicago.

Four-year-old Natalie Ross of Park Ridge was flower girl in a white nylon dress with a crown of pearls, and she carried white roses and lilies of the valley.

RON HENGL of Arlington Heights served as best man, and ushering the guests to their pews were Roger Cook of Elmwood Park and Larry LoSchiaro of Wauconda.

Witnessing the marriage, performed by Father Doyle, the bride's mother was dressed in a gold lame sheath and the bridegroom's mother in royal blue silk organza over taffeta. Each had an orchid corsage.

Organist was Hazel Voorhees and soloist, Dorothy O'Brian, sang "Ave Maria" and "Mother at Thy Feet I'm Kneeling."

Two hundred guests greeted the newlyweds at a dinner reception held in Elmhurst country club. The couple then left for a 2-week honeymoon in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

Program on Russia, Poland For Palatine Woman's Club

Palatine Woman's club held its first meeting October 4 and was entertained by Mrs. Doris Moseley, 531 Ridge, Arlington Heights, who told of her travels in Russia and Poland. Pictures which she took gave further meaning to her comments and observations on life beyond the "Iron Curtain."

The afternoon was made to amplify life in these countries by the use of pictures, water colors, their art and handwork including blouses, gay aprons and Polish Dolls.

Mrs Robert Atcher sang, accompanying herself, adding to the Slavic mood.

THE TEA TABLE had Mrs. Irving Brunstrom serving tea Russian fashion from a samovar and Mrs. Carl Scharninghousen pouring coffee. The decor of fall fruits in purple and green and plum candles with Polish dolls added color. Kolachy cakes further suggested the international theme. Mrs. Charles Salisbury was chairman of the social committee with Mrs. Bernard Denz, Mrs. William Distler and Mrs. John Harris assisting.

The club is in its 30th year and meets the first Tuesday of each month in St. Paul United Church of Christ, Palatine. Its motto is "Unity in essentials; Liberty in Non-essentials and Charity in all things." A program of civic interest is fostered and contributions are made to club philanthropies, library fund, Friends of the Library, Northwest Community hospital and Northwest Family Service. Departmental meetings in books and sewing for Chicago hospitals are held monthly.

MRS. ARTHUR M. Wilbins is the new president; Mrs. Daniel Wachs, first vice president; Mrs. David Mills, second vice president; Mrs. W. L. McKinlay, recording secretary; Mrs. Fred Jefferson, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Paul J. Bond, treasurer.

Chairmen of the departments are: Mrs. Carroll Ball, American home and garden; Mrs. David Ostergaard, art; Mrs. N. J. Wipperfurth, civics and public welfare; Mrs. Irving Brunstrom, education; Mrs. Ralph Alexander, house and social; Mrs. Elsie Alcott, literature and drama; Mrs. George Lehmann, press, publicity and scrapbook and Mrs. Gilbert Ayres, program.

TINY MODEL displaying one of the handmade dresses for tots that will sold at the bazaar November 3 in First Methodist church, Arlington Heights, is 2-year-old Janice Jensen, daughter of the Richard Jensens, N. Drury lane, Arlington Heights. Admiring the dress are Mrs. John Farr of N. Drury and Mrs. Erik Dedering of Northwest hwy. The bazaar, Holiday Gift House, is sponsored by the WSCS of the church and will be held from 10 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. Other booths will feature aprons, yule decorations, home-baked goods and hand-knit items. Morning coffee will be served as well as luncheon, afternoon tea and dinner.

YWCA Announces Expansion Program

Expansion of the YWCA program into new and renewed communities in the greater metropolitan Chicago area was announced this week as a major part of a 5-year expansion program of the YWCA of Chicago.

The expansion program of the 85-year-old organization was described by Mrs. David Levinson, YW president, at a party for newspaper, radio and television personnel held in the Boulevard room of the Hilton hotel, Chicago.

The press luncheon was held to announce the first of a series of steps to bring financial strength to the YW expansion plan — the organization's first major benefit in its history.

THE YWCA is sponsoring a benefit performance of the Ice Follies at the Chicago Stadium, Thursday, Oct. 27. Benefit tickets are priced the same as box office tickets. Tickets are available at the YWCA, 1001 N. Dearborn, Chicago, ranging in price from $4 on the main floor, $3 mezzanine and $2 balcony.

Through a station-wagon "YWCA on Wheels" the YW hopes to expand its program into suburban communities. Mrs. Levinson stressed "New and renewed communities need the YW to give direction in today's world to growing girls, to young wives and mothers and to employed women."

Among other YW unique programs is the annual program for about 2500 foreign students and yearly service to 15,000 service men in the YW Loop Center, 59 E. Monroe.

HIGHLIGHT of the press luncheon was a skating demonstration. Participating were instructors, students and children who are a part of the first loop YW skating classes. The loop center offers a list of more than 50 courses planned particularly for women who work in Chicago's loop.

Inverness Country Club Is Scene of AAUW Coffee

Inverness country club was the scene of a morning coffee given recently by Mrs. George Bailey of Arlington Heights, state president of the American Association of University Women, to introduce the association's general director, Dr. Pauline Tompkins. Members of four branches, including the Arlington Heights and the Northwest Suburban branches, were in attendance.

A historian and political scientist, Dr. Tompkins supervises the administration of the group's study-action program. She also serves as director of the headquarters staff, which includes 15 professionals among the 100 workers.

DR. TOMPKINS, a graduate of Mt. Holyoke college and the Fletcher school of Law and Diplomacy, was assistant professor of political science at Wellesley college as well as Colby college. In 1957-58 she was in Australia on a travel grant from the Carnegie foundation and was a research associate at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She returned from a year's tour of duty in Asia and was in Helsinki for the International Federation of University of Women in 1959 just prior to accepting the general director's position.

There are 1500 branches of AAUW in the United States grouped by states and areas. Dr. Tompkins met with delegates and members of the area group in Chicago meetings prior to her visit here October 4. The Northwest Suburban branch is centered in Des Plaines and the Arlington Heights branch meets monthly in this area.

OF INTEREST to members will be the 1961 convention to be held in the new educational center in Washington D.C. AAUW's concern for continuing education is demonstrated in this building on Virginia ave., costing $1.5 million dollars.

The education program of AAUW provides more than 40 fellowships annually for advanced study, ranging in value from $3000 to $5000. This represents one of the most significant efforts of its kind in the country.

Thirty international grants have been awarded for one year's study and also grant extensions in the past year. These are for graduate training in the United States for women from other nations. Four grant-holders are now studying in the Chicago area.

Mount Prospect Couple Has Niagara Falls Honeymoon

After a honeymoon at Niagara Falls, Jacqueline Hillstrom, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burton Hillstrom, 319 Beverly Lane, Mt. Prospect, and her bridegroom, Salvatore Caltagirone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Caltagirone, 518 S. Hi-lusi, Mt. Prospect, are residing on Fifth ave., Des Plaines.

The couple's wedding took place at 3 p.m. September 17 in St. Raymond Catholic church, Mt. Prospect, with Fr. Doyle officiating amid a setting of mums and gladioli.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Stanley Dehls of Mt. Prospect, and the bridegrooms's brother, John Caltagirone, attended the couple as matron of honor and best man. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Carl Anderson of Mt. Prospect and Miss Antoinette Allegretti of Edgebrook and ushers were Daniel Creco and Richard Fisher, both of Mt. Prospect.

FOR HER WEDDING, the bride wore a gown of de-lustered satin with lace. Her fingertip veil was held in place with a tiara of pearls and she carried a bouquet of white amazon lilies. She was given in marriage by her father,

The bridesmaids' gowns were of gold de-lustered satin with a deeper shade of gold chiffon used in the cummerbunds and their flowers were of rust colored mums.

A RECEPTION for 150 guests was held in the Lions building, Chicago, where Mrs. Hillstrom received in a deep beige taffeta sheath dress with matching accessories and Mrs. Caltagirone in a royal blue brocade sheath with matching royal blue accessories. Both mothers wore white carnation corsages.

The bride, who attended Arlington high school, is now employed at First Federal Savings and Loan, Des Plaines, and her fiance, who was graduated from Arlington high, is manager of Mel and Paul's restaurant, owned by his father.

After the Ball (Game) Is Over Party

by DOLORES HAUGH

World's Series, Little League, Pony League or Football, name your game, the fightin', shoutin', rootin' fun of the game well played, winner or loser, the game's the thing, so why not invite the gang over for an After the Ball (Game) Party?

Invitations

Your game will, of course, tell you what your invitation will be: a baseball, basketball, a cheerleader's megaphone or your own school colors in the form of a pennant. Let us use the latter as an example. The pennant can be made of sueded paper in the color of the team and on the back write the following verse.

Rah Rah Rah - Sis Boom Bah
Who are we for?
Y—O—U, that's who.
You are invited to our home
On - -date - -
Until 10 p.m.
YOU win or loose
Or if a tie,
After the game is over
We'll get together - cheer or cry,
Winner or loser all the same
It's FUN for all - after the game.

Fasten the banner to a stick; those you buy for popsicles would be the right weight for a pennant about 4 inches long.

Menu

What fun after a cold football or winter basketball game to come home to a blazing fire with a buffet loaded with steaming dishes and cups. You can use your own imagination as for the specific casseroles and beverages but keep in mind their "keeping" qualities so that they can be popped into the oven for completion or reheating. Grilled sandwiches and those with a broiled finishing touch are more fun and different than the usual hamburgers.

One that we like is quick and very tasty. Grind together baked ham, American cheese, onion and green pepper. Spread on rolls and broil until the cheese melts. Top with tiny pennants and hustle them in with chips and tossed salad, hot coffee, warm brownies and you have a quick and easy supper. But make plenty as these lovely fall days in the brisk open air perk up appetites.

Decorations

With the lovely mums and late marigolds still nodding in the garden, welcome them to the buffet or table. Arrange them in a football helmet, bank them behind a football or use a gold trophy elevated in the center of the bowl and carry out the school colors in the napkins, tablecloth and dinnerware. Pennants in bright red apples make lovely edible place cards and fine munchings for mulling over the game later with bowls of snowy popped corn and apple cider, heated with cinnamon sticks if you wish.

Entertainment

The game itself is the entertainment but if you wish, plan some simple games; maybe identifying classmates or team members by descriptions of thumb. If alums, take out the old class books and see how many you can still remember. This is a good party for relaxed, almost - out - of - existence-by - television - conversation.

Don't overdo your role as host or hostess, just enjoy yourself. Most guests will be sleepy, have a well-fed and a day-well-spent feeling after this party. So just have a ball at your after the ball-game party. (S

Modern Etiquette

by ROBERTA LEE

Q. Often, at the table, I've been asked to pass a certain dish just as I was about to partake of that dish myself. Is it all right, under these circumstances, for me to help myself first before passing the dish?

Q. What should a girl do if her family cannot afford an elaborate wedding?

A. The only thing for her to do in this case is to plan a very simple ceremony in her own church, and invite only relatives and very good friends. She will, after all, be just as "happily married."

A VERY YOUNG Republican, Debbie Kaczmarek, was appropriately be-decked for the occasion when the Women's Republican Club of the 13th congressional district held a tea October 4 to acquaint women of the township with Congresswoman Marguerite Stitt Church. The tea was held in thhe home of Debbie's mother, Mrs. Eugene A. Kaczmarek, 600 S. Can-Dota, Mt. Prospect. Seated with Debbie are Mrs. Sherman Canty, wife of the GOP committeeman from Elk Grove township, left, and Mrs. Church. Standing is Mrs. William Busse, one of the hostesses for the affair.

Doing Right Tough Challenge

LELAND ELLIS TRUXELL

It is a most difficult thing for most of us to do right in the presence of neighbors or acquaintances who are doing wrong.

Suppose you are among a group of women who are discussing a neighbor in unfriendly terms. Suppose they say things about her that you know are not true, and that one of the women turns to you and says, "Isn't that right?"

THESE NEIGHBORS of yours are all of the same opinion about the woman under discussion, and you know that they are wrong, yet if you say anything in her favor you know they will put you in the same "class" with her. What are you going to do?

Are you going to defend her? Or keep still? Will you, knowing what you know, tell them they are wrong and why? Or will you nod uncertainly, say something like "Not really!" and let them assume that you believe them, and let the accused woman suffer?

Did you ever attend a party where things were going on of which you did not approve, and you just sort of closed your eyes to it, and said nothing—but stayed on for fear of offending the hostess? Have you ever drunk more than you should in a crowd, then accepted another one just to be a good fellow — and driven home drunk, endangering the lives of others and yourself? Have you ever avoided speaking to a colored person whom you work with, or who works for you and whom you really like, because there are some in your crowd who hate colored people? Have you ever joined other people in ridiculing some one who is different in manner or clothing, and in doing so embarrassed him, or made him angry?

DOING RIGHT even when you are alone, is hard enough if doing something wrong will advantage you. Did you ever hide the Readers Digest so that you would be able to read it before any one else at home: Or leave the phone off the hook so people could not wake you from your afternoon nap, even though in so doing you inconvenience others on the same line?

But, when you condone or uphold others who do wrong, it is a very serious thing. It is far better to avoid being with people who offend what you are sure is your better judgment, and the rules of honesty and fairness, than to lend them even your passive support; and it is never right to do a sinful thing, or anything which your own code of morals does not approve of either alone, or in the company of others.

'WAY BACK WHEN'

Compiled by Mrs. G. Rex Volz, Phone CL 5-9078

50 YEARS AGO
Oct. 14, 1910
Arlington Heights

St. Peter's Evangelical Lutheran Congregation celebrated the Fiftieth Anniversary of their church Sunday. The first church was a small one on the south side of town, which was finished Nov. 1, 1860.

Campbell street will soon be the handsome ave. of the Heights, if all the property owners follow the example of trustee Wilke, the Sieburgs and others. They have their sewer already in, and there is no reason for not graveling that street and making it a boulevard.

Palatine

Have you noticed how much nicer the band music sounds on Tuesday nights than formerly? No, they have not got any new men, but there is a new trombone, with John Godknecht at the mouthpiece.

It looked like an invading army Friday afternoon when 16 automobiles, with a large American flag in the lead, and Bugler Farmer giving the calls, were driven into Palatine by over 75 citizens of Waukegan and northern Lake County. Each car carried a pennant reading "For the new electric road." The occupants were very enthusiastic.

Roselle

Miss Emma Beisner and Louis Kruse were married Sunday at the Schaumburg church. Reception at the home of the birde. . . . The Fox River Fish and Mud Turtle Club have packed up all their tents, boats and tackles. The season closed Monday, Oct. 10, and will reopen May 10, 1911.

Schaumburg

Schaumburg Creamery employees are mourning the loss of their schimmel which died October 9th. . . . John Fenz & Son have built cement sidewalks about their property and set strong iron hitching posts connected by gas pipe rods for the accommodation of the many teams that often assemble at Schaumburg Center.

Itasca

Herman Wischstadt's new 5-passenger Reo is far the best auto car in these parts. . . . We had two weddings Sunday. Miss Anna Glanz to Mr. Gustav Dierking of Bensenville, and Miss Backhaus of Addison to Mr. Albert Rosenwinkel.

Quentin Corners

Our blacksmith is kept quite busy repairing breaks for the R.R. people. . . . The electric road graders are rushing things. They say that in another 30 days it will be nearly finished if weather permits.

40 YEARS AGO
Oct. 15, 1920
Palatine

Palatine will not have any premium coal this winter. The car that did arrive was of such poor quality that W. R. Comfort & Co. refused to sell it to their customers at any price.

John Heide has received word that the remains of his son, William, who died in France, have arrived in Hoboken and can be expected in Palatine today.

Arlington Heights

Snow flew in Chicago one day last week. . . . Do you suppose they can ever put this so-called Daylight Saving over an awakened American "citizenry" again? Wagons loaded with great golden ears of corn and tons of baled hay creak along the streets, thru sign of the Harvest Home. . . . The wedding bells of Miss Viola Weise will be ringing at 7 p.m. October 16 at Arlington Heights, to Mr. Herman Schwolow of Palatine. . . . In G. K. Volz's garden may be seen a late apple tree full of mature fruit and bearing a cluster of perfect blossoms—a pretty picture of May and December.

W. F. Meyer Jr., Postmaster of Arlington Heights, denies that he is a Republican. He says that he was born a Democrat and has remained a Democrat. As he displays a picture of Democratic candidate Cox in his window, we must believe him. But the fact that his political affiliations are different than what we were in hopes they were, does not mean that he is not about the best Postmaster Arlington Heights has ever had.

"The Comet," Vol. No. 1, made its first appearance at the Arlington Heights high school this week. It is going to be a weekly publication and was born with the victory of last Friday when the local basketball team defeated Barrington. . . . The funeral of Mrs. Lewis G. Helm (Mary Elizabeth Allison) was held on Oct. 3d, 1920.

30 YEARS AGO

Bensenville

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin F. Landmeier celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary Saturday, Oct. 11, at the homestead.

Lovers of good talking pictures who reside anywhere within driving distance of Bensenville are showing their appreciation for the shows that are being put on at the Center theatre.

Elk Grove

Mrs. Helen Heimsoth, nee Pankoke, was born Dec. 26, 1866 in Elk Grove, married in 1880 to Herman Heimsoth, and died Oct. 5, 1930. She leaves to mourn, her husband and thre sons, Julius, Herman, and Hugo.

Roselle

The public school baseball team played the Itasca public school team Monday afternoon and finished on top. The Itasca school must be kind of short of boys as there were three girls on their team, but our boys said they were good, especially when they were up to bat.

Palatine-Arlington Heights

The Northwest Highway, (Ill. 19,) having been widned and closed to traffic, will be opened Saturday, Oct. 25, between Arlington Heights and Des Plaines.

Pecchia, Junior vice commander, Al Russell, re-elected adjutant, Frank Stadtler re-elected finance officer, Warren K. Five members of the William Duenn family of Arlington Heights, registered Wednesday under the provision of the new draft act. There are probably few families in this part of Cook County with five sons between the ages of 21 and 36.

The widening of West Campbell between Dunton and Vail streets, is welcomed by autoists. Pedestrians have not as much room as formerly, and autoists will not nick so many fenders. The work was done by WPA with adjoining property owners paying for the material.

George Poole, Arlington Heights Ford dealer, has found such a warm reception in Arlington Heights, that he has decided to make it his permanent home.

Wheeling

Between three and four hundred people assembled in Wheeling Community Hall Saturday evening to celebrate the nintieth anniversary of Vitruvious Lodge A. F. & A.M.

Ninety one years ago seven master masons, members of Lafayette Lodge 7 and Oriental Lodge 33, then the only lodge of free masonry in Cook County, met and resolved to petition for a dispensation to establish a new lodge at Dutchman's Point, now known as Niles. A dispensation was granted these petitioners Oct. 4, 1849. On July 20, 1950 the lodge while still operating under the dispensation decided to move to Wheeling, and on Sept. 14, 1850, their petition to move to that place was granted, the charter being granted Oct. 10, 1850. Vitruvious Lodge during the greater part of its history was a "Moon Lodge," meeting the Saturday of each month on or before full moon. This arrangement served the very practical purpose of providing light for the brother who traveled many miles over dirt roads and trails during the early days of the lodge. All the lodges in the northwest part of Cook County owe their origin to Vitruvious Lodge directly or indirectly.

Mount Prospect

Over $1100 has been realized from the first annual police dance which was held last Saturday at Mt. Prospect Country Club, and the money is still coming in, Mayor I. E. Besander reported Wednesday. The police dance proceeds will provide the village with a new police car.

And so on October 22d, the Lucks will hold open house and entertain their friends on the occasion of their Golden Wedding celebration. Mrs. Luck is a sister of Mrs. Amanda Schoppe of Palatine.

Inductees from local draft board 122 of DuPage County reported for duty with Uncle Sam yesterday. They were Eugene David Drzpnek, Lloyd J. Luebking, both of Bensenville; Frank Rood, and Wilbert J. Zars, Itasca; Lawrence H. Koehn, Bloomingdale, and Jerome Joseph Schroeder, Roselle.

Northwest Art News, Views

Has Art Progressed Since Caveman Era?

by LUCILLE ERNST

Archeologists are fairly certain that one of the first things man did when he began to walk on two legs was to carve pictures on his cave walls of the world around him.

Human nature being what it is, I would guess his mate was mumbling in the background about how sorry she was she allowed herself to be dragged in by the hair by an idiot who preferred drawing bison to hunting them. She probably asked herself, "Why does he do it?" It's still a pretty good question and probably the only answer that makes much sense is, "Because he wants to."

It was all very well for the first caveman, for he taught people to see bison as he saw them but heaven help the second cave man who tried to paint or carve bison as he saw them. He did it all wrong. His bison did not look like the first caveman's bison and so was born the first beatnik. I would put money on it. He was stoned out of his tribe. By this time, of course, the first artist, his long suffering wife and stunted heirs, had all died of starvation. However it had long since been decided that here had been a man who knew what a bison looked like.

NOW WE COME to a caveman with a rather high forehead. He had seen what happened to an artist who painted what he saw. He either starved or was stoned. This caveman was nobody's fool. He painted what could not be seen. He painted gods. I take the liberty of naming this gentleman, "Ab," since most artists owe him an enormous debt.

We should at least celebrate his name in song and story. Modern artists should revere his name since what cannot be seen, when painted, cannot be criticized. Ab has left art critics in a state of constant frustration for all these thousands of years.

After Ab chiseled his first god out of wood or stone, the god remained the same for countless years. Later artists did not change Ab's god, they made up new ones. Since no one had ever seen gods at all, they were on pretty safe ground. In the course of the centuries the rebirth of art has been dependent upon the birth of new gods. In some cases, as in the Renaissance, art flourished with the rebirth of old gods.

AND WHAT OF today? What are our gods of today? If I should paint your mind or mine, how can anyone say that it is wrong? Is it any wonder that ordinary people no longer consider themselves worthy to judge art? When an artist paints what can be seen, it is judgd on the basis of those who saw it before him. When he paints what cannot be seen, he becomes like the gods himself, above criticism, above reproach and not understandable to the people who would judge him.

We have progressed far beyond the days of the caveman in the fields of science, transportation and medicine. How far have we progressed in art?

I was so pleased to learn that Richard O'Brien of Barrington has executed two murals commissioned by the Jewel Tea company for an unique store they opened Sept. 22, at 39 E. Oak st., Chicago.

TO MY KNOWLEDGE it is the first application of fine arts to provide a fresh and stimulating atmosphere to a food store owned by a super market chain.

The murals are a product of integrating art and architecture, as the overall theme of remodeling is reminiscent of a food store at the turn of the century. One mural combines old time food sales and preparation methods. The dimensions of this mural are five feet by forty two feet. The other mural. six and one half feet by thirteen feet, depicts the Potter Palmer Mansion, a Gold Coast landmark of those days. (Bill

Village Theatre Stresses Quality

By CHRIS BAUSKE

Village Theatre Inc., a not for profit group, serving the northwest suburbs, has proved that good legitimate theater is far from being devoid of significance in this area. This group is just beginning its second decade and is having to limit the number of season ticket applications accepted.

This growth is attributed to several factors:

(1) the group is comprised of many people with academic and/or professional theatrical background.

(2) the groups' working to provide good theater in comfortable surroundings — currently the two little theaters in Arlington and Mt. Prospect high schools are being used.

(3) the current practice of engaging well qualified professional directors for the groups' productions.

(4) the groups' careful selection of plays — invariably maintaining communication with the preference of the audience, while in the same instance attempting to present worthwhile theater.

(5) an uncompromising attitude of insisting on the finest sets and costumes possible for community theater use.

(6) firmly based organizational and business management of the group.

Village Theatres' first production of the season, "The Girls in 509" will be presented October 20, 21, 28 and 29 at the Arlington high school Little Theater. Box office phone is CL 9-3200.

'the POOR'

THESE ARE PROSPEROUS TIMES. Consumption of consumer goods is at an all time high. Down Chicago's Seaway and across Illinois' Tollroads our necessities and our luxuries are moved in mountainous quantities. Chicago, hub of the Midwest, is billed as the City of Promise; still a booming town with work for all. Residents of Illinois rank seventh in per capita income in the United States.

But there is another Illinois, another Chicago. In mining communities and on marginal farms there is despair. There are small town people without hope because their communities are without hope.

In Chicago, thousands of aged huddle alone in out-of-the-way places, vegetating. Bewildered mothers, husbands out of work, fight to hold their families together. The story of these people wili be told in a series of six picture pages. This is the first.

by WILLIAM DULANEY and CHARLES HAYES
Photographs by Larry Cameron

On Chicago's north side, in the shadows of Gold Coast penthouses, a seven-year-old boy sits naked in the middle of a bed, staring wide eyed and quizzically at the activity going on about him. He is for the moment quiet as he listens to his father explain in hushed tones that "my boy is sick."

The "sick" boy's thick black hair partially covers a large callus on his forehead, the result of banging his head against the wall. Given to violent outbursts, he may multilate himself or loose his innocent fury on one of his four brothers and sisters, who, with his mother and father, share one small room.

The father, his handsome features lined by fatigue and worry, explains his son has been on a state mental hospital waiting list for over a year.

"I told them at the hospital I would work for them for nothing if they would take my boy. They have to take my boy," the father says, his voice tightening with despair.

The despair is deepened by the knowledge that there is little work he is capable of doing. A former circus performer, he no longer has the agility for acrobatics, and he knows no other trade. He hasn't worked for eight months.

At the other end of the state in southern Illinois, a little old lady is on her knees. She is stuffing rags in holes in the walls and floor of her $8 a month, two-room apartment to keep out the coming winter cold.

Her husband, before he died, was a leading citizen in the town of Highland. Everything went with the depression. Though in her late sixties, she isn't eligible for social security. Too proud to let the townspeople know of her plight, she finally wrote her state legislator in desperation and got on a public aid roll.

In affluent Evanston, one of the nation's richest suburbs, there is another little old lady. This one passes the day sitting by a window, surrounded by African violets.

Occasionally she starts, grows tense, and strains her head at the window as the object of her vigil comes into view. It's a funeral procession. "I sit here every day and watch for them," she'll tell you.

Poor and alone, she adds, "I envy the person being buried."

On Chicago's teeming southside, a young Negro, strong and alert, notes with embarrassment that he'll be glad to get off relief. He will, he says, take any sort of job that will let him feed his wife and 13 children.

If it wasn't for "that machine," he ruefully notes, he'd still be on the job. "That machine" was brought into the steel mill five months ago. It replaced six men.

"I'm out every day looking, checking construction jobs, anything that'll pay me enough to support my family," says this victim of automation. He's full of hope and confident he'll soon find a job.

There's less hope in the weary words of a 46-year-old ex-coal miner in Franklin county. A miner for 24 years, he was recently replaced by a mechanical loader.

He notes he's a high school graduate, but no one will hire him. He knows nothing but mining, a skill that once earned him $24 a day.

In 1945 Franklin county's 26 mines employed 14,000 people. Today 800 workers serve the four remaining mines.

In Pulaski county, a line snakes its way up the main street of the town of Mounds. Watching the sodden, slow shuffle of feet, one wonders if the clock was stopped 30 years ago.

It's a commodity distribution line, a jet age version of the soup line. Under a federal program, cornmeal, dried milk, rice, beans, flour, and lard are distributed to the citizenry in what one local observer terms "the biggest business in town."

Public aid is, in fact, the major industry in Pulaski county, where 30 per cent of the population participates in various relief programs with another 30 per cent deriving its support from those dependent upon aid.

In East St. Louis 4,500 persons mill about at the commodity depot, waiting for their "pokefull" of rice and other surplus foods.

Commodities of a different kind are needed by a 28-year-old mother of five who traded her Kentucky mountains for Chicago's canyons.

She worries over badly-needed warm clothing for her school age children.

Deserted by her husband a year after the family's arrival in Chicago, the mother's aid to dependent children allowance makes no provision for major items of clothing such as overcoats. Out of her $249.85 allotment she must pay $76 for a small bedroom and kitchen.

Lean and angular, she balances a three-year-old on her hip and tells you, "Chicago's kind of hard cause I wasn't raised in the city."

"We only been here six years, but it seems like a thousand," she sighs.

Who are the poor? The old, the young, the newcomer, the oldtimer, the urban dweller, the farmer, the black, the brown, the white, the skilled, unable to work because of sickness or new machines, the unskilled, unable to work because there is no work.

There are those unaccustomed to poverty, who scrawl on their relief applications, "I promise to repay." And there are those for whom poverty has become a tradition, passed from one generation to the next. Their fathers were poor, and their fathers before them, and so will be their children, and their children after them.

Who are the poor? They are the more than half million people in Illinois for whom shelter, food, and clothing are constant question marks.

How To Cut Hen Feeding Costs

Feed often accounts for two-thirds of the total cost of producing eggs according to Cook county farm adviser Carl F. Mees. But with today's cost - price squeeze, poultrymen should cut this figure to one-half, he said.

Understanding the many things that influence feed costs can help to reduce them. The birds that lay the most eggs eat the most feed, but they also use their feed most efficiently. So feed costs fall as egg yields rise.

Large hens eat more than small hens. So poultrymen should select the smallest possible hen that lays the size of egg they want — provided she is a good layer and has the other qualities they are looking for.

Price of feed has a strong influence, of course. But that price alone may be misleading. It's price of feed per dozen eggs that counts.

Feed prices can be reduced by 1.) buying in bulk, 2.) buying on a volume scale, 3.) using more home - grown grains and 4.) not feeding unnecessary antibiotics.

Other items that influence the feed cost in egg production are feed wastage, rats, mice, sparrows, calories in the feed, quality of the feed, feeding methods, season of the year, diseases, parasites and egg size.

4-H Club News

The Country Cousins 4-H club elected the following officers for the coming year at their September 27 meeting held in the home of Linda Trimmel, 1119 E. Olive, Arlington Heights: Linda Trimmel, president; Pat Rief, vice president; Judy Henry, secretary; Barbara Johnson, treasurer; Shirley Broome, reporter; and Leslie Taylor, recreation chairman.

Mrs. Trimmel announced that the club got a ribbon and $5 for their booth at the 4-H fair.

An organization committee, composed of Linda Trimmel, Judy Fisher and Shirley Broome, was appointed to plan a scavenger hunt to be held in the home of Judy Fisher in Barrington October 16.

The club welcomed Judy Henry as a new member and Stephanie Anderson as a visitor. There were eight present.

The next meeting will be held October 25 at 7 p.m. in the home of Judy Fisher. (Fm

Revise Food, Drug Act So Federal Controls

H. W. Hannah and N. G. P. Krausz

For more than 50 years, commencing with passage of a comprehensive Food and Drug Act in 1906, the Federal Government has played an increasingly important role in protecting consumers against harmful foods and drugs.

During the same time there has been a marked increase in the use of chemicals in foods. And more recently a virtual breakthrough in the use of chemicals in agricultural production has taken place, both to protect crops and livestock and to stimulate growth in meat animals.

Consequently, the Food and Drug Act has been revised and amended many times to keep federal control and protection abreast of developments. The interests of consumers and agricultural producers have been kept more or less in balance through the establishment of tolerances for those poisonous chemicals that leave residues on such products as fruit, berries, vegetables and grain. Allowing these tolerances is an exception to the general requirement of the law that poisonous and deleterious substances must be kept out of food.

IN RECENT years two important amendments have been made to the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. One is referred to as the pesticide chemical amendment; the other, as the food additive amendment. The former is meant to tighten controls on the use of chemicals on raw agricultural products; the latter, to further restrict the use of additives in foods.

Both amendments shift to the producer or processor the burden of showing that use of a chemical ought to be allowed, and both provide for a petition process to be used by an applicant who wants to have a tolerance established.

Provisions of the pesticide chemical amendment seem to have worked out well in practice, but the food additive amendment of 1958 has created problems for cranberry growers (use of aminotriazole), poultry producers (stilbestrol) and others.

SOURCE OF the controversy under this amendment is the so-called "Delany Clause," which states that "no additive shall be deemed to be safe if it is found to induce cancer when ingested by man or animal, or if it is found, after tests which are appropriate for the evaluation of the safety of food additives, to induce cancer in man or animal."

Strict interpretation of this clause could virtually rule out use of nearly all growth stimulants. This was certainly not the intent of the law —so now it remains for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to work out safe but reasonable applications of the law so that both the health and the pocketbook of the consumer can be protected. Predict Cattle Price Drop

by L. H. SIMERL

Prices for fat cattle seem likely to average $1.50 to $2 a hundred pounds lower in 1961 than in 1960. Here is why:

Farmers and ranchers have been building up their herds for three years. They started with 93.3 million head. They added 3 million the first year, 5 million the second, and are adding about 3 million again this year.

Slaughter began to increase in November of last year and has since been running about 7 per cent higher than a year before.

Largely as a result of this increased slaughter of cattle, prices for choice steers have averaged about $2 a hundred pounds lower in 1960 than they did in 1959.

BUT THE slaughter of cattle and calves still has not caught up with production on ranches and farms. We are adding another 3 million head to herds this year. Cattle numbers are catching up with their feed supply. Besides that, the decline in cattle prices makes the business less attractive as a maker of profits. So we look for a smaller increase in cattle numbers next year, and a greater sale of cattle for slaughter.

Commercial slaughter of cattle and calves could increase 10 per cent in 1961 and yet not cut cattle numbers. We expect the increase to be less than 10 per cent, probably around 5 or 6 per cent. That could take $1.50 to $2 a hundred pounds off the average price for the year.

Farmers in eight corn-belt states bought 14 per cent fewer feeder cattle during the first eight months of this year than they did in 1959. This suggests that market supplies of fed cattle will not be excessive this winter. At the same time, supplies of pork will be skimpy. This could add up to some fairly good prices for fed cattle during the snowy months.

For many years we could count on better than average prices for fat cattle in the late summer and early fall. Consequently, many farmers adopted cattle-feeding programs that put fat cattle on the market from August through November or December.

This program seems to have been overdone a bit in the past three years. Consequently, prices of fed cattle have been relatively low in the fall and highest around February and March.

We do not expect the top prices to be made in these months every year. On the other hand, it is difficult to figure how prices could be higher in the last half of 1961 than they will be in the first half of the year.

Farmers who buy their feeder cattle at prices in line with the expected lower prices for fat cattle have a good chance to make a normal profit. (FM

Down On The Farm

CARL F. MEES

with Your Farm Adviser

We are now in the midst of National Fire Prevention Week. In the proclamation issued by President Eisenhower, he calls upon "our people to promote programs for the prevention and control of fires" and urges state and local governments, public services and farm organizations to participate.

During the 1950's farm fire losses increased 37 per cent. One-third of this increase occurred in 1958. Farm property losses from fire last year were about $175 million.

Fire prevention week is especially important for farm families since fire equipment is not always available to fight fires. Most farm fires are caused by such unnecessary practices as carelessness with matches, improper use of flammable liquids, misuse of electricity, inadequate lightning protection, and defective chimneys, stoves and furnaces. The prevention of fire is easy; the results of fire are both costly and deadly. Let's take time to fireproof our farm practices and keep them that way all year long.

WHAT CAN you do to help eliminate fires on your property and keep tragic losses at a minimum? The most important thing is not to give fires a place to start. Others are:

1. Know how to call your fire department.
2. Make sure the entire family knows at least two ways to escape from every room.
3. When leaving children at home, leave them with a trained sitter.
4. Don't wait until after the fire to check fire hazards on your place. See that everything is in good repair now.

The final reckoning of the cost of the Chicago fire of 1871 was $168,000,000. Presently in this nation we are burning up $168,000,000 worth of property almost every six weeks. Each day fire destroys or damages 1,525 homes, 105 industrial plants, 149 stores, 11 churches, 11 schools, and four hospitals according to National Fire Protection association records. Far more tragic is the annual toll of more than 11,000 lives lost to fire. This record is the measure of our apathy about fire hazards.

This community can make fire protection meaningful if all of us decide that fire prevention is our job too, and that individually and together we can do our part to correct the present record. Let's do our part! (Fm

General sessions featuring nationally known authorities are planned. The following speakers have accepted invitations to appear on the general sessions:

Earl W. Kintner, chairman of the Federal Trade commission, will speak on "How Much Control of Business by Monopolies and Government Can We Afford or Endure?"

* * *

O. V. WELLS, director of the Agricultural Marketing service of the U. S. department of agriculture, will discuss "The Economic Environment Confronting Agricultural Industries."

Irwin A. Cockrane, director of the University of Illinois Bureau of Business Management, will talk on "This Business of Wheel Spinning."

Park Ridge Inn Opening Slated For Next Friday

The Park Ridge Inn, a $3,000,000 luxury-styled motor—hotel, will open Friday, Oct. 21, in a country club setting with a civic celebration.

Park Ridge Mayor Raymond Hollis has proclaimed the date as "Park Ridge Inn Day," and will officially greet the management during a formal welcoming ceremony at the entrance of the motor inn, following a parade from 3:00 to 4:00 p.m.

Local civic and business leaders, press, radio and television personalities will participate in the parade and entertainment festivities throughout the evening. Suzanne Johnson, Miss Illinois 1959, will be the official hostess at the preview.

A FASHION show will be staged by the Park Shop in the Park Ridge Inn's convention hall building. Dining and dancing will follow, with guided tours of the Inn, located at the tre-corner intersection of Touhy, Meacham and Summit aves.

This is Park Ridge's first guest-accomodating building in 46 years, since the city's only hotel was torn down. The Park Ridge Inn's 200 rooms include facilities for permanent residents and travelers. Every apartment is oversized and equipped with a kitchenette, bath, entry hall area, built-in wardrobe and wall - to - wall bath vanity counter.

There are 10 executive and bridal suites. Each of the four floors of the living area has a private meeting room. Marafuel Offers Disability Plan

A fuel oil home heating plan with the added attraction of life and disability insurance is now being offered by distributors of Marafuel home heating oil.

Under the plan, Marafuel Budget Plan customers who are disabled and under a doctor's care will receive free heat after 14 days off the job. On the fifteenth day, heat payments are paid retroactive to the date of the injury. In case of death to the customer, all family Marafuel bills will be paid for the remainder of the year.

According to Marathon spokesmen, the insurance plan requires no medical examinations, no age or occupation limitations, and the customer need not be in the hospital to collect.

ALL THAT is required is for the customer to be unable to work and under a doctor's care. Coverage is limited only to Marafuel Budget Plan customers.

In last year's Marafuel program, many customers benefited under the plan's insurance provisions. Some 335 customers collected free heat while unable to work due to a disability. Sixth-four families received free heat under the death provision of the plan.

Local Marafuel distributors have urged customers to take advantage of the budget plan to get full benefits of the program. They point out that through the plan, monthly payments can be spread out over a 10-month period to reduce monthly payments, and the delivery is automatic, without the necessity of personal reorder by the customer. Suburb Woman Challenges 'Ugly Prejudice' on Age

It is seldom, indeed, that I write letters to the public-at-large, in view of the fact that I hardly seem able to keep up with my own personal correspondence, but in this case, if even one individual benefits as a result of my endeavor, I shall feel it has been worth the effort and thought.

We moved to this northwest suburban area eight weeks ago, from New York State. On the surface, at least, I find people very friendly and eager to be helpful. I find Chicago most exciting, we've seen several fine plays, heard Leonard Bernstein, and had some superb meals. To top it off, through your wonderful Channel 11, I am learning a new language, German, which is fun and relatively easy, much to my surprise, but then last year I studied Russian evenings, at a nearby college. Also, I find the school my teenagers attend, is superior in many respects, to the school they attended last, in New York.

HOWEVER, A more serious note now creeps into the picture, and I find myself with very mixed feelings. The big "bugaboo" or ugly note of prejudice has asserted itself and upset my visions of a completely happy future here. Just what is this prejudice which I consider so serious and dangerous? No, it is not race or religion, through no credit or fault of my own, I have no problems in that area. It is however, just as insidious for many, as the two aforementioned. It is age!

I have always held a position, various ones, in fact, and my family approve and encourage this. I have two teenage youngsters, one who will be ready for college next year and the other, the year following.

I am an honest and unashamed 43-year-old 'gal'. I never dreamed I would be too old for a new position. I have very definite ideas as to why a married woman in her forties is an excellent bet as a prospective employee, and they read something like this:

1. She has 20 working years ahead of her plus 15 years of past experience.
2. Her children are grown-up and therefore, absenteeism bcause of measles or other childhood ailments is practically nil and she does not at this time of her life, expect to be taking a maternity leave of absence.
3. She is not looking for a husband.
4. She is not interested in idle phone conversation with friends or family.
5. She has developed mature judgment, gained from her years of experience and has learned how to get along with most anyone and to adjust to those few more difficult personalities.
6. These are the most useful, productive years of anyone's life. The French, as a nation, believe that a woman in her forties is far more interesting, exciting and attractive because of her maturity, than a younger woman!

A FEW DAYS ago, I spent two days in a very fine personnel agency office. I never even got 'off the ground' in a manner of speaking, or in other words, I was unable to get even an appointment for an interview, because (and I overheard some of the phone calls to prospective employers) I was 43 years old!

All other things being equal, of course, the discrimination was solely on the basis of age. One hardly knows where to start in combating this evil except perhaps, by another evil, that of lying about one's age, which I am not prepared to do at the present time.

As far as the public is concerned, I desire to remain anonymous, but let's take a look at this picture. Sure, I'm 43 and I never minded one bit up until now! I weigh in at 114 pounds, five foot five inches tall, no grey hair to speak of (naturally, too), I water ski, as do all the members of our family, and love it; I roller skate, go dancing, enjoy meeting all kinds of people, have three years of a four year college nursing course behind me, plus more recent college credits taken evenings after a full working day, including Russian last year, statistics and sociology the year before, and others before that. I am learning German this year and have a good working knowledge of French, can type 40 words, or better, a minute. Just let me add that my basic philosophy of life, is to learn something new in subject material each year of one's life. This year besides German, I learned something new just last week, I'm too old!

I've really just begun to fight though, and offer this challenge; I will accept being judged as too old when the prospective employers have the 'good sense' to at least allow an applicant to be seen and heard, without asking beforehand, what his or her age may be!

THIS EFFICIENT and friendly agency about which I spoke, did all within their power to assist me and were the essence of kindliness and warmth in dealing with me. I am indebted to them for their sincerity, in their desire to place me.

When I arrived at the station after my second day of travail, my daughter met me with my car. Upon being informed that her mother was considered to be too old to be of interest to prospective employers, she was quite genuinely horrified and very indignant. Believe me, this is the ultimate compliment, because parents often feel that children are the most critical of all on the subject of age!

I haev been teaching school these past seven years, in the seventh and eighth grades, and loving every minute of it. The first two years I did substitute teaching which does not necessarily require a degree. After that, because of a local teacher shortage, I taught regularly under temporary certification. I was attending college evenings, gaining additional credits, so that one day I might obtain my coveted degree. I always understood that if the district could locate a teacher with the proper qualifications, that I would be replaced. A degree is, and properly should be required, for teaching, and to this, I most wholeheartedly subscribe.

WHEN WE MOVED to Illinois, I did not expect to be able to teach and was therefore psychologically prepared to change occupations, a thought that I did not particularly object to, providing I could locate a stimulating and challenging new vocation, for I both need and love being a part of the business world.

So,—you prospective employers, when your appointed agency calls you and tells you that she has an applicant for you to interview, and that this applicant meets the job experience requirements, trust your agency, play fair, do not ask this applicant's age! Meet her first, talk with her, you just might be pleasantly surprised!

Illinois might well consider legislation aimed toward making it illegal to require a job applicant to submit his age on an employment application, as I have been given to understand, New York State has recently done.

Former Postmaster Clarifies Record

As a former Postmaster at Medinah, Ill., formerly Meacham, and appointed in 1911, I would like to correct a statement about the Medinah post office that appeared in the Roselle Register October 6, 1960.

The original post office known as the Meacham post office and established in January, 1874, was named after the first postmaster, George W. Meacham, who also donated the land where the station is located, with the provision there should always be a station at the site or the land would revert back to the heirs of Mr. Meacham.

This should correct the statement that the office has only been in existence for 30 years.

THE ARTICLE failed to mention the tremendous amount of mail that was handled through this office even with only 26 boxes and a few receiving general delivery. At its inception, the club was exclusively a Shriners club and it was not unusual to handle 3,000 pieces of first class mail some days. One year I handled 5,500 pieces of registered mail for the club. That amount of mail from the club has never been equalled. At that time, 1931-32, I was very close to second class rating.

Years later the membership dropped and it was not an exclusive Shriner club, although they still had a large volume of mail. We had third class mail for the club at least once a week besides regular mailing; sold Government Bonds and also sent the monthly magazine. This last year the monthly magazine has been mailed from Chicago where it is printed. Third class mail and bond sales have been discontinued.

This office was advanced to third class rating in July, 1928, when most of the surrounding towns were still in fourth class, but now they certainly are ahead of us. We seem to be at a standstill business-wise.

We are getting a new post office at last, but why is 1500 square feet necessary for this office?

Resident Criticizes Location of 2 Polls

Last week we learned Oliver Dilks, Palatine Township Democratic Dommitteeman had selected two private homes as the polling places for precincts 3 and 23. This move should be vigorously protested by the residents in this area. Private homes should never be used as polling places, especially when other facilities are available. The place we vote must not be allowed to have the slightest connection with partisan politics. When selecting a voting place, schools or other community buildings, are always chosen.

Aside from keeping the polling places non-partisan, community buildings almost always have good parking facilities and sufficient room to handle a crowd of people. The facilities at 4 Silos, which has been the polling place for Precinct 3 for many years, are excellent. Even more space and better parking is available at the Inverness Field House. In fact, when the new 23rd Precinct was separated from Precinct 3, the Inverness Association was asked for permission to use the Field House. This permission was granted and on July 28, 1960 Senator Jackson L. Boughner, Republican Committeeman of Palatine recommended its use in a letter to the County Clerk's office. In spite of the availability of these two locations, Mr. Dilks insisted in using two private homes.

INSTEAD OF the 4-Silo office precinct 3 is directed to vote at 2159 W. Sunset drive. A newly converted garage and breezeway will serve as the voting area. There are no parking facilites to handle large numbers of cars which always arrive during the morning commuter rush from 7 a.m. to 8 a.m. A traffic jam will undoubtedly result.

A home at 1206 W. Palatine road was selected in place of the Inverness field house. Voting equipment will have to be set up in the house proper and the space will be most cramped. Parking is not only inadequate but very dangerous. The speed limit on Palatine road at this point, is 45 miles per hour.

This house is located at the intersection of Harrison avenue which is just beyond a rise in Palatine road when approaching from the East. Cars approaching from the East will not be able to see traffic congestion at this point until it is too late.

Mr. Dilks contends he chose these locations over the other places because they were more centrally located in their respective precincts. This argument has no merit. Most of the voters in these two precincts live in or around Inverness. The distance between any of these four points cannot be much over a mile. Since everyone drives to the polls, one mile more or less means nothing. The fact is this change was made to make voting more difficult and less pleasant for the voters in these precincts. Many commuters faced with a traffic jam in the morning will drive on to work or the railroad station intending to vote on the way home. The polls close at 6 p.m. Some of the voters will not get back. Could it be Mr. Dilks hopes these non-voters will be Republicans?

Volunteers Surveyed 'Causes' of Cancer

Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond, American Cancer Society director of statistical research, has disclosed preliminary findings in a study of more than 1,000,000 Americans in a search for causes of cancer in "their personal and living habits, health conditions, the air they breathe, the food they eat and other factors."

In Illinois, 80,485 questionnaires were filled out by individuals. A total of 4,721 ACS volunteers engaged in this gigantic undertaking of enlisting these individuals.

EUGENE Di Blasi, chairman of the Northwest Suburban chapter, said that 78 volunteers in this area secured 1522 questionnaires On October 1 these volunteers will be called upon to begin the first follow-up on the survey, in order to secure the necessary information to continue this project.

Dr. Hammond, reporting at the Fourth National Cancer Conference here, drew conclusions from a sampling of 43,235 participants in the study who were selected proportionally from all areas of the study which totals 1,100,000 persons, all of whom have completed questionnaires.

Dr. Hammond found that 83 per cent of the men in the sampling and 88 per cent of the women said they had physical complaints of one kind or another. These included complaints which are usually regarded as cancer danger signals. In this category were complaints by 62 per cent of the men and 54 per cent of the women.

IN ANALYZING this data, Dr. Hammond said that 30 per cent of the men and 25 per cent of the women reported two or more cancer danger signals.

Cough was the most frequent complaint of men. More than a third of the men and 21 per cent of the women listed this complaint. However, only 13 per cent of the men and 6.5 per cent of the women said they had a cough "over a period of many years."

Indigestion was the chief complaint among women, 28 per cent of them listing this symptom and 26 per cent of the men said they had indigestion. Other complaints which are included among the danger signals of cancer were recorded thus: Hoarseness, 15 per cent of the women and 11 per cent of the men; too frequent urination 13 per cent of the men.

Dr. Hammond said that these were the only danger signals reported by such high percentages and that only cough and indigestion were reported as "severe or occurring often" by more than one per cent of those sampled.

DESPITE THE number of danger signals reported, only 11 per cent of the men and 17 per cent of the women said they had seen a doctor about their complaints during the past year.

Dr. Hammond said further studies will show how the information so far obtained may relate to the detection of cancer. He said that although the frequency of complaints may not be specific to pinpoint cancer in an individual, this may be found useful in identifying groups of people who have a high likelihood of developing cancer at a later date. Such people could be advised to see their doctors more frequently than once as a means of detecting cancer while still in acurable stage.

Politically, Let's Be Frank

Last week a "Fence Post" contributor presented a most unique thought—that political segregation seems to exist in our suburbs. It would appear that this individual has developed a political persecution complex, for I have always found both my Republican and Democratic neighbors to be friendly and compassionate.

If there appears to be a predominance of Republicanism in this area, perhaps investigation will reveal that these are citizens who fled the city because the extent of political corruption was repugnant to their intelligence and moral integrity.

It might be well for this individual to follow Mr. Nixon's suggestion and place less emphasis on party labels and how her parents voted, and instead devote some honest, soul-searching thought to what is best for the preservation of the American way of life.

Welcome To Rally

We are most appreciative of the news stories which have appeared in the Paddock papers in regard to the appearance of Tyler Thompson, Democratic candidate for Congress from the 13th Congressional District, in Arlington Heights on October 17.

It is our hope that many people in the northwest suburban area who are valiantly trying to learn as much as they can of the various candidates so that they may exercise their right to vote with intelligence will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear Mr. Thompson express his views on the important issues which face all of us in these days.

WE THEREFORE not only urge all citizens to come but will welcome all those who do attend this meeting at Pioneer Park no matter what their political leanings may be.

In an effort to facilitate the full discussion of the issues we have also arranged a Meet the Press type of interview with a panel of journalists from the area participating.

The Way We See It

Press Must Perform Community Service

This week marks the introduction of the Itasca Register, newest addition to Paddock Publications growing family of suburban newspapers, and the beginning of National Newspaper Week.

These two events appropriately serve to remind us of our function and responsibility as community newspapers.

What is the definition of a newspaper? Is it a bulletin board for social groups? Is it a purveyor of spot news? Is it a collection of features and sports coverage? Or is it not a little of all these things, and an interpreter and reporter of social and political issues.

A newspaper has, or should have, a leading role in creating the sort of community in which people take pride. A newspaper must represent the aspirations of the best elements of the community.

Paddock Publications believes that one of its major tasks is to strive for the common good of the community. That our newspapers work in the best interests of the whole community and not just for a few special interests has been proven time and again.

In recognition of editorial achievement during the past year, Paddock Publications was honored with major press awards from the National Editorial association, Illinois Press association, and the Illinois Commission on Human Relations.

This is not an occasion, however, for self-praise nearly so much as it is an occasion for self-appraisement. It is a time to rededicate ourselves to the trust placed in us by an intelligent, progressive, and enlightened citizenship.

Suburb Officials Should Voice Zoning Code Views

Copies of a proposed new Cook county subdivision manual have been submitted to the county board of commissioners. Public hearings on the new code will likely begin shortly after next month's election.

When adopted the new subdivision ordinance will cover nearly 400 square miles of unincorporated areas and will affect a suburban population of over 1.5 million.

The new manual will specify minimum requirements for streets, water, sewage, and drainage facilities. No builder will be allowed a building permit without complying with the manual's requirements.

Under the 1925 subdivision code, many suburban communities have seen themselves ringed and pocketed with sub-standard developments whose building requirements are far below those of the incorporated communities in the area.

Such county developments have proved particularly burdensome when a community's natural growth has caused it to expand and seek annexation of surrounding land.

In theory then, the object of the proposed new code is no doubt in the interest of both unincorporated areas and suburban communities, as was the object of the county's recently adopted comprehensive zoning ordinance. Both are intended to insure orderly growth and maintain high standards.

Yet there is widespread discontent among suburban officials with the zoning code.

Many communities argue that the code surrounds their borders with land zoned in a manner not compatible with the future growth of the communities, such as lesser lot size requirements than those found in municipal ordinances.

There are also strong objections to the manner in which the code was passed. Complaints of several suburbs to proposed zoning were ignored because of a technical ruling that such objections were not filed with the county clerk's office.

Indications are that most officials of our northwest suburbs are aware that a new subdivision manual has been compiled. Some have requested copies of the proposed code as submitted to the county board, others haven't.

Harry Chaddick, director of the county's Code and Ordinance Revision committee, said last week the committee expects opposition to the subdivision manual "only from subdividers, not from villages."

This forecast may be correct. We hope, however, that our suburban communities will be represented at the public hearings and will be prepared to argue in detail, perhaps collectively, against any county subdivision proposals that are not in the interest of the area. It may also be necessary to support provisions that some developers would like to see modified.

Requests for copies of the proposed subdivision manual should be made to the Code and Ordinance Revision committee, 33 N. LaSalle st.

Urge Local Level Debate On Foreign Policy Issue

Our suburban political barometer reads "falling fast" which is another way of saying rising interest in next month's election is charging the atmosphere in the northwest suburbs.

Paddock's answer to Mr. Gallup and Sam Lubell is our own roving reporter, who has been making the rounds of supermarkets, commuter stations, and front lawns.

In sampling nearly a hundred opinions, he has made three recurring observations:

1. Foreign affairs is the most important issue of the campaign.
2. The national "debates" have had little effect on people's opinions.
3. Twenty per cent of the electorate is still undecided in its choice of a presidential candidate.

Thus, we feel it is timely and pertinent that a proposal has been made to conduct a genuine public debate on foreign policy. The challenge for such a debate at the township level has been issued by the Democratic Volunteers of Wheeling township to the Northwest Volunteers for Nixon-Lodge. The latter group has expressed interest in the proposal.

Both organizations can count articulate and knowledgeable members among their numbers. A debate between representatives of the two groups should prove interesting and enlightening. We are looking forward to such an encounter.

For $175, the First Link Was Forged

New Paddock Paper Recalls Origins of Suburban Chain

Hosea C. Paddock in 1898 forged the first link in a chain of community newspapers that now encompasses 36 towns and serves more than 140,000 readers when he purchased the Palatine Enterprise for $175.

Today the chain consists of fourteen modern suburban weekly newspapers serving rapidly expanding northwest Cook and north DuPage counties. They lead all U.S. weeklies in advertising lineage and in newsstand sales.

The Itasca Register, announced this week as the newest addition to the Paddock group, becomes the sixth newspaper added to the chain since 1955.

THE ROLLING Meadows Herald was founded February 10, 1955; the Prospect Heights Herald October 13, 1955; the Addison Register June 6, 1957; the Elk Grove Herald June 27, 1957; and the Hoffman Herald January 22, 1959.

H. C. Paddock came to Palatine to start his newspaper enterprise anew when fire destroyed the plant and office of the Lake County Independent in Libertyville.

From his first office in a 20 ft. by 24 ft. wooden building in Palatine, the late editor had a vision of a newspaper chain and a fierce desire to provide newspapers for areas that had none.

While he toured the countryside in horse and buggy for subscriptions and news items, his 17-year-old son, Stuart, acted as compositor, pressman, reporter and rewriteman.

FROM Palatine, he drove into south Barrington, Hanover, and Bartlett townships and subsequently into north DuPage county.

In April, 1899, Paddock went to Arlington Heights and for $275 bought the Cook County Herald, oldest weekly newspaper in the county. During World War I, the Enterprise was combined with the other papers when the plants at Arlington Heights and Palatine were consolidated.

At first, H. C. Paddock printed the paper two pages at a time on a Washington hand press. For years, he carried the news type, set by hand and weighing from 100 to 150 pounds, into Chicago where the paper was printed in the office of the Western Newspaper union, using "boiler plate" to fill up the pages. Today they are printed in Paddock's modern extensive publishing plant in Arlington Heights.

A half German edition consisted of four pages of home news printed in English and four pages of the "patent insides" printed in Germany by the Staatz-Zeitung and later by the Milwaukee Herald. The half German edition was discontinued "as a patriotic gesture" during World War I and was never resumed.

H. C. PADDOCK had learned his editorship when rural communities were self-sufficient and keenly interested in humble personalia. Such local news columns as "Roselle Rumbles" and "Schaumburg Sayings" were scarcely guaranteed to retain interest after the towns became engrossingly suburban to Chicago.

Luckily for H. C. and his enterprises, the younger generation sensed the need for an adaptable approach to suburban editing. The result is the modern format prevalent in today's Paddock Publications which has earned national recognition for the chain's unique approach to suburban journalism.

The second generation—Stuart and his brother, Charles Paddock—assumed full direction of the business after their father's death in 1935. Now the third generation is rapidly taking over operations.

In addition to the Addison, Itasca, Elk Grove, Prospect Heights, Rolling Meadows, and Hoffman Estates-Schaumburg editions, the chain includes the Cook County Herald, Arlington Heights Herald, Wheeling Herald, Mount Prospect Herald, Palatine Enterprise, Bensenville Register, DuPage County Register and Roselle Register.

WITH MORE than a half-century of active editing behind him, Stuart Paddock credits his "youthfulness" in spirit and ideal in measure to the young people he has surrounded himself with. His publications, news department, headed by 29-year-old executive editor Charles Hayes and 31-year-old managing editor William Dulaney, boasts of one of the youngest, professionally-trained editorial staffs of any Illinois newspaper.

Paddock said the editorial policy for the Itasca Register will be the same as that which has traditionally guided the policies of his newspapers.

"I believe that the only excuse a newspaper has for its existence is the community service it can give," he explained. "The welfare of the community is more important than anything else. Freedom of the press carries with it certain obligations. The local newspaper belongs to every individual, rich or poor. The use that the individual makes of the paper depends upon him. The latchstring of the news department is always open for all who care to enter."

1960 Press Contest

Six State Newspaper Awards to Paddock's

Paddock Publications was presented with six awards Friday night in the 1960 Illinois Newspaper Contest conducted by the Illinois Press association.

The prizes included two first place awards, two second places, and two honorable mentions, all conferred on contest entries from the Arlington Heights Herald, parent paper of the Paddock suburban newspaper chain.

Announcement of the contest awards was made at the press association's 95th annual fall meeting in Springfield.

Presentation was by Verle V. Kramer, contest chairman, to Stuart R. Paddock, president and editor-in-chief of Paddock Publications.

THE AWARDS:

—First place for best editorial in weekly and daily newspapers with circulation over 3,500. Commenting on the entry, "Censor Board Isn't Needed" by Jack Martin, the judges said: "This is a courageous, well-researched and documented, and readable editorial on a local subject of importance. The editorial calmly and effectively analyzes the legal basis for obscenity prosecutions and concludes that the local chief of police was off base in undertaking to protect community morals by applying his own standards. It also takes an enlightened stand against future censorship."

—First place for best feature story in weekly and daily newspapers with circulation over 3,500. The entry was "Delinquent Girl Finds Way to Geneva" by William Dulaney. Commented the judges: "A sensitively written feature covering its subject well. Good writing, interesting detail, good pictorial support."

—SECOND PLACE for general excellence for weeklies and semi-weeklies with circulation over 5,000. Judging was based on mechanical excellence, general and departmental news coverage, literary excellence, promotion of community interests, editorial page, and advertising enterprise. 'How To' Realm

Service Book Is Invaluable

by MARTIN E. MARTY

One class of people in society for whom I am thankful is the group that puts together big books with hundreds of ideas in the 'how to' realm.

I am thankful because it takes a kind of industry that I have trouble picturing and because in the course of the hundreds sooner or later one will come across something of interest. Not long ago I saw "838 Ways to Entertain Your Child" (why not 837, 839, or a rounded number — who knows where to stop?). Or, "1000 Free Things for Your Children." Still another, "80 Ways to Raise Money for Your Church"--a book whose very conception seemed to me to verge on blasphemy; it was consigned to the waste basket.

WELL, AT LAST a really solid compilation has come along, a "Handbook of Community Service Projects" (Association, $6.50), which, while it may not belong in everyone's library certainly deserves a place on the desks of all club officers, church leaders, etc. It collects 850 programs "that make communities better," and seems to gather every conceivable idea for service.

It seems curious that we have to look around for things to do. In most of world history poverty, illness, despair, hunger were so obvious that one needed little vision, he needed only the means and motive to carry out service activity. Today in a middle class society we carefully protect ourselves against seeing, hearing about, or remembering human need. We tend to be stratified in the kinds of suburbs where need is no longer apparent. Yet the 'need to be needed' is still pressing on each of us; the attempt to live our Christianity or a pattern of ideals demands visible execution.

Failing to find obvious areas of need we tend too often to fall into disinterest and apathy; most suburban clubs and many church societies will complain about the resultant frivolous and superficial level of interest that remains to attract people. Gradually the same people tend to show up at community affairs and the rest tend their own gardens. When people of good will look for things to do they are hard pressed to find anything near home.

WELL, IF THERE is anything to be done, this new book by Audrey R. and Harleigh B. Trecker will help people locate it. UNICEF greeting cards, Christmas Shopping Tour for children in institutions, Survey of Teachers' Salaries, Blood-Typing Project, Rallying Community Forces for a Mental Health Clinic, Hospital Thrift Shop--these are the kinds of suggestions that come to mind as page after page falls open.

With it, you can't miss. It still seems an ironic comment on a world where most are in dire need that we have to buy books to look for things to do. It might awaken us to some realities about the dream world and the optical illusion in which we live.

Quotoons

A father learns the real value of cooperation when his children offer to pay some of his bills.

You can tell how happily married a man is by the earnestness with which he embraces his wife.

All it takes to make a woman a good winner is a successful husband.

A smart woman knows that men are willing to pay much more than a penny for her thoughts.

The trouble with resigning yourself to fate never starts until you do.

A modern executive is a man who believes in getting the other fellow to do his best for him.

You know a man is in love with his wife if he still treats her as often as he did before he married her.

Two people who are really in love with each other can't keep it a secret.

History proves that no man ever became a genius just by claiming to be one.

When money talks nowadays you can't accuse it of carrying on a monologue.

You're never quite sure how you feel about a neighbor until you hear his little boy tell you what his father really thinks about you.

When a woman gets a lot of housework done nowadays, the chances are the television set is on the blink.

An opportunist is a man who is quick to catch on to the profit-making ideas that you overlook.

Nothing will put a person's honesty to the test like receiving duplicate refund checks.

An optimist is a man who will wink at a pretty girl and think that his wife won't see him.

Nothing will do more for a woman's disposition than a good cry that makes her husband pay up.

You know a man is still very much in love with his wife if he brags about how pretty she is even at breakfast.
